14TH YEAR. NO. 189. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1899. TWO CENTS

QUAY AGAIN SHORT.

His Vote Remained at 112 In Joint Session.

A SMALL GAIN MADE BY JENKS.

A Ruling of Gobin Inflamed Flinn, Who Inaugurated a Fight, Joined by Democrats, Anti-Quay Republicans and Some of the Quay Men.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—The joint ballot for United States senator showed little change from the figures of the day before when the houses voted separately. It resulted as follows: M. S. Quay, Rep., 112; Charles E. Smith, Rep., 1; George A. Jenks, Dem., 84; Charles Tubbs, Rep., 4; John Dalzell, Rep., 15; E. A. Irwin, Rep., 3; Charles W. Stone, Rep., 9; John Stewart, Rep., 9; George F. Huff, Rep., 5; J. F. Downing, Rep., 2; Charles E. Rice, Rep., 2; G. A. Grow, Rep., 1.

Votes cast, 248; necessary to choice, 125.

The session was, however, productive of a stormy scene, in which Senator Flinn was the chief actor. He vigorously fought the adjournment announced by Lieutenant Governor Gobin and called a meeting to "oppose the bulldozing tactics of the chair." This was attended by the Independent Republicans and the Democrats and a committee was appointed to report resolutions of protest at a night session.

When the house assembled for the balloting the first clash came when Representative Dixon of Elk offered a resolution fixing the rules governing the joint assembly. Mr. Gobin declared nothing was in order but comparing the journals of the senate and house at the proceedings of the day before on the senatorship. Mr. Dixon appealed from decision, but the chair refused to entertain it and ordered the clerk to proceed with the reading of the journals.

Mr. Dixon's resolution provided rules to govern the joint assembly. These included a daily rollcall and a recapitulation thereof, with a record of those present and absent; then a ballot for senator, to be followed by a recapitulation of the vote; a right of any member to vote or change his vote before final announcement of the vote, but not afterward; that until further orders by a majority vote of the joint assembly there shall be only one daily ballot, and prescribing the form of pairs.

After comparing the journals, Mr. Gobin announced that Mr. Quay was named for senator in the senate, but that there was no election in the house. The roll of the senate and house was called to ascertain the number of Senators and members present.

Mr. Flinn (Allegheny) claimed that it was his right to appeal from the chair's decision on the resolution offered by Mr. Dixon. Mr. Gobin claimed that nothing was in order but the calling of the roll on the United States senatorship.

Neither of the persons named having received a majority of the votes cast, Mr. Gobin announced that there was no election.

Representatives Cole and Duttera of Adams, who were absent the day before, voted for Jenks. Mr. Timlin of Lackawanna changed from Superior Court Judge Peter P. Smith of Scranton to Jenks. The Democrats voted solidly for Jenks. The absentees in the house were Messrs. Boyle of Luzerne and Brophy of Allegheny, Democrats, and Harold of Beaver, Republican. The absentees in the senate were Higgins of Schuylkill, Democrat, and Hawkins, Republican, of Washington, who has not qualified. A successor has not yet been chosen to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Gobin. J. F. Downing of Erie received two votes.

Jenks made a net gain of two votes over his vote of the day before. Dalzell and Stone each lost one vote. The votes cast for them the day before went to Mr. Downing. These were the only changes in the vote.

The detailed vote in joint assembly was as follows:

Mr. Grady moved to adjourn, as the result of the vote was announced. Mr. Gobin put the motion and declared the convention adjourned. Mr. Flinn called the yeas and nays, but the lieutenant governor declined to order the call and ruled that the assembly was adjourned. Mr. Flinn said he hoped all the legislators who were opposed to an adjournment would remain in the hall. Mr. Gobin left the chair and Speaker Farr took the gavel and called the house to order. There was nothing for the senators to do under the circumstances, but for the house to reconvene and adjourn. After the adjournment Mr. Flinn invited the legislators "opposed to the bulldozing tactics of the chair" to remain.

A meeting was called to order by Mr. Flinn and Ward R. Bliss of Delaware was chosen chairman. The Democrats and independent Republican senators and members participated in the meeting, also some men who voted for Quay.

Mr. Bliss announced that the meeting was called to protest against the rulings of Lieutenant Governor Gobin in the joint assembly. Representative Thomas J. Ford of Allegeny, Republican, and George R. Dixon, Democrat, of Elk, were elected secretaries. A roll was called and showed 135 present.

Mr. Flinn offered a motion that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to report resolutions to an adjourned meeting at 7:30 in the evening to take action against "being robbed of our rights." The motion was adopted.

Nesbit of Allegheny, Hersch and Yates of Philadelphia, Baldwin of Delaware and Mackey of Lackawanna, who voted for Mr. Quay, also took part in the meeting. The chair appointed the following committee to report the meeting: Senators Flinn and Sproul, Republicans; Heinle, Democrat; Representatives Young, Koontz, Republicans; Fow and Dixon, Democrats.

Mr. Baldwin of Delaware said if the meeting meant what Senator Flinn had said he was in sympathy with it. The meeting then adjourned.

ALMOST TO FINAL VOTE.

Nicaragua Canal Bill Came Close to It In the Senate—Bacon Spoke Against Expansion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The feature of the session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon (Dem., Ga.) in support of his resolutions declaring that the United States would not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Mr. Bacon is one of the orators of the senate and as he gave himself free rein, not confining himself to notes, he spoke strongly and effectively. His peroration, in which he pictured the horrors of some of England's methods of controlling her colonial subjects, was a beautiful and forceful bit of word painting.

Following Mr. Bacon's speech the Nicaraguan canal bill was taken up. Amendment after amendment was voted down until almost the last minute it seemed likely that a vote on the measure would be reached, but just as a final vote was about to be called for Mr. Allison (Rep., Ia.) offered an amendment providing that the secretary of the treasury should issue bonds to raise money with which to construct the canal.

The friends of the measure then consented to an adjournment.

The Paul Jones Sighted.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19.—There was rejoicing in the home of Thomas Taggart, mayor of this city, upon receipt of a telegram from the mayor, who is at Mobile, saying that the yacht Paul Jones had been sighted off the lighthouse. The relatives and friends of the mayor's daughter, Miss Florence, had abandoned hope of the boat's safety until the message from Mr. Taggart came.

COURT FOR EAGAN.

Members Announced From the War Department.

OTHERS MAY ALSO BE TRIED.

The Order Called For Eagan's Trial "and Such Others as May Be Brought Before It"—Merritt to Be at the Head. Prospective Arrest of Eagan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The detail for the courtmartial which is to try Commissary General Charles P. Eagan on charges growing out of his statements before the war investigation commission last week, in which he severely attacked General Miles was made public at the war department. The court will be made up of 13 army officers, of whom Major General Wesley Merritt will be at the head, and a judge advocate, and it is to meet in this city on Wednesday, the 25th inst., or as soon thereafter as practicable, this qualification being necessary because a number of the members are at distant points and will require some days to adjust their affairs and reach this city. All the officers composing the court, save one, are from the regular army, a number of whom, however, during the war accepted volunteer rank and still hold those commissions. Major General Butler is the only one who is not connected with the regular army.

The order promulgated was as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, Jan. 18, 1899.

The following order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

War Department, Washington, Jan. 18, 1899.

By direction of the president a general courtmartial is appointed to meet in this city at 10 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, Jan. 25, 1899, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the trial of Brigadier General Chas. P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, United States army, and such other persons as may be brought before it.

Detail for the court:

Major General Wesley Merritt, U. S. A.; Major General James F. Wade, U. S. Vols.; Major General Matthew C. Butler, U. S. Vols.; Major General Samuel B. M Young, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Royal T. Frank, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Alexander C. McW. Pennington, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General George M. Randall, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Jacob Kline, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Richard Comba, U. S. Vols.; Colonel Peter C. Hains, corps of engineers; Colonel George L. Gillespie, corps of engineers; Colonel Charles R. Suter, corps of engineers; Colonel Francis L. Guenther, Fourth artillery; Lieutenant Colonel George B. Davis, deputy judge advocate general, judge advocate of the court.

The court is empowered to proceed with the business before it with any number of members not less than the minimum prescribed by law.

Upon the final adjournment of the court the members will return to their proper stations.

(Signed) R. A. ALGER, Secretary of War.

The journeys required of the members of the court in complying with this order are necessary for the public service.

By order of the secretary of war.

(Signed) H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General.

General Corbin stated that the order for the appointment of the courtmartial would be delivered to General Eagan either last night or this morning. This, it is expected, will be done by an officer or an employe of the adjutant general's office. Its receipt and acknowledgment by the commissary general will be tantamount to the relief of that officer from his present duties, and he will turn over its affairs either to some one designated to act by the secretary of war or to the officer next in charge in the department.

It may be that General Eagan will not be placed under actual arrest and deprived of any of his liberties pending and during the trial, but will be subject only to constructive and technical arrest during that time.

MINE STRUGGLE LIKELY.

Scale Formulated by the Miners—Operators Will Make Much of West Virginia Situation.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 19.—Coal diggers of the various states have finally decided on the demands they will make on the operators. The scale committee appointed by them after several sessions, brought in a report which was subsequently adopted in executive session of the national organization. Some changes were made in the original report.

The demands will be for an advance of 7 cents per ton for run-of-mine coal, the screen proposition having been entirely ignored. A demand is also made for a proportionate advance for day labor. The working day shall consist of eight hours. The difference between pick and machine mining shall be 7 cents flat, based on the Pittsburg, Hocking Valley and Danville (Ills.) fields.

This is the report the operators will have to consider, and which they will make an attempt to turn down. The final report was reached after considerable argument and discussion. Miners from the various fields had grievances of all kinds, which the scale committee could not consider. The report was fully considered by the convention and discussed in all its phases.

Francis L. Robbins, the Pittsburg coal operator, gave the miners of the four competitive states notice that they would have to go against a strong argument so far as the work of organization of the craft in West Virginia since the last joint convention is concerned. It was a statement which indicates that the basis of argument of the operators against a higher rate of mining and one in favor of reduction will be based on the operations in West Virginia and the charge that the United Mine Workers of America failed to carry out their part of the contract.

The miners, on the other hand, gave tacit notice to the producers that they are a unit when vital questions affecting their interests are presented.

A BRIDGE RUINED.

A Broken Dam at Cleveland Endangered Big Plants--Delay to Street Traffic.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—High water caused the collape, one after the other, of the piers of the Wilson avenue bridge, a structure 700 feet long, that cost $350,000. A dam under the bridge gave away back of which was a long and wide body of water. The break allowed torrents to pour through, threatening many large plants. Thirty men were at work at the time in the artificial canal being sunk by the city to allow the pent-up water to escape. They were got to a place of safety with difficulty, barely in time to avoid the rush of waters.

As the day wore on the immense volume of water rushing out of the dam began to have its effect and the flood became perceptibly less. At noon the water had fallen 12 feet in the dam from its highest point, and it was then believed that the danger to the factories in the lower valley was practically over.

The dam was created by a roadway built across Kingsbury run many years ago. A high bridge spanning the valley at that point had just been completed, and it was this structure which was undermined and partly demolished by the flood. The culvert under the old roadway became clogged up during the recent heavy rains, causing an immense body of water to become dammed up, covering many acres.

New Officers Elected.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 19.—At the meeting of the state board of commerce the following officers were elected: President, E. M. Thresper, Dayton; vice president, O. A. Miller, Columbus; secretary, H. A. Griffin, Cleveland; treasurer, C. D. Firestone, Columbus. Resolutions on the death of Julius Dexter of Cincinnati, late president of the state board, were adopted.

Child Died of Burns.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—The 3-year-old son of George Mercer of New Cumberland was fatally burned by being pushed into a grate fire by a baby sister. The mother in rescuing the child had her hands burned. The little sufferer died.

Everett Again Elected.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Henry A. Everett was elected president of the Big Consolidated Street railway, a position from which he was ousted by Tom L. Johnson and Horace Andrews after the consolidation. The Everett people again control.

M'GRAW NOMINATED.

West Virginia Democrats Named Him as Their Candidate For United States Senator.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The political situation assumed a serious aspect by reason of the refusal of Governor Atkinson and the senate, which is Republican, to formally recognize the house. Though the governor was notified that it was organized and ready for business the governor had not transmitted his message, and there was no indication as to when he would do so. The senate persisted in adjourning each day immediately after convening, and this frustrated the efforts of the house committee to apprise it of the fact that the house is in session. A Republican leader in the house made the remark that in a few days there would be a house that the governor would recognize.

The Republicans expect to night caucus for the senatorial nomination. It is believed that several meetings will be necessary before they can arrive at a conclusion. Commissioner Scott and Governor Atkinson are the leading candidate,s but it is impossible to predict who will be the nominee. Dark horses are numerous.

The Democratic caucus nominated McGraw of Grafton for the United States senate. Only one ballot was taken. The vote stood: McGraw, 35; General C. C. Watts of Charleston, 5; ex-Congressman John D. Alderson of Green Brier, 2; ex-Governor E. W. Wilson, 1; Judge W. G. Bennett of Weston, 1.

Payne to Succeed Dingley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is little doubt that the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, made vacant by the death of Mr. Dingley, will be filled by Speaker Reed at the present session, without waiting for the next congress, and that the new chairman will be Representative S. E. Payne of New York.

Esterhazy Reached Paris.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Major Comte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy reached here to testify in the Dreyfus case.

THE TREATY VIOLATED

Action of German Consul In Samoa an Outrage.

BRITISH AND AMERICANS UNITE.

Former Landed Blue Jackets and Reseated the American Chief Justice, Ousted by the Bloody Battle Between Native Factions—Apia Burned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The situation in the Samoan islands is realized here to be full of gravity. For some past there has been an exchange of correspondence between the three governments, party to the treaty of Berlin, respecting the choice of a successor to the late King Malietoa and some friction developed owing to the strict adherence of the United States government to the terms of the treaty. The statements in the dispatch from Apia are not regarded here as conclusive, for the reason that they are in conflict with the provisions of the treaty.

If, as reported, Raffel, the president of the municipal council at Apia and German Consul Rose, have seized the supreme court and pronounced themselves practically dictators and it is said here that they have violated the treaty absolutely. The functions of the president of the municipal council are clearly defined by the treaty and the last advices received here were to the effect that President Raffel had been granted leave of absence and intended to visit New Zealand. It was also understood that his successor had been selected and it was thought was on his way to his post.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices received here said that Chief Justice Chambers (American), on Dec. 31, declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected king, in succession to the late King Malietoa. The chief justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected vice king. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus and declined to co-operate in the dispersal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2,000 men, well armed but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on Jan. 1.

Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chief sought refuge on the British warship and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise.

Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 men killed and wounded.

The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British ship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family went on board of her.

The followers of Mataafa looted and burned Apia, destroyed the plantations and pillaged considerably in the country.

The consuls later decided to recognize Mataafa and his chiefs as a provisional government, pending the receipt of instructions from the powers.

Afterward, Dr. Rafael and the German consul closed the supreme court, declaring that the power was vested in them. The British and American consuls then appealed to the captain of the British warship Porpoise, who landed a force of bluejackets, and Chief Justice Chambers, under their guard, took his seat.

Chamberlain Referred to Protests of United States and Britain In China.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, speaking at the banquet of the Wolverhampton chamber of commerce, in connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the representative of the United States.

"That, I think," he said, "a significant and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Anglo-Saxons which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficent results."

Bishop Hartzell Got African Grant.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church, on his way to Africa, was granted by Cecil Rhodes concessions of lands and buildings, and has been promised co-operation in their development, especially in establishing industrial missions among the natives.

Mr. Bliss announced that the meeting was called to protest against the rulings of Lieutenant Governor Gobin in the joint assembly. Representative Thomas J. Ford of Allegeny, Republican, and George R. Dixon, Democrat, of Elk, were elected secretaries. A roll was called and showed 135 present.

Mr. Flinn offered a motion that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to report resolutions to an adjourned meeting at 7:30 in the evening to take action against "being robbed of our rights." The motion was adopted.

Nesbit of Allegheny, Hersch and Yates of Philadelphia, Baldwin of Delaware and Mackey of Lackawanna, who voted for Mr. Quay, also took part in the meeting. The chair appointed the following committee to report the meeting: Senators Flinn and Sproul, Republicans; Heinle, Democrat; Representatives Young, Koontz, Republicans; Fow and Dixon, Democrats.

Mr. Baldwin of Delaware said if the meeting meant what Senator Flinn had said he was in sympathy with it. The meeting then adjourned.

Nicaragua Canal Bill Came Close to It In the Senate—Bacon Spoke Against Expansion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The feature of the session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon (Dem., Ga.) in support of his resolutions declaring that the United States would not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Mr. Bacon is one of the orators of the senate and as he gave himself free rein, not confining himself to notes, he spoke strongly and effectively. His peroration, in which he pictured the horrors of some of England's methods of controlling her colonial subjects, was a beautiful and forceful bit of word painting.

Following Mr. Bacon's speech the Nicaraguan canal bill was taken up. Amendment after amendment was voted down until almost the last minute it seemed likely that a vote on the measure would be reached, but just as a final vote was about to be called for Mr. Allison (Rep., Ia.) offered an amendment providing that the secretary of the treasury should issue bonds to raise money with which to construct the canal.

The friends of the measure then consented to an adjournment.

COURT FOR EAGAN.

Members Announced From the War Department.

OTHERS MAY ALSO BE TRIED.

The Order Called For Eagan's Trial "and Such Others as May Be Brought Before It"—Merritt to Be at the Head. Prospective Arrest of Eagan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The detail for the courtmartial which is to try Commissary General Charles P. Eagan on charges growing out of his statements before the war investigation commission last week, in which he severely attacked General Miles was made public at the war department. The court will be made up of 13 army officers, of whom Major General Wesley Merritt will be at the head, and a judge advocate, and it is to meet in this city on Wednesday, the 25th inst., or as soon thereafter as practicable, this qualification being necessary because a number of the members are at distant points and will require some days to adjust their affairs and reach this city. All the officers composing the court, save one, are from the regular army, a number of whom, however, during the war accepted volunteer rank and still hold those commissions. Major General Butler is the only one who is not connected with the regular army.

The order promulgated was as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, Jan. 18, 1899.

The following order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

War Department, Washington, Jan. 18, 1899.

The court is empowered to proceed with the business before it with any number of members not less than the minimum prescribed by law.

Upon the final adjournment of the court the members will return to their proper stations.

(Signed) R. A. ALGER, Secretary of War.

The journeys required of the members of the court in complying with this order are necessary for the public service.

By order of the secretary of war.

(Signed) H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General.

General Corbin stated that the order for the appointment of the courtmartial would be delivered to General Eagan either last night or this morning. This, it is expected, will be done by an officer or an employe of the adjutant general's office. Its receipt and acknowledgment by the commissary general will be tantamount to the relief of that officer from his present duties, and he will turn over its affairs either to some one designated to act by the secretary of war or to the officer next in charge in the department.

It may be that General Eagan will not be placed under actual arrest and deprived of any of his liberties pending and during the trial, but will be subject only to constructive and technical arrest during that time.

MINE STRUGGLE LIKELY.

Scale Formulated by the Miners—Operators Will Make Much of West Virginia Situation.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 19.—Coal diggers of the various states have finally decided on the demands they will make on the operators. The scale committee appointed by them after several sessions, brought in a report which was subsequently adopted in executive session of the national organization. Some changes were made in the original report.

The demands will be for an advance of 7 cents per ton for run-of-mine coal, the screen proposition having been entirely ignored. A demand is also made for a proportionate advance for day labor. The working day shall consist of eight hours. The difference between pick and machine mining shall be 7 cents flat, based on the Pittsburg, Hocking Valley and Danville (Ills.) fields.

This is the report the operators will have to consider, and which they will make an attempt to turn down. The final report was reached after considerable argument and discussion. Miners from the various fields had grievances of all kinds, which the scale committee could not consider. The report was fully considered by the convention and discussed in all its phases.

Francis L. Robbins, the Pittsburg coal operator, gave the miners of the four competitive states notice that they would have to go against a strong argument so far as the work of organization of the craft in West Virginia since the last joint convention is concerned. It was a statement which indicates that the basis of argument of the operators against a higher rate of mining and one in favor of reduction will be based on the operations in West Virginia and the charge that the United Mine Workers of America failed to carry out their part of the contract.

The miners, on the other hand, gave tacit notice to the producers that they are a unit when vital questions affecting their interests are presented.

A BRIDGE RUINED.

A Broken Dam at Cleveland Endangered Big Plants—Delay to Street Traffic.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—High water caused the collape, one after the other, of the piers of the Wilson avenue bridge, a structure 700 feet long, that cost $350,000. A dam under the bridge gave away back of which was a long and wide body of water. The break allowed torrents to pour through, threatening many large plants. Thirty men were at work at the time in the artificial canal being sunk by the city to allow the pent-up water to escape. They were got to a place of safety with difficulty, barely in time to avoid the rush of waters.

As the day wore on the immense volume of water rushing out of the dam began to have its effect and the flood became perceptibly less. At noon the water had fallen 12 feet in the dam from its highest point, and it was then believed that the danger to the factories in the lower valley was practically over.

The dam was created by a roadway built across Kingsbury run many years ago. A high bridge spanning the valley at that point had just been completed, and it was this structure which was undermined and partly demolished by the flood. The culvert under the old roadway became clogged up during the recent heavy rains, causing an immense body of water to become dammed up, covering many acres.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 19.—At the meeting of the state board of commerce the following officers were elected: President, E. M. Thresper, Dayton; vice president, O. A. Miller, Columbus; secretary, H. A. CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Henry A. Everett was elected president of the Big Consolidated Street railway, a position from which he was ousted by Tom L. Johnson and Horace Andrews after the consolidation. The Everett people again control.

M'GRAW NOMINATED.

West Virginia Democrats Named Him as Their Candidate For United States Senator.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The political situation assumed a serious aspect by reason of the refusal of Governor Atkinson and the senate, which is Republican, to formally recognize the house. Though the governor was notified that it was organized and ready for business the governor had not transmitted his message, and there was no indication as to when he would do so. The senate persisted in adjourning each day immediately after convening, and this frustrated the efforts of the house committee to apprise it of the fact that the house is in session. A Republican leader in the house made the remark that in a few days there would be a house that the governor would recognize.

The Republicans expect to night caucus for the senatorial nomination. It is believed that several meetings will be necessary before they can arrive at a conclusion. Commissioner Scott and Governor Atkinson are the leading candidates, but it is impossible to predict who will be the nominee. Dark horses are numerous.

The Democratic caucus nominated McGraw of Grafton for the United States senate. Only one ballot was taken. The vote stood: McGraw, 35; General C. C. Watts of Charleston, 5; ex-Congressman John D. Alderson of Green Brier, 2; ex-Governor E. W. Wilson, 1; Judge W. G. Bennett of Weston, 1.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is little doubt that the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, made vacant by the death of Mr. Dingley, will be filled by Speaker Reed at the present session, without waiting for the next congress, and that the new chairman will be Representative S. E. Payne of New York.

THE TREATY VIOLATED

Action of German Consul In Samoa an Outrage.

BRITISH AND AMERICANS UNITE.

Former Landed Blue Jackets and Reseated the American Chief Justice, Ousted by the Bloody Battle Between Native Factions—Apia Burned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The situation in the Samoan islands is realized here to be full of gravity. For some past there has been an exchange of correspondence between the three governments, party to the treaty of Berlin, respecting the choice of a successor to the late King Malietoa and some friction developed owing to the strict adherence of the United States government to the terms of the treaty. The statements in the dispatch from Apia are not regarded here as conclusive, for the reason that they are in conflict with the provisions of the treaty.

If, as reported, Raffel, the president of the municipal council at Apia and German Consul Rose, have seized the supreme court and pronounced themselves practically dictators and it is said here that they have violated the treaty absolutely. The functions of the president of the municipal council are clearly defined by the treaty and the last advices received here were to the effect that President Raffel had been granted leave of absence and intended to visit New Zealand. It was also understood that his successor had been selected and it was thought was on his way to his post.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices received here said that Chief Justice Chambers (American), on Dec. 31, declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected king, in succession to the late King Malietoa. The chief justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected vice king. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus and declined to co-operate in the dispersal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2,000 men, well armed but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on Jan. 1.

Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chief sought refuge on the British warship and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise.

Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 men killed and wounded.

The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British ship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family went on board of her.

The followers of Mataafa looted and burned Apia, destroyed the plantations and pillaged considerably in the country.

The consuls later decided to recognize Mataafa and his chiefs as a provisional government, pending the receipt of instructions from the powers.

Afterward, Dr. Rafael and the German consul closed the supreme court, declaring that the power was vested in them. The British and American consuls then appealed to the captain of the British warship Porpoise, who landed a force of bluejackets, and Chief Justice Chambers, under their guard, took his seat.

Chamberlain Referred to Protests of United States and Britain In China.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, speaking at the banquet of the Wolverhampton chamber of commerce, in connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the representative of the United States.

"That, I think," he said, "a significant and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Anglo-Saxons which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficent results."

Bishop Hartzell Got African Grant.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church, on his way to Africa, was granted by Cecil Rhodes concessions of lands and buildings, and has been promised co-operation in their development, especially in establishing industrial missions among the natives.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

14TH YEAR. NO. 189. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1899. TWO CENTS

QUAY AGAIN SHORT.

His Vote Remained at 112 In Joint Session.

A SMALL GAIN MADE BY JENKS.

A Ruling of Gobin Inflamed Flinn, Who Inaugurated a Fight, Joined by Democrats, Anti-Quay Republicans and Some of the Quay Men.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—The joint ballot for United States senator showed little change from the figures of the day before when the houses voted separately. It resulted as follows: M. S. Quay, Rep., 112; Charles E. Smith, Rep., 1; George A. Jenks, Dem., 84; Charles Tubbs, Rep., 4; John Dalzell, Rep., 15; E. A. Irwin, Rep., 3; Charles W. Stone, Rep., 9; John Stewart, Rep., 3; George F. Huff, Rep., 5; J. F. Downing, Rep., 2; Charles E. Rice, Rep., 2; G. A. Grow, Rep., 1.

Votes cast, 248; necessary to choice, 125.

The session was, however, productive of a stormy scene, in which Senator Flinn was the chief actor. He vigorously fought the adjournment announced by Lieutenant Governor Gobin and called a meeting to "oppose the bulldozing tactics of the chair." This was attended by the Independent Republicans and the Democrats and a committee was appointed to report resolutions of protest at a night session.

When the house assembled for the balloting the first clash came when Representative Dixon of Elk offered a resolution fixing the rules governing the joint assembly. Mr. Gobin declared nothing was in order but comparing the journals of the senate and house at the proceedings of the day before on the senatorship. Mr. Dixon appealed from decision, but the chair refused to entertain it and ordered the clerk to proceed with the reading of the journals.

Mr. Dixon's resolution provided rules to govern the joint assembly. These included a daily rollcall and a recapitulation thereof, with a record of those present and absent; then a ballot for senator, to be followed by a recapitulation of the vote; a right of any member to vote or change his vote before final announcement of the vote, but not afterward; that until further orders by a majority vote of the joint assembly there shall be only one daily ballot, and prescribing the form of pairs.

After comparing the journals, Mr. Gobin announced that Mr. Quay was named for senator in the senate, but that there was no election in the house. The roll of the senate and house was called to ascertain the number of Senators and members present.

Mr. Flinn (Allegheny) claimed that it was his right to appeal from the chair's decision on the resolution offered by Mr. Dixon. Mr. Gobin claimed that nothing was in order but the calling of the roll on the United States senatorship.

Neither of the persons named having received a majority of the votes cast, Mr. Gobin announced that there was no election.

Representatives Cole and Duttera of Adams, who were absent the day before, voted for Jenks. Mr. Timlin of Lackawanna changed from Superior Court Judge Peter P. Smith of Scranton to Jenks. The Democrats voted solidly for Jenks. The absentees in the house were Messrs. Boyle of Luzerne and Brophy of Allegheny, Democrats, and Harold of Beaver, Republican. The absentees in the senate were Higgins of Schuylkill, Democrat, and Hawkins, Republican, of Washington, who has not qualified. A successor has not yet been chosen to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Gobin. J. F. Downing of Erie received two votes.

Jenks made a net gain of two votes over his vote of the day before. Dalzell and Stone each lost one vote. The votes cast for them the day before went to Mr. Downing. These were the only changes in the vote.

The detailed vote in joint assembly was as follows:

Mr. Grady moved to adjourn, as the result of the vote was announced. Mr. Gobin put the motion and declared the convention adjourned. Mr. Flinn called the yeas and nays, but the lieutenant governor declined to order the call and ruled that the assembly was adjourned. Mr. Flinn said he hoped all the legislators who were opposed to an adjournment would remain in the hall. Mr. Gobin left the chair and Speaker Farr took the gavel and called the house to order. There was nothing for the senators to do under the circumstances, but for the house to reconvene and adjourn. After the adjournment Mr. Flinn invited the legislators "opposed to the bulldozing tactics of the chair" to remain.

A meeting was called to order by Mr. Flinn and Ward R. Bliss of Delaware was chosen chairman. The Democrats and independent Republican senators and members participated in the meeting, also some men who voted for Quay.

Mr. Bliss announced that the meeting was called to protest against the rulings of Lieutenant Governor Gobin in the joint assembly. Representative Thomas J. Ford of Allegeny, Republican, and George R. Dixon, Democrat, of Elk, were elected secretaries. A roll was called and showed 135 present.

Mr. Flinn offered a motion that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to report resolutions to an adjourned meeting at 7:30 in the evening to take action against "being robbed of our rights." The motion was adopted.

Mr. Baldwin of Delaware said if the meeting meant what Senator Flinn had said he was in sympathy with it. The meeting then adjourned.

M'GRAW NOMINATED.

West Virginia Democrats Named Him as Their Candidate For United States Senator.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The political situation assumed a serious aspect by reason of the refusal of Governor Atkinson and the senate, which is Republican, to formally recognize the house. Though the governor was notified that it was organized and ready for business the governor had not transmitted his message, and there was no indication as to when he would do so. The senate persisted in adjourning each day immediately after convening, and this frustrated the efforts of the house committee to apprise it of the fact that the house is in session. A Republican leader in the house made the remark that in a few days there would be a house that the governor would recognize.

The Republicans expect to night caucus for the senatorial nomination. It is believed that several meetings will be necessary before they can arrive at a conclusion. Commissioner Scott and Governor Atkinson are the leading candidates but it is impossible to predict who will be the nominee. Dark horses are numerous.

The Democratic caucus nominated McGraw of Grafton for the United States senate. Only one ballot was taken. The vote stood: McGraw, 35; General C. C. Watts of Charleston, 5; ex-Congressman John D. Alderson of Green Brier, 2; ex-Governor E. W. Wilson, 1; Judge W. G. Bennett of Weston, 1.

Payne to Succeed Dingley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is little doubt that the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, made vacant by the death of Mr. Dingley, will be filled by Speaker Reed at the present session, without waiting for the next congress, and that the new chairman will be Representative S. E. Payne of New York.

THE TREATY VIOLATED

Action of German Consul In Samoa an Outrage.

BRITISH AND AMERICANS UNITE.

Former Landed Blue Jackets and Reseated the American Chief Justice, Ousted by the Bloody Battle Between Native Factions—Apia Burned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The situation in the Samoan islands is realized here to be full of gravity. For some past there has been an exchange of correspondence between the three governments, party to the treaty of Berlin, respecting the choice of a successor to the late King Malietoa and some friction developed owing to the strict adherence of the United States government to the terms of the treaty. The statements in the dispatch from Apia are not regarded here as conclusive, for the reason that they are in conflict with the provisions of the treaty.

If, as reported, Raffel, the president of the municipal council at Apia and German Consul Rose, have seized the supreme court and pronounced themselves practically dictators and it is said here that they have violated the treaty absolutely. The functions of the president of the municipal council are clearly defined by the treaty and the last advices received here were to the effect that President Raffel had been granted leave of absence and intended to visit New Zealand. It was also understood that his successor had been selected and it was thought was on his way to his post.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices received here said that Chief Justice Chambers (American), on Dec. 31, declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected king, in succession to the late King Malietoa. The chief justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected vice king. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus and declined to co-operate in the dispersal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2,000 men, well armed but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on Jan. 1.

Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chief sought refuge on the British warship and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise.

Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 men killed and wounded.

The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British ship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family went on board of her.

The followers of Mataafa looted and burned Apia, destroyed the plantations and pillaged considerably in the country.

The consuls later decided to recognize Mataafa and his chiefs as a provisional government, pending the receipt of instructions from the powers.

Afterward, Dr. Rafael and the German consul closed the supreme court, declaring that the power was vested in them. The British and American consuls then appealed to the captain of the British warship Porpoise, who landed a force of bluejackets, and Chief Justice Chambers, under their guard, took his seat.

Chamberlain Referred to Protests of United States and Britain In China.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, speaking at the banquet of the Wolverhampton chamber of commerce, in connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the representative of the United States.

"That, I think," he said, "a significant and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Anglo-Saxons which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficent results."

Bishop Hartzell Got African Grant.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church, on his way to Africa, was granted by Cecil Rhodes concessions of lands and buildings, and has been promised co-operation in their development, especially in establishing industrial missions among the natives.

SULTAN OF THE SULUS.

Picturesque Potentate the United States Has Acquired.

HISTORY OF HIS ISLAND DOMAIN.

Spain Did Not Bother His Majesty Much and Paid Him $2,400 a Year to See to Things—Religion of the Islands Is Mohammedan—Manners and Customs of the Natives.

When the American peace commissioners in the negotiations at Paris insisted on the cession of the Sulu archipelago to this country, the United States acquired a very picturesque and possibly unruly vassal in the person of his highness the sultan of Sulu, together with his harem of sultanas and something more than 100,000 Mussulman subjects. Thus for the first time is the Mohammedan religion brought under the protection of the stars and stripes.

The Sulu archipelago over which this Mussulman monarch holds sway is the southernmost part of the remarkable Philippine group, lying east of Borneo, which was at one time under his highness' jurisdiction. Parts of Mindanao and Palaman still render allegiance to his highness, two vassal sultans in the former paying tribute to the sultan of the Sulus as their feudal lord. Although for nearly three centuries the Spaniards waged war against the sultan of the Sulus not until 1877 did this potentate acknowledge the sovereignty of Spain in his dominions, which was also formally recognized by England and Germany in a protocol signed March 11, 1877. No military post was established in the archipelago until 1880, when a convict corps took possession. Two years later garrisons were established in Bongao and Siassi, two small islands of the Sulu group.

In 1887 the island of Sulu was partly conquered by General Arolas, who was lately in command of the Spanish garrison at Havana. In this conquest the sultan did not fare so badly, for he secured the title of excellency and an annual pension of $2,400, besides a renewal of the decree of 1877 exempting the entire population of the archipelago from taxation for a second period of ten years, from 1887. Spain has never been able to levy tribute upon the sultan of the Sulus. In fact, Spanish jurisdiction in Mindanao and the Sulus has always been of the most limited description. Mr. John Foreman, the English traveler who lately gave information regarding the Philippines to the American peace commissioners, observes on this point:

"It is at great sacrifice that the Spaniards can retain the little possession which they have acquired in the south, and frequent acts of violence are still perpetrated on them by the turbulent Mussulmans, who virtually refuse to recognize other rights than those of their sultans, to whom they give allegiance. Indeed it may be unhesitatingly asserted that the Spaniards hold no more domain in Mindanao and the sultanate of Sulu than that of a day's march from their respective garrisons, and in Mindanao, in particular, not one-hundredth part of the territory."

His highness the sultan resides at Maybun, in the island of Sulu, the largest in the archipelago. It is about 34 miles long and 12 broad. There are 140 or 150 islands in the sultanate, 80 or 90 of which are uninhabited. Sulu, the Spanish capital of the group, was fortified and put in good sanitary order some years ago by General Parrado, recently stationed at Havana and a member of the evacuation commission. This officer in the early eighties was governor of Sulu. He erected land defenses and furnished the town with a pure water supply. His government was one of martial law. The sultan, at Maybun on the southern coast, ruled without Spanish interference.

A visit to this potentate is described by Mr. Foreman, who found the palace a large and well constructed building of wood and bamboo, with a spacious vestibule decorated with shrubs and tropical plants. He was received by three chiefs, who conducted him to the throneroom. Mr. Foreman says:

"His excellency was dressed in very tight silk trousers, fastened partly up the sides with showy chased gold or gilt buttons—a short eton cut olive green jacket with an infinity of buttons, white socks, ornamented slippers, a red sash around his waist, a kind of turban and a creese at his side. One could almost have imagined him to be a Spanish bullfighter with an oriental finish off. We all bowed low, and the sultan, surrounded by his sultanas, put his hands to his temples, and on lowering them he bowed at the same time. There was a pause, and the sultan motioned to us to repose on cushions on the floor, and we did so. The cushions, covered with rich silk, were very comfortable. Servants in fantastic costumes were constantly in attendance serving betel nut.

"One sultana was fairly pretty, or had been so, but the remainder were heavy, languid and lazy in their movements, and their teeth, dyed black, did not embellish their personal appearance. They all wore light colored dual garments of great width and light bodices. Their coiffure was carefully finished, but unfortunately a part of the forehead was hidden by an ugly fringe of hair."

The sultanate is a hereditary monarchy under the Salic law, which excludes women from the throne. His highness is a Mussulman by faith, acknowledging the supreme religious authority of the sultan of Turkey, and being under the religious obligation of all Mussulmans of having to make a pilgrimage to Mecca. In order that he may do so one of his ministers, of whom there are three, is named as regent to act as ruler in the event of his absence. The other members of the sultan's cabinet are the minister of war and the minister of justice and master of the ceremonies.

The sultan is supreme in his authority over the lives and property of his subjects, but is advised in matters of state by a council of elders. Under him, but not fully acknowledging his authority, are a number of petty chiefs, called dattos, who collect tribute in his name and pay over to the royal treasury, not that of Spain, but that of the sultan, such portion of their revenues as remains after satisfying their own wants.

The Sulu islanders and the inhabitants of Mindanao will be the first Mussulmans ever under the jurisdiction of the stars and stripes. In the last treaty between Spain and the sultan of Sulu it was especially agreed that the Mussulmans should not be persecuted for their religion. Efforts by Jesuits to Christianize the Mussulman population of Sulu and Mindanao have steadily resulted in failure, the missionaries, as a rule, having been put to death.

The highest religious office is that of cherif, which is a hereditary post, carrying with it temporal power. His subordinates in the hierarchy are known as pandita, a title having the significance of priest. The pandita wields large influence alike in worldly and spiritual affairs, performing the office of physician and officiating at the religious exercises of his faith.

Public worship is held on Friday, when worshipers are called to the mosque by beating upon a box or hollow piece of wood. Solemn ceremonials mark births and deaths. At the funeral of a datto or chief the panditas intone a weird chant, accompanied with cymbals and gongs and the loud lamentations of the mourners. This ceremony is followed by a feast, after which the body, attired in white, is sprinkled with salt and camphor and laid away in a wooden coffin, the place of burial being marked by a wooden or stone slab inscribed in Arabic. A shell full of water is placed on the grave.

The Sulu islanders follow the habits of Mussulmans in the matter of dress. Favorite colors among the women are scarlet and green. They wear a baggy dual nether garment and a tight fitting bodice and sleeves, showing the contour of the figure. On the head they place a narrow cloth sack open at the sides and reaching nearly to the feet, the lower part of which is caught up and held under the arm. Like orientals generally they are fond of jewelry and wear many finger rings of seashell and metal, as well as large and flashy earrings. Their hair is arranged in a coil on the top of the head. Male dress is equally bright in color, consisting of close fitting breeches and waistcoat, both profusely decorated with buttons, and a jacket reaching to the hips. A turban serves for headdress. Chiefs add many additional adornments to their costumes.

Of the Sulus it has been said that "they are of quick perception, audacious, extremely sober, ready to promise everything and do nothing, vindictive and highly suspicious of a stranger's intentions. They are very long suffering in adversity, hesitating in attack, and the bravest of the brave in defense." Hardy in constitution, their bodies are agile and active, and they have cultivated to a high degree the art of diving and remaining under water, an accomplishment which serves them in pearl fishing, one of their chief industries. Their complexion is dark bronze, their eyes piercing, foreheads low, hair lank and worn hanging down the neck. Agriculture and manufactures are in a primitive state. Arms, such as swords, lances, daggers, assegais and coats of mail impervious to hand weapons, are made at home. Trade is confined principally to pearls, shells and shark fins. Many rifles have been imported into the archipelago from foreign sources. All male inhabitants above 16 years are compelled to undergo military service. The language used is a mixture of Sanskrit and Arabic.

For two centuries and a half the Mussulmans of Mindanao and the Sulus were pirates and a source of terror to the entire Philippine group. Their war junks, though never exceeding seven tons in size, were skillfully navigated and able to make long voyages. Murder, rapine and the slave trade were the objects of the piratical expeditions sent to Negros, Panay, and even to Luzon prior to the development of steam navigation. Countless expeditions against these pirates were organized by the Spaniards at great cost, but it was not until 1860, when 18 steam gunboats were sent to the Philippines, that Mussulman piracy, except in the immediate neighborhood of their own islands, was completely ezxtinguished.

Zamboanga, the strongly fortified port and naval station on the southern coast of Mindanao, to which the Spanish forces recently retreated from Iloilo, was long the headquarters of Spanish operations against the piratical Moslems. It was in Spanish possession for more than two centuries, and until very lately the only Spanish outpost held in the Mussulman territory.—New York Sun.

How Doctors Differ.

"For ten solid years," said a New Orleans broker, "I lived in perpetual apprehension of sudden death. A doctor in Texas told me—confound his picture—that I had valvular heart disease, and if I wanted to stay on earth I must avoid every species of excitement. I did my best to follow his advice, but that miserable specter was at my elbow day and night and embittered my whole existence. I don't believe I am a coward, but the thought preyed on me until I began to fear for my sanity.

"At last, after all these years of infinite precaution, I went to a first class specialist to find out how much longer I'd last and was assured that I hadn't one single symptom of the malady. Talk about removing a mountain from a man! That assurance knocked off an entire range. It changed the color of the universe in a twinkling, and I was so happy I wanted to just throw up my hat and yell.

"That was a couple of years ago, and I have enjoyed myself tiptop ever since up to one day last week, when I happened to be chatting with the specialist and remarked that I'd like to murder that sawbones in Texas. 'I don't blame you,' he said. 'That man had no right to tell you that you had heart disease. If I had found you right at death's door, I certainly would never have let you know it.' Now, by Jove, I don't know who or what to believe and am drifting back to the old state of uncertainty. I wish I lived in a cannibal island and had never heard of doctors."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Milk and Mathematics.

When Thomas drove up to deliver the usual quart of white mixture, the gentleman of the house kindly inquired, "Thomas, how many quarts of milk do you deliver daily to your customers?"

"Ninety-one, sir."

"And how many cows have you?"

"Nine, sir."

The gentleman made some remarks about an early winter and the state of the roads, and then asked, "Thomas, how much milk per day do your cows average?"

"Seven quarts, sir."

"Ah, um!" said the gentleman, as he moved off.

Thomas looked after him, scratched his head, and all at once grew pale as he pulled out a short pencil and began to figure on the wagon cover: "Nine cows is nine, and I set down seven quarts under the cows and multiply. That's 63 quarts of milk. I told him I sold 91 quarts per day. Sixty-three from 91 leaves 28 and none to carry. Now, where do I get the rest of the milk? I'll be hanged if I haven't given myself away to one of my best customers by leaving a big cavity in these figures to be filled with water!"—London Sketch.

Italy In London.

Many Londoners have visited the Italian district, which lies in the neighborhood of Theobald's road and Hatton Garden, and some with inquiring minds have strolled up Leather lane and watched the Italian ice cream venders and fortune telling women with pretty love birds, intermingled with the dirty noisy, street hawkers, common to all London slums. It is amazing to learn how these Italians crowd together in the poky little houses of the courts and alleys. Generally a house is hired by an old padrone, who sublets to as many of his countrymen as he can respectably squeeze in. The cellars are utilized as sleeping apartments, and in the morning as many as 20, even 30, men will emerge from the bowels of the earth, blinking and winking in the daylight after a night spent in the cellars under one small dwelling house. A whole family, consisting of a husband and wife and eight or nine fanciulli of various ages, often sleep in one small garret or cellar.—Ludgate Magazine.

A French doctor has invented an electric helmet, inside of which is a small motor that vibrates strips of steel, the motor making 660 turns per minute. This whizzing is supposed to cure nervous headache and put the sufferer to sleep.—San Francisco Chronicle.

DRUMMER IN HARD LUCK

He Lost His Grip and His Pocketbook.

THEN A BAD CHECK CAME

Leaving Him Destitute—He Remained Here For Several Days Waiting For His Wife to Send Him the Amount Required to Get Him Out of Town.

A traveling salesman left the city last night after an experience that cost him a considerable amount of money and his peace of mind during several days.

It seems the traveler came to the city after an unusually successful trip through the western part of Pennsylvania. He had some money, but his funds were not by any means equal to what he usually carried and he expected a check here. The check was awaiting him, but upon examination he found it was unsigned. The worthless paper was returned and with it went a request for money. Then the salesman went through the city in search of business. Upon his return to the hotel he discovered that his pocketbook had been stolen or he had lost it, and he was almost penniless. That calamity had its influence upon him, but he did not give up. The landlord did not ask for his account, and the salesman again went after business. This time he lost his grip, and his heart was broken. He could do nothing more, and so gave up the battle. A few days later the valise was found in the lower part of town, but it contained nothing. The thief who had stolen it from the spot where the absent minded traveler had put it down, had taken everything.

There was nothing left for the unhappy salesman to do but wait until his money arrived, and when it came he left in a hurry saying East Liverpool was certainly his Jonah.

IT WAS SETTLED.

The Husband Promised to Be Good and His Wife Returned.

The story is related that the wife of a well known resident quietly left her home a week ago, and going to her parents informed them she would live with her husband no more as he was a drunkard. She related that he had come home and abused her, and after he had gone to sleep she left the house.

Because of the prominence of the families concerned efforts were made to settle the matter, and upon the husband promising to behave himself his wife returned to her home.

LIVERPOOL POTTERY.

The Demand For It at Present Is Very Good.

"I don't know when the demand for pottery was so good, provided we except the boom of the fall of 1897," said a manufacturer to the NEWS REVIEW. "The mail order business is something remarkable, and it has been so for several weeks. The fact that little ware has been shipped since the first of the year and times are good enough to make the consumer buy is the secret of the think. I feel satisfied we will have a good year."

STILL SLIPPING

Although a Freeze May Help the Lisbon Road.

The slip on the Lisbon road extended a few feet farther yesterday, but the cold weather did its part in keeping much of the earth from coming down. The damage there is by no means at an end, and parties acquainted with the extent of the slip believe the city will have a bill of no mean size to pay before the matter is ended. When the frost goes out of the ground something interesting can be expected from that part of town.

On the River.

The river continues to fall, but there is still an excellent stage of water for both towboats and packets. The marks at the wharf this morning registered 17.6 feet and falling.

The packets are running on good time and each boat is carrying considerable freight. The Queen City for Cincinnati and the Avalon for Parkersburg were down last night and the Ben Hur went up. The Greenwood and Lorena were due up today and the Ben Hur are down tonight.

The Joseph B. Williams took an immense tow south today. It consisted of 18 coalboats and 2 flats. All for New Orleans.

Business at the wharf is increasing over what it has been during the past few weeks.

—Edward Lewis has returned from Wheeling where he spent a week visiting friends.

What nobler, better ambition can a young couple have than to live loving, helpful lives, and then, in a green old age, look back over a life that has been mutually self-sacrificing, useful and successful? The one great stumbling-block that stands between most married couples and this ideal married career is ill-health. If both husband and wife would take proper care of their health, there would be more hale, hearty and happy old people in the world. If, when a man suffers from the little ills of life, he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the chances are that he will avoid the big and fatal illnesses. This great medicine gives a man a healthy hunger, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and builds firm, muscular, healthy flesh tissue.

It is an old saying that women are hard to kill. There is some truth in this, as far as the majority of illnesses are concerned. There is one class of disorders, however, that quickly undermine any woman's general health. No woman can retain her strength who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the sensitive organs concerned, in a natural, soothing way. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It prepares them to bear the burdens of maternity. It is the greatest of nerve tonics. The woman who uses it will bear healthy, happy children, and live to a ripe old age.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. By all medicine dealers.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

This Is an Old Question and Has to Be Answered Candidly by East Liverpool People.

What do the people of East Liverpool think of the statement published below? Can any citizen ask for more convincing proof of the merits claimed by the article under discussion? What is there lacking in such evidence? The most superficial investigation will corroborate it. It is East Liverpool proof for East Liverpool people. It is not the style of proof other medicinal preparations offer, viz., Kalamazoo, Mich., proof for East Liverpool people. The most exacting cannot wish for anything more. Read this:

Mrs. A. Searight, No. 162 High street, East End, says: "I had a severe attack of kidney complaint, which confined me to my bed for about three months. It affected my entire system, and while I was able to be about I never got completely rid of it. I suffered almost constantly with a dull, heavy pain across the loins; if I sat for any length of time, or did anything that brought me into a stooping position and attempted to rise, there was a sharp shooting pain in the small of my back which felt as if a knife or other sharp instrument had pierced me. I could not sleep when I went to bed, expecting to get rest. I was often robbed of it by nervousness and pain in my back. I have risen unrefreshed and more tired and worn out than I was when I retired. I had taken so much medicine without being cured that I was discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills presented themselves in the form of a newspaper account. I got some at the W. & W. pharmacy. They proved to be the proper remedy for me. Their mild and gentle influence gradually reduced the pain in my back and strengthened the weakness. All the symptoms having disappeared, I rested well at night and gained in strength and weight every day. Of course I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills; it would not be right to refuse to, for the benefit of other sufferers."

Maori Women.

The Maori women of Australasia have their rights—flourishing ones. Generally they have little voice or choice in the selection of their first husbands, but they may, and frequently do, change them. A woman may trade her husband without so much as a comment from the public, without the slightest smudge on her good name, and it is nothing to his discredit either. Courtship is always brief and does not often preface marriage. The Maoris, however, love to repeat oriental love tales and sing love songs. Maori widows not infrequently commit suicide on the graves of their husbands and are honored for doing so, as in China. Divorce is simple; it needs no revenue, employs no officers. He turns her out of doors, and both are free to remarry. This is all. Girls are often betrothed irrevocably from infancy.

"One sultana was fairly pretty, or had been so, but the remainder were heavy, languid and lazy in their movements, and their teeth, dyed black, did not embellish their personal appearance. They all wore light colored dual garments of great width and light bodices. Their coiffure was carefully finished, but unfortunately a part of the forehead was hidden by an ugly fringe of hair."

The sultanate is a hereditary monarchy under the Salic law, which excludes women from the throne. His highness is a Mussulman by faith, acknowledging the supreme religious authority of the sultan of Turkey, and being under the religious obligation of all Mussulmans of having to make a pilgrimage to Mecca. In order that he may do so one of his ministers, of whom there are three, is named as regent to act as ruler in the event of his absence. The other members of the sultan's cabinet are the minister of war and the minister of justice and master of the ceremonies.

The sultan is supreme in his authority over the lives and property of his subjects, but is advised in matters of state by a council of elders. Under him, but not fully acknowledging his authority, are a number of petty chiefs, called dattos, who collect tribute in his name and pay over to the royal treasury, not that of Spain, but that of the sultan, such portion of their revenues as remains after satisfying their own wants.

The Sulu islanders and the inhabitants of Mindanao will be the first Mussulmans ever under the jurisdiction of the stars and stripes. In the last treaty between Spain and the sultan of Sulu it was especially agreed that the Mussulmans should not be persecuted for their religion. Efforts by Jesuits to Christianize the Mussulman population of Sulu and Mindanao have steadily resulted in failure, the missionaries, as a rule, having been put to death.

The highest religious office is that of cherif, which is a hereditary post, carrying with it temporal power. His subordinates in the hierarchy are known as pandita, a title having the significance of priest. The pandita wields large influence alike in worldly and spiritual affairs, performing the office of physician and officiating at the religious exercises of his faith.

Public worship is held on Friday, when worshipers are called to the mosque by beating upon a box or hollow piece of wood. Solemn ceremonials mark births and deaths. At the funeral of a datto or chief the panditas intone a weird chant, accompanied with cymbals and gongs and the loud lamentations of the mourners. This ceremony is followed by a feast, after which the body, attired in white, is sprinkled with salt and camphor and laid away in a wooden coffin, the place of burial being marked by a wooden or stone slab inscribed in Arabic. A shell full of water is placed on the grave.

The Sulu islanders follow the habits of Mussulmans in the matter of dress. Favorite colors among the women are scarlet and green. They wear a baggy dual nether garment and a tight fitting bodice and sleeves, showing the contour of the figure. On the head they place a narrow cloth sack open at the sides and reaching nearly to the feet, the lower part of which is caught up and held under the arm. Like orientals generally they are fond of jewelry and wear many finger rings of seashell and metal, as well as large and flashy earrings. Their hair is arranged in a coil on the top of the head. Male dress is equally bright in color, consisting of close fitting breeches and waistcoat, both profusely decorated with buttons, and a jacket reaching to the hips. A turban serves for headdress. Chiefs add many additional adornments to their costumes.

Of the Sulus it has been said that "they are of quick perception, audacious, extremely sober, ready to promise everything and do nothing, vindictive and highly suspicious of a stranger's intentions. They are very long suffering in adversity, hesitating in attack, and the bravest of the brave in defense." Hardy in constitution, their bodies are agile and active, and they have cultivated to a high degree the art of diving and remaining under water, an accomplishment which serves them in pearl fishing, one of their chief industries. Their complexion is dark bronze, their eyes piercing, foreheads low, hair lank and worn hanging down the neck. Agriculture and manufactures are in a primitive state. Arms, such as swords, lances, daggers, assegais and coats of mail impervious to hand weapons, are made at home. Trade is confined principally to pearls, shells and shark fins. Many rifles have been imported into the archipelago from foreign sources. All male inhabitants above 16 years are compelled to undergo military service. The language used is a mixture of Sanskrit and Arabic.

For two centuries and a half the Mussulmans of Mindanao and the Sulus were pirates and a source of terror to the entire Philippine group. Their war junks, though never exceeding seven tons in size, were skillfully navigated and able to make long voyages. Murder, rapine and the slave trade were the objects of the piratical expeditions sent to Negros, Panay, and even to Luzon prior to the development of steam navigation. Countless expeditions against these pirates were organized by the Spaniards at great cost, but it was not until 1860, when 18 steam gunboats were sent to the Philippines, that Mussulman piracy, except in the immediate neighborhood of their own islands, was completely ezxtinguished.

Zamboanga, the strongly fortified port and naval station on the southern coast of Mindanao, to which the Spanish forces recently retreated from Iloilo, was long the headquarters of Spanish operations against the piratical Moslems. It was in Spanish possession for more than two centuries, and until very lately the only Spanish outpost held in the Mussulman territory.—New York Sun.

How Doctors Differ.

"For ten solid years," said a New Orleans broker, "I lived in perpetual apprehension of sudden death. A doctor in Texas told me—confound his picture—that I had valvular heart disease, and if I wanted to stay on earth I must avoid every species of excitement. I did my best to follow his advice, but that miserable specter was at my elbow day and night and embittered my whole existence. I don't believe I am a coward, but the thought preyed on me until I began to fear for my sanity.

"At last, after all these years of infinite precaution, I went to a first class specialist to find out how much longer I'd last and was assured that I hadn't one single symptom of the malady. Talk about removing a mountain from a man! That assurance knocked off an entire range. It changed the color of the universe in a twinkling, and I was so happy I wanted to just throw up my hat and yell.

"That was a couple of years ago, and I have enjoyed myself tiptop ever since up to one day last week, when I happened to be chatting with the specialist and remarked that I'd like to murder that sawbones in Texas. 'I don't blame you,' he said. 'That man had no right to tell you that you had heart disease If I had found you right at death's door, I certainly would never have let you know it.' Now, by Jove, I don't know who or what to believe and am drifting back to the old state of uncertainty. I wish I lived in a cannibal island and had never heard of doctors."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Milk and Mathematics.

When Thomas drove up to deliver the usual quart of white mixture, the gentleman of the house kindly inquired, "Thomas, how many quarts of milk do you deliver daily to your customers?"

"Ninety-one, sir."

"And how many cows have you?"

"Nine, sir."

The gentleman made some remarks about an early winter and the state of the roads, and then asked, "Thomas, how much milk per day do your cows average?"

"Seven quarts, sir."

"Ah, um!" said the gentleman, as he moved off.

Thomas looked after him, scratched his head, and all at once grew pale as he pulled out a short pencil and began to figure on the wagon cover: "Nine cows is nine, and I set down seven quarts under the cows and multiply. That's 63 quarts of milk. I told him I sold 91 quarts per day. Sixty-three from 91 leaves 28 and none to carry. Now, where do I get the rest of the milk? I'll be hanged if I haven't given myself away to one of my best customers by leaving a big cavity in these figures to be filled with water!"—London Sketch.

Italy In London.

Many Londoners have visited the Italian district, which lies in the neighborhood of Theobald's road and Hatton Garden, and some with inquiring minds have strolled up Leather lane and watched the Italian ice cream venders and fortune telling women with pretty love birds, intermingled with the dirty, noisy, street hawkers, common to all London slums. It is amazing to learn how these Italians crowd together in the poky little houses of the courts and alleys. Generally a house is hired by an old padrone, who sublets to as many of his countrymen as he can respectably squeeze in. The cellars are utilized as sleeping apartments, and in the morning as many as 20, even 30, men will emerge from the bowels of the earth, blinking and winking in the daylight after a night spent in the cellars under one small dwelling house. A whole family, consisting of a husband and wife and eight or nine fanciulli of various ages, often sleep in one small garret or cellar.—Ludgate Magazine.

DRUMMER IN HARD LUCK

He Lost His Grip and His Pocketbook.

THEN A BAD CHECK CAME

Leaving Him Destitute—He Remained Here For Several Days Waiting For His Wife to Send Him the Amount Required to Get Him Out of Town.

A traveling salesman left the city last night after an experience that cost him a considerable amount of money and his peace of mind during several days.

It seems the traveler came to the city after an unusually successful trip through the western part of Pennsylvania. He had some money, but his funds were not by any means equal to what he usually carried and he expected a check here. The check was awaiting him, but upon examination he found it was unsigned. The worthless paper was returned and with it went a request for money. Then the salesman went through the city in search of business. Upon his return to the hotel he discovered that his pocketbook had been stolen or he had lost it, and he was almost penniless. That calamity had its influence upon him, but he did not give up. The landlord did not ask for his account, and the salesman again went after business. This time he lost his grip, and his heart was broken. He could do nothing more, and so gave up the battle. A few days later the valise was found in the lower part of town, but it contained nothing. The thief who had stolen it from the spot where the absent minded traveler had put it down, had taken everything.

There was nothing left for the unhappy salesman to do but wait until his money arrived, and when it came he left in a hurry saying East Liverpool was certainly his Jonah.

IT WAS SETTLED.

The Husband Promised to Be Good and His Wife Returned.

The story is related that the wife of a well known resident quietly left her home a week ago, and going to her parents informed them she would live with her husband no more as he was a drunkard. She related that he had come home and abused her, and after he had gone to sleep she left the house.

Because of the prominence of the families concerned efforts were made to settle the matter, and upon the husband promising to behave himself his wife returned to her home.

LIVERPOOL POTTERY.

The Demand For It at Present Is Very Good.

"I don't know when the demand for pottery was so good, provided we except the boom of the fall of 1897," said a manufacturer to the NEWS REVIEW. "The mail order business is something remarkable, and it has been so for several weeks. The fact that little ware has been shipped since the first of the year and times are good enough to make the consumer buy is the secret of the think. I feel satisfied we will have a good year."

STILL SLIPPING

Although a Freeze May Help the Lisbon Road.

The slip on the Lisbon road extended a few feet farther yesterday, but the cold weather did its part in keeping much of the earth from coming down. The damage there is by no means at an end, and parties acquainted with the extent of the slip believe the city will have a bill of no mean size to pay before the matter is ended. When the frost goes out of the ground something interesting can be expected from that part of town.

On the River.

The river continues to fall, but there is still an excellent stage of water for both towboats and packets. The marks at the wharf this morning registered 17.6 feet and falling.

The packets are running on good time and each boat is carrying considerable freight. The Queen City for Cincinnati and the Avalon for Parkersburg were down last night and the Ben Hur went up. The Greenwood and Lorena were due up today and the Ben Hur are down tonight.

The Joseph B. Williams took an immense tow south today. It consisted of 18 coalboats and 2 flats. All for New Orleans.

Business at the wharf is increasing over what it has been during the past few weeks.

—Edward Lewis has returned from Wheeling where he spent a week visiting friends.

What nobler, better ambition can a young couple have than to live loving, helpful lives, and then, in a green old age, look back over a life that has been mutually self-sacrificing, useful and successful? The one great stumbling-block that stands between most married couples and this ideal married career is ill-health. If both husband and wife would take proper care of their health, there would be more hale, hearty and happy old people in the world. If, when a man suffers from the little ills of life, he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the chances are that he will avoid the big and fatal illnesses. This great medicine gives a man a healthy hunger, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and builds firm, muscular, healthy flesh tissue.

It is an old saying that women are hard to kill. There is some truth in this, as far as the majority of illnesses are concerned. There is one class of disorders, however, that quickly undermine any woman's general health. No woman can retain her strength who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the sensitive organs concerned, in a natural, soothing way. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It prepares them to bear the burdens of maternity. It is the greatest of nerve tonics. The woman who uses it will bear healthy, happy children, and live to a ripe old age.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. By all medicine dealers.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

This Is an Old Question and Has to Be Answered Candidly by East Liverpool People.

What do the people of East Liverpool think of the statement published below? Can any citizen ask for more convincing proof of the merits claimed by the article under discussion? What is there lacking in such evidence? The most superficial investigation will corroborate it. It is East Liverpool proof for East Liverpool people. It is not the style of proof other medicinal preparations offer, viz., Kalamazoo, Mich., proof for East Liverpool people. The most exacting cannot wish for anything more. Read this:

Mrs. A. Searight, No. 162 High street, East End, says: "I had a severe attack of kidney complaint, which confined me to my bed for about three months. It affected my entire system, and while I was able to be about I never got completely rid of it. I suffered almost constantly with a dull, heavy pain across the loins; if I sat for any length of time, or did anything that brought me into a stooping position and attempted to rise, there was a sharp shooting pain in the small of my back which felt as if a knife or other sharp instrument had pierced me. I could not sleep when I went to bed, expecting to get rest. I was often robbed of it by nervousness and pain in my back. I have risen unrefreshed and more tired and worn out than I was when I retired. I had taken so much medicine without being cured that I was discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills presented themselves in the form of a newspaper account. I got some at the W. & W. pharmacy. They proved to be the proper remedy for me. Their mild and gentle influence gradually reduced the pain in my back and strengthened the weakness. All the symptoms having disappeared, I rested well at night and gained in strength and weight every day. Of course I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills; it would not be right to refuse to, for the benefit of other sufferers."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Maori Women.

The Maori women of Australasia have their rights—flourishing ones. Generally they have little voice or choice in the selection of their first husbands, but they may, and frequently do, change them. A woman may trade her husband without so much as a comment from the public, without the slightest smudge on her good name, and it is nothing to his discredit either. Courtship is always brief and does not often preface marriage. The Maoris, however, love to repeat oriental love tales and sing love songs. Maori widows not infrequently commit suicide on the graves of their husbands and are honored for doing so, as in China. Divorce is simple; it needs no revenue, employs no officers. He turns her out of doors, and both are free to remarry. This is all. Girls are often betrothed irrevocably from infancy.

SULTAN OF THE SULUS.

Picturesque Potentate the United States Has Acquired.

HISTORY OF HIS ISLAND DOMAIN.

Spain Did Not Bother His Majesty Much and Paid Him $2,400 a Year to See to Things—Religion of the Islands Is Mohammedan—Manners and Customs of the Natives.

When the American peace commissioners in the negotiations at Paris insisted on the cession of the Sulu archipelago to this country, the United States acquired a very picturesque and possibly unruly vassal in the person of his highness the sultan of Sulu, together with his harem of sultanas and something more than 100,000 Mussulman subjects. Thus for the first time is the Mohammedan religion brought under the protection of the stars and stripes.

The Sulu archipelago over which this Mussulman monarch holds sway is the southernmost part of the remarkable Philippine group, lying east of Borneo, which was at one time under his highness' jurisdiction. Parts of Mindanao and Palaman still render allegiance to his highness, two vassal sultans in the former paying tribute to the sultan of the Sulus as their feudal lord. Although for nearly three centuries the Spaniards waged war against the sultan of the Sulus not until 1877 did this potentate acknowledge the sovereignty of Spain in his dominions, which was also formally recognized by England and Germany in a protocol signed March 11, 1877. No military post was established in the archipelago until 1880, when a convict corps took possession. Two years later garrisons were established in Bongao and Siassi, two small islands of the Sulu group.

In 1887 the island of Sulu was partly conquered by General Arolas, who was lately in command of the Spanish garrison at Havana. In this conquest the sultan did not fare so badly, for he secured the title of excellency and an annual pension of $2,400, besides a renewal of the decree of 1877 exempting the entire population of the archipelago from taxation for a second period of ten years, from 1887. Spain has never been able to levy tribute upon the sultan of the Sulus. In fact, Spanish jurisdiction in Mindanao and the Sulus has always been of the most limited description. Mr. John Foreman, the English traveler who lately gave information regarding the Philippines to the American peace commissioners, observes on this point:

"It is at great sacrifice that the Spaniards can retain the little possession which they have acquired in the south, and frequent acts of violence are still perpetrated on them by the turbulent Mussulmans, who virtually refuse to recognize other rights than those of their sultans, to whom they give allegiance. Indeed it may be unhesitatingly asserted that the Spaniards hold no more domain in Mindanao and the sultanate of Sulu than that of a day's march from their respective garrisons, and in Mindanao, in particular, not one-hundredth part of the territory."

His highness the sultan resides at Maybun, in the island of Sulu, the largest in the archipelago. It is about 34 miles long and 12 broad. There are 140 or 150 islands in the sultanate, 80 or 90 of which are uninhabited. Sulu, the Spanish capital of the group, was fortified and put in good sanitary order some years ago by General Parrado, recently stationed at Havana and a member of the evacuation commission. This officer in the early eighties was governor of Sulu. He erected land defenses and furnished the town with a pure water supply. His government was one of martial law. The sultan, at Maybun on the southern coast, ruled without Spanish interference.

A visit to this potentate is described by Mr. Foreman, who found the palace a large and well constructed building of wood and bamboo, with a spacious vestibule decorated with shrubs and tropical plants. He was received by three chiefs, who conducted him to the throneroom. Mr. Foreman says:

"His excellency was dressed in very tight silk trousers, fastened partly up the sides with showy chased gold or gilt buttons—a short eton cut olive green jacket with an infinity of buttons, white socks, ornamented slippers, a red sash around his waist, a kind of turban and a creese at his side. One could almost have imagined him to be a Spanish bullfighter with an oriental finish off. We all bowed low, and the sultan, surrounded by his sultanas, put his hands to his temples, and on lowering them he bowed at the same time. There was a pause, and the sultan motioned to us to repose on cushions on the floor, and we did so. The cushions, covered with rich silk, were very comfortable. Servants in fantastic costumes were constantly in attendance serving betel nut.

"One sultana was fairly pretty, or had been so, but the remainder were heavy, languid and lazy in their movements, and their teeth, dyed black, did not embellish their personal appearance. They all wore light colored dual garments of great width and light bodices. Their coiffure was carefully finished, but unfortunately a part of the forehead was hidden by an ugly fringe of hair."

"I don't know when the demand for pottery was so good, provided we except the boom of the fall of 1897," said a manufacturer to the NEWS REVIEW. "The mail order business is something remarkable, and it has been so for several weeks. The fact that little ware has been shipped since the first of the year and times are good enough to make the consumer buy is the secret of the think. I feel satisfied we will have a good year."

STILL SLIPPING

Although a Freeze May Help the Lisbon Road.

The slip on the Lisbon road extended a few feet farther yesterday, but the cold weather did its part in keeping much of the earth from coming down. The damage there is by no means at an end, and parties acquainted with the extent of the slip believe the city will have a bill of no mean size to pay before the matter is ended. When the frost goes out of the ground something interesting can be expected from that part of town.

On the River.

The river continues to fall, but there is still an excellent stage of water for both towboats and packets. The marks at the wharf this morning registered 17.6 feet and falling.

The packets are running on good time and each boat is carrying considerable freight. The Queen City for Cincinnati and the Avalon for Parkersburg were down last night and the Ben Hur went up. The Greenwood and Lorena were due up today and the Ben Hur are down tonight.

The Joseph B. Williams took an immense tow south today. It consisted of 18 coalboats and 2 flats. All for New Orleans.

Business at the wharf is increasing over what it has been during the past few weeks.

—Edward Lewis has returned from Wheeling where he spent a week visiting friends.

What nobler, better ambition can a young couple have than to live loving, helpful lives, and then, in a green old age, look back over a life that has been mutually self-sacrificing, useful and successful? The one great stumbling-block that stands between most married couples and this ideal married career is ill-health. If both husband and wife would take proper care of their health, there would be more hale, hearty and happy old people in the world. If, when a man suffers from the little ills of life, he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the chances are that he will avoid the big and fatal illnesses. This great medicine gives a man a healthy hunger, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and builds firm, muscular, healthy flesh tissue.

It is an old saying that women are hard to kill. There is some truth in this, as far as the majority of illnesses are concerned. There is one class of disorders, however, that quickly undermine any woman's general health. No woman can retain her strength who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the sensitive organs concerned, in a natural, soothing way. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It prepares them to bear the burdens of maternity. It is the greatest of nerve tonics. The woman who uses it will bear healthy, happy children, and live to a ripe old age.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. By all medicine dealers.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

This Is an Old Question and Has to Be Answered Candidly by East Liverpool People.

What do the people of East Liverpool think of the statement published below? Can any citizen ask for more convincing proof of the merits claimed by the article under discussion? What is there lacking in such evidence? The most superficial investigation will corroborate it. It is East Liverpool proof for East Liverpool people. It is not the style of proof other medicinal preparations offer, viz., Kalamazoo, Mich., proof for East Liverpool people. The most exacting cannot wish for anything more. Read this:

Mrs. A. Searight, No. 162 High street, East End, says: "I had a severe attack of kidney complaint, which confined me to my bed for about three months. It affected my entire system, and while I was able to be about I never got completely rid of it. I suffered almost constantly with a dull, heavy pain across the loins; if I sat for any length of time, or did anything that brought me into a stooping position and attempted to rise, there was a sharp shooting pain in the small of my back which felt as if a knife or other sharp instrument had pierced me. I could not sleep when I went to bed, expecting to get rest. I was often robbed of it by nervousness and pain in my back. I have risen unrefreshed and more tired and worn out than I was when I retired. I had taken so much medicine without being cured that I was discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills presented themselves in the form of a newspaper account. I got some at the W. & W. pharmacy. They proved to be the proper remedy for me. Their mild and gentle influence gradually reduced the pain in my back and strengthened the weakness. All the symptoms having disappeared, I rested well at night and gained in strength and weight every day. Of course I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills; it would not be right to refuse to, for the benefit of other sufferers."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Maori Women.

The Maori women of Australasia have their rights—flourishing ones. Generally they have little voice or choice in the selection of their first husbands, but they may, and frequently do, change them. A woman may trade her husband without so much as a comment from the public, without the slightest smudge on her good name, and it is nothing to his discredit either. Courtship is always brief and does not often preface marriage. The Maoris, however, love to repeat oriental love tales and sing love songs. Maori widows not infrequently commit suicide on the graves of their husbands and are honored for doing so, as in China. Divorce is simple; it needs no revenue, employs no officers. He turns her out of doors, and both are free to remarry. This is all. Girls are often betrothed irrevocably from infancy.

OPPOSED TO A PARDON

Remonstrance Is Being Circulated In Wellsville.

ALSO SIGNED IN THIS CITY

There Were Forty Names on the List Yesterday, Some of Them Being Liverpool People—The Document Is Being Quietly Passed Around.

The effort being made by the friends of Jesse McGregor to secure his release from the Ohio penitentiary will not be allowed to pass without a remonstrance.

It has been learned that the paper had its origin in Wellsville, where it was quietly passed around until it contained 40 names. Then some Liverpool people were asked to place their names on the document, and it was done yesterday evening. The men who had the matter in charge made the statement to a well known Liverpool man that they had made excellent progress. He refused to give the names of the local men who had signed the document.

It will be remembered that McGregor's father recently circulated a petition asking the son's pardon, and it was well signed not only in this place but in Wellsville, where the crime for which the man is serving a life sentence was committed. It is not known whether the circulators of the remonstrance were friends of the dead woman.

RAIDED A CROWD.

Officer McMillan Was After Boys Who Play Football.

Yesterday afternoon Officer McMillan made a raid upon a crowd of boys who were playing football in the alley back of the Central building.

There were about 25 boys present when the officer appeared, and the sight of him caused them to run in as many directions. The officer captured a rubber ball, and after giving several boys a severe lecture took the ball to city hall, where it will be kept.

It is estimated that no less than 10 footballs have been captured by the officers since last fall and taken to the mayor's office.

Elizabeth Cromwell.

Cromwell legends are so ubiquitous in England that it is a real relief to lay one's hand upon a bit of solid fact relating either to the protector or his family. Elizabeth, the second and favorite daughter of Cromwell, married John Claypole of Northborough, and appears to have spent a considerable portion of her 12 years of wedded life in his substantial fourteenth century house. Carlyle asserts Elizabeth Claypole to have been "a graceful, brave and amiable woman," and of her home that it is "now ruined—patched into a farmhouse."

The second statement is not characterized by his usual accuracy, and the first probably needs some modification, for Elizabeth Claypole is credited with some turning of her head over her father's elevation, and at a wedding feast is reported to have exclaimed, when asked why the wives of the major generals were absent, "I'll warrant you, washing their dishes at home, as they used to do." Not a particularly "amiable" sentence that.

Cromwell seems to have had some insight of her little weakness. "Tell her," he wrote once, "to take heed of a departing heart and of being cozened with worldly vanities and worldly company, which, I doubt, she is too subject to." It is agreed by most authorities that John Claypole himself was little enough of a Puritan, but let it stand to his credit that, after Oliver died, he provided a haven for his widow for the rest of her life in this manor house.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Barbers on the Ocean.

One of the most important persons on board a well equipped ocean liner is the barber. If he is gifted with a good business instinct, he is in a position to make a good deal of money.

To the average man shaving while at sea is a difficult and hazardous operation. He therefore calls into requisition the services of the ship's barber, a man who by long training is qualified to wield the razor with skill and safety, no matter how much the vessel rolls or pitches.

He is always one of the most heavily "tipped" officials on the ship. If the ship travels on a route with interesting ports of call, the ship's barber makes it his business to lay in a stock of native knickknacks and curios of all kinds.

The inexperienced traveler is naturally a little suspicious of the native peddlers who swarm on board with their wares directly the ship is at anchor. He prefers to purchase his mementos of foreign travel of the barber, who, having bought his stock at wholesale rates, is able to retail the various articles to passengers at prices little if at all higher than those charged by the native tradesman.—Exchange.

Goldsmith's Actor.

Lord Nugent was one evening very eloquent to Goldsmith in praise of M (a bad actor). "But, my lord," said Goldsmith, "you must allow he treads the stage very ill—he waddles." "Waddles?" said Lord Nugent. "Yes, he waddles like a goose. Why, you know we call him Goose M." "Well, and then you know, when he endeavors to express strong passion he bellows." "Bellows?" said Lord Nugent. "To be sure he does—bellows like a bull. Why, we call him Bull M." "Well, then," continued Goldsmith, pursuing his triumph, "his voice breaks and he croaks." "Croaks?" said Lord Nugent. "Why, the fellow croaks like a frog. We call him Frog M. But M. is a good actor." "Why, yes," said Goldsmith, "barring the goose, and the bull, and the frog, and a few other things I could mention, and not wishing to speak ill of my neighbors, I will allow M. is a good actor."

He is always one of the most heavily "tipped" officials on the ship. If the ship travels on a route with interesting ports of call, the ship's barber makes it his business to lay in a stock of native knickknacks and curios of all kinds.

The inexperienced traveler is naturally a little suspicious of the native peddlers who swarm on board with their wares directly the ship is at anchor. He prefers to purchase his mementos of foreign travel of the barber, who, having bought his stock at wholesale rates, is able to retail the various articles to passengers at prices little if at all higher than those charged by the native tradesman.—Exchange

Goldsmith's Actor.

Lord Nugent was one evening very eloquent to Goldsmith in praise of M (a bad actor). "But, my lord," said Goldsmith, "you must allow he treads the stage very ill—he waddles." "Waddles?" said Lord Nugent. "Yes, he waddles like a goose. Why, you know we call him Goose M." "Well, and then you know, when he endeavors to express strong passion he bellows." "Bellows?" said Lord Nugent "To be sure he does—bellows like a bull. Why, we call him Bull M." "Well, then," continued Goldsmith, pursuing his triumph, "his voice breaks and he croaks." "Croaks?" said Lord Nugent "Why, the fellow croaks like a frog We call him Frog M But M is a good actor."

"Why, yes," said Goldsmith, "barring the goose, and the bull, and the frog, and a few other things I could mention, and not wishing to speak ill of my neighbors, I will allow M. is a good actor."

CONGRESS is talking at a great rate, but for some reason senators and representatives do not seem to be busily engaged in the manufacture of history.

THE claim of some Democrats that Secretary Alger must resign is premature. He still has a part of his original foundation upon which he can stand. When that is gone the time will have come for him to step down and out.

IN his Denver speech Colonel Bryan depended much upon the Bible for his strong points, intertwining politics in such manner as to make his hearers wonder whether they were attending a revival meeting or aiding by their presence in booming a candidate.

THE queen regent of Spain seems to have had enough of war with America, and is willing to have the treaty ratified. In this the lady not only displays remarkable good judgment, but sets an example for some of her medal bedecked statesmen to follow.

THE anti-expansionists are using every argument at their disposal to convince the public that it is right to haul down the Stars and Stripes from the place they have won in the Philippines. Yet some of these men opposed Grover Cleveland during the Hawaiian controversy a few years ago. They need a few lessons in consistency.

THE action of the government in cleaning Cuban cities will not only have a civilizing influence on the natives, but will assure a reasonable degree of health for those Americans who will be sent there to carry on the business of American capital being invested almost every day in the island. Americans cannot live in the filthy towns which seem to have been a creation of Spain.

THE question of geographical location seems to be taking some part in the discussion respecting the gubernatorial candidate of the Republican party. General Grosvenor is opposed in some sections because he like Governor Bushnell resides beyond the center of the state. Perhaps that should have some bearing on the matter, but just now it seems as though the ability of the candidate to govern and not his place of residence should be the first consideration.

ONLY GOOD MEN.

Only a few months will elapse until the Republicans of East Liverpool will select candidates for council, and upon the wisdom of the choice made at the primaries depends the success of the party. Only good men are wanted. Those who have axes to grind, by representing some corporation or a collection of individuals, should not even be considered. It is too early as yet to predict whether any attempt will be made to inflict such a combination upon the public, but if it should be done every candidate of that character should be defeated at the primaries. That is the surest way of bringing victory to the party on election day. Look over the list carefully before election day, and do the city a service by supporting only those men who will do their duty by the people should they be given the honor they seek.

A HOT FIGHT ON ELKIN.

Finally Confirmed by the Senate—Magee Gave Him Strong Support. Rapped Hastings.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—There was a bitter fight in the senate over the nomination of John P. Elkin of Indiana as attorney general, but in the end both he and W. W. Griest of Lancaster, the new secretary of the commonwealth, were confirmed.

A vote was taken on a motion by Flinn to consider nothing but Griest's appointment, but it was defeated by a vote of 30 to 15. The original motion to consider both appointments was adopted by a vote of 32 to 13.

At one point Mr. Henry charged that Elkin had been removed from a state office for malfeasance in office.

The chair called Mr. Henry to order.

Mr. Henry continued and said that Mr. Elkin had been connected with the famous indemnity bond and for this he had been removed as deputy attorney general.

Mr. Magee came to Mr. Elkin's rescue and made a speech, which was heartily applauded by the Quay senators. "As far as this indemnity bond is concerned," said Mr. Magee, "it was a vicious habit of long standing and one from which the administration which expired yesterday (Tuesday) was not free. [Applause.] In 1895, there were more legislative employes engaged than was provided for by law. In 1897 the legislature appropriated money for this extra help and Governor Hastings, the man who was instrumental in removing Mr. Elkin as deputy attorney general, approved that bill."

He then defended Elkin's personal character and spoke of his struggle as a boy against poverty and infirmity. Elkin, he said, committed an error of judgment.

Mr. Osborn and others defended Mr. Elkin and said he had been removed from office through factional politics, but that his personal integrity had never been questioned. Mr. Flinn ended the debate by saying that Mr. Elkin was not dishonest, that he was a foolish man.

A vote on the question of confirmation revealed the fact that 33 senators voted affimatively and 13 negatively.

TREATY MIGHT BE MODIFIED.

Foreign Minister of Spain Favors Waiting Action of Senate.

MADRID, Jan. 19.—No date has yet been fixed for the meeting of the cortes, but it will probably come together two days after the ratification of the treaty by the United States senate. This is the course advocated by Duke Almodovar de Rio, minister for foreign affairs, on the ground that the senate "may yet introduce modifications into the treaty in the articles dealing with the Philippines."

Pacific Cable Bill Debated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The committee on interstate and foreign commerce had the right of way in the house and succeeded in passing quite a number of bills of minor importance, most of which authorized the construction of lighthouses, fog signals, etc. Then the bill to grant the Pacific Cable company a subsidy of $100,000 a year for 20 years for the construction and operation of a cable was called up and a very spirited debate followed. The opposition was headed by Mr. Corliss (Rep., Mich.), who advocated the construction of a government cable.

QUEERLY BUILT GIANT.

Strange Habits and Enormous Appetite of a Minnesota Youth.

There passed away recently in Madelia, Minn., a young man who had lived a most remarkable life. James S. McIndoo, aged 18 years, died. He was born at Crescent, Iroquois county, Ills., on the 5th day of July, 1880. A normal child at birth, he remained so until 7 years old, then he began to grow rapidly.

This continued until at the time of his death he measured 7 feet 3 inches in height, 4 feet 3 inches around the chest, 4 feet 1 inch around the waist, 4 feet 6 inches around the hips and 4 feet 8 inches around the points of the shoulders. He weighed 325 pounds, wore a No. 24 shoe and a No. 9 hat, measuring 2 feet 3 inches around the head. He could span 13½ inches with his hand, and his feet each measured 7½ inches broad and were 16 inches long. His feet and hands were a little larger in proportion than his body, he having larger feet perhaps than any one else.

The habits of the young man were as odd as his figure, and he required an extra large meal every 20 hours and wanted to sleep for 15 or 20 hours and remain awake the same length of time. His appetite was very great, and he could eat as much as two laboring men. At times he would eat a peck of apples or a basket of grapes and think nothing of it. He had never shed his "baby" teeth, although 18 years old, and his aspirations and hopes were those of a 10-year-old boy. Still he is said to have had quite a genius for making things, having made a violin on which he learned to play quite well. His education nevertheless was poor, owing to his weak eyes.

Since last spring he had traveled with one of the large circuses, but on Nov. 24 he returned to Madelia in poor health, and on the next day was taken very sick, and from that time to the time of his death he remained unconscious. The cause of death was a clot of blood on the brain. Taken altogether, James McIndoo was one of the queerest built persons that ever lived in the state of Minnesota—that is, taken as an afterbirth prodigy. The parents of the queer youth are of ordinary build, and he seemed as strange to them as he did to the rest of the people. He was of Scotch-Irish descent.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A Friend of Baseball Players.

The late Miss May Hillerich, bookkeeper of a firm famed for their baseball bats, was known personally by every player in the League. She was a young woman of unusually bright mind. President Pullman said of her: "The death of Miss Hillerich will cast a gloom over the entire baseball fraternity. She knew all the players, entered into all their joys with spirit, sympathized with them in their woes and gave them words of friendly encouragement. There was no one else like her."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dewey's Expert Diplomacy.

Many have wondered how Dewey could have handled so skillfully the diplomatic questions that confronted him at that time. A HOT FIGHT ON ELKIN.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—There was a bitter fight in the senate over the nomination of John P. Elkin of Indiana as attorney general, but in the end both he and W. W. Griest of Lancaster, the new secretary of the commonwealth, were confirmed.

A vote was taken on a motion by Flinn to consider nothing but Griest's appointment, but it was defeated by a vote of 30 to 15. The original motion to consider both appointments was adopted by a vote of 32 to 13.

Strange Habits and Enormous Appetite of a Minnesota Youth.

There passed away recently in Madelia, Minn., a young man who had lived a most remarkable life. James S. McIndoo, aged 18 years, died. This continued until at the time of his death he measured 7 feet 3 inches in height, 4 feet 3 inches around the chest, 4 feet 1 inch around the waist, 4 feet 6 inches around the hips and 4 feet 8 inches around the points of the shoulders. He weighed 325 pounds, wore a No. 24 shoe and a No. 9 hat, measuring 2 feet 3 inches around the head. He could span 13½ inches with his hand, and his feet each measured 7½ inches broad and were 16 inches long. His feet and hands were a little larger in proportion than his body, he having larger feet perhaps than any one else.

The habits of the young man were as odd as his figure, and he required an extra large meal every 20 hours and wanted to sleep for 15 or 20 hours and remain awake the same length of time. His appetite was very great, and he could eat as much as two laboring men. At times he would eat a peck of apples or a basket of grapes and think nothing of it. He had never shed his "baby" teeth, although 18 years old, and his aspirations and hopes were those of a 10-year-old boy. UNION PAPERS.

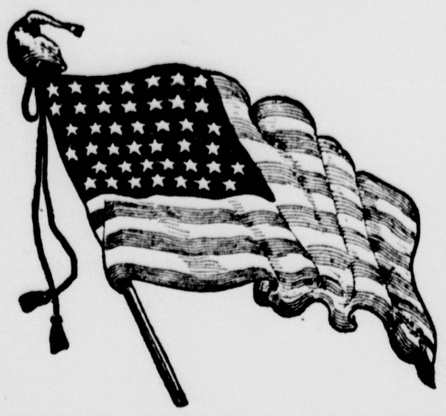
All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns



CONGRESS is talking at a great rate, but for some reason senators and representatives do not seem to be busily engaged in the manufacture of history.

THE claim of some Democrats that Secretary Alger must resign is premature. He still has a part of his original foundation upon which he can stand. When that is gone the time will have come for him to step down and out.

IN his Denver speech Colonel Bryan depended much upon the Bible for his strong points, intertwining politics in such manner as to make his hearers wonder whether they were attending a revival meeting or aiding by their presence in booming a candidate.

THE queen regent of Spain seems to have had enough of war with America, and is willing to have the treaty ratified. In this the lady not only displays remarkable good judgment, but sets an example for some of her medal bedecked statesmen to follow.

THE anti-expansionists are using every argument at their disposal to convince the public that it is right to haul down the Stars and Stripes from the place they have won in the Philippines. Yet some of these men opposed Grover Cleveland during the Hawaiian controversy a few years ago. They need a few lessons in consistency.

THE action of the government in cleaning Cuban cities will not only have a civilizing influence on the natives, but will assure a reasonable degree of health for those Americans who will be sent there to carry on the business of American capital being invested almost every day in the island. Americans cannot live in the filthy towns which seem to have been a creation of Spain.

THE question of geographical location seems to be taking some part in the discussion respecting the gubernatorial candidate of the Republican party. General Grosvenor is opposed in some sections because he like Governor Bushnell resides beyond the center of the state. Perhaps that should have some bearing on the matter, but just now it seems as though the ability of the candidate to govern and not his place of residence should be the first consideration.

ONLY GOOD MEN.

Only a few months will elapse until the Republicans of East Liverpool will select candidates for council, and upon the wisdom of the choice made at the primaries depends the success of the party. Only good men are wanted. Those who have axes to grind, by representing some corporation or a collection of individuals, should not even be considered. It is too early as yet to predict whether any attempt will be made to inflict such a combination upon the public, but if it should be done every candidate of that character should be defeated at the primaries. That is the surest way of bringing victory to the party on election day. Look over the list carefully before election day, and do the city a service by supporting only those men who will do their duty by the people should they be given the honor they seek.

GONE EAST.

Colonel Taylor In Conference With Mr. Dos Passos Today.

Colonel Taylor went east last night, and is today in conference with John R. Dos Passos in New York concerning the affairs of the American Potteries company. There are rumors regarding the particular mission that takes Mr. Taylor to New York, but nothing definite could be learned.

Affairs about the potteries indicate an early resumption. Kilns are being drawn at some, while placing is going on at others. Decorators and packers are hard at work, and shipments are increasing. It is still believed that a number of potteries will be in full operation next week.

NEW ROOM

Is Now Ready For Occupancy at the Central School.

Janitor Albright, of the Central school, has completed the work of placing seats in the new basement room of that building. The iron work of the seats arrived Tuesday and last evening every seat was in position. The room is now being occupied by the class in chemistry and is found to be very convenient.

To be Tried Again.

The case of the Gerke Brewing company against John Rinehart and H. A. McNicol for $12 will be retried Friday afternoon in the court of Squire Rose. The jury will be W. H. Gass, William Cartwright, J. W. Hall, Joseph Turnbull, J. N. Vodrey and Smith Fowler.

The Ohio agricultural experiment station sends out a circular warning the public against fradulent fruit peddlers who claim to sell peach trees proof against the yellows. There are no such trees, the station people assert.

IN M'DERMOTT'S HAND

Were Buried the Sharp Teeth of a Fox Terrier.

EVERY PRECAUTION WAS TAKEN

The Wound Was Cauterized by a Physician and no Serious Results Are Anticipated—It Happened at the Carroll Club Yesterday Afternoon.

Hugh McDermott, the champion bag puncher of the county, is nursing a very sore hand.

Yesterday afternoon he was playing with a fox terrier dog owned by William Higginson, and went into the rooms of the Carroll club, followed by the animal. He started to punch the bag, and the dog, enjoying the sport, would make a spring at it every time it was hit and attempt to bite it.

The sport had gone on for some time when McDermott playfully put out his left hand to tumble the dog and it fastened its teeth in his hand biting clear through the fleshy part of his hand. The wound bled profusely, and McDermott went at once to the office of a physician where it was cauterized. Today he is suffering with a very sore hand, but it is thought he will suffer no ill effects from the bite.

The dog will not be killed, as it is not vicious.

NEW SUBMARINE BOAT.

Successful Trial of a British Naval Officer's Invention In Australia.

A former British naval officer, said to be Lieutenant Innes, has for some time been secretly at work in Australia on a new submarine torpedo boat. A trial of the invention has recently taken place before the commander in chief, Admiral Pearson, in Sydney harbor. There were few persons at the trial. An eyewitness of the experiment said:

"The shape of the boat is like that of the torpedo itself. It is cigar shaped and pointed at both ends. The model was made in seven different engine shops to insure secrecy. The performance of the craft was marvelous. The driving power was electricity, and compressed air was supplied for the occupants. The boat was only 15 feet long, but now that its success is assured a model to hold six men will be built at once. The man in the conning tower can manipulate the vessel or it can be manipulated from below. The submarine war machine is built of brass and is thicker on the underside than on top, to give it trim. The engines are placed amidships. They drive a shaft which turns the stern wheel. In addition to this propeller there is another which works at the end of a vertical shaft directly under the center of the craft and causes the disappearance and reappearance of the boat."

The eyewitness, who is close to Admiral Pearson and is supposed to voice his opinions, added: "The submarine invention is the most remarkable of modern times. The model was not fitted with torpedo tubes, as this was a matter of detail. The trial was to test the efficacy of the central screw in submerging and raising the vessel. The experiment was eminently successful."—New York Sun.

The Better Drawer.

"Your money or your life!" cried the robber.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the artist, and drew a pistol. The artist had no money, and, according to the critics, not much life, but that was not why he laughed. He laughed because he belonged to the school which draws rapidly and boldly rather than the school which draws laboriously, with great attention to detail.—Detroit Journal.

He is an absolute prisoner within the four corners of his lease. A HOT FIGHT ON ELKIN.

Finally Confirmed by the Senate—Magee Gave Him Strong Support. Rapped Hastings.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—There was a bitter fight in the senate over the nomination of John P. Elkin of Indiana as attorney general, but in the end both he and W. W. Griest of Lancaster, the new secretary of the commonwealth, were confirmed.

A vote was taken on a motion by Flinn to consider nothing but Griest's appointment, but it was defeated by a vote of 30 to 15. The original motion to consider both appointments was adopted by a vote of 32 to 13.

At one point Mr. Henry charged that Elkin had been removed from a state office for malfeasance in office.

The chair called Mr. Henry to order.

Mr. Henry continued and said that Mr. Elkin had been connected with the famous indemnity bond and for this he had been removed as deputy attorney general.

Mr. Magee came to Mr. Elkin's rescue and made a speech, which was heartily applauded by the Quay senators. "As far as this indemnity bond is concerned," said Mr. Magee, "it was a vicious habit of long standing and one from which the administration which expired yesterday (Tuesday) was not free. [Applause.] In 1895, there were more legislative employes engaged than was provided for by law. In 1897 the legislature appropriated money for this extra help and Governor Hastings, the man who was instrumental in removing Mr. Elkin as deputy attorney general, approved that bill."

He then defended Elkin's personal character and spoke of his struggle as a boy against poverty and infirmity. Elkin, he said, committed an error of judgment.

Mr. Osborn and others defended Mr. Elkin and said he had been removed from office through factional politics, but that his personal integrity had never been questioned. Mr. Flinn ended the debate by saying that Mr. Elkin was not dishonest, that he was a foolish man.

A vote on the question of confirmation revealed the fact that 33 senators voted affimatively and 13 negatively.

A TEACHER'S TROUBLE

He Will Face the County Board of Examiners.

SERIOUS CHARGES ARE FILED

It Is the First Time In Many Years That an Instructor Has Been Placed In His Position—The Parties Came From the Northern Part of the County.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Next Saturday in common pleas courtroom the county school examiners will have a case wherein charges have been brought against a school teacher for immoral conduct, some of his larger pupils of the opposite sex being involved. It is asked that his certificate be revoked.

The charges are preferred by Edward Hasson against Laurin Cope, a teacher. Twenty-two witnesses have been subpoenaed. Professor Vanfossen, clerk of the board, says this is the first case of its kind brought before the board since his connection with it. Charges have been made heretofore against two teachers, but when the board asked to have the charges put in writing the parties interested entirely failed them.

The parties interested all reside in the northern part of the county, and a decidedly sensational trial is anticipated.

The charge against Cope is nothing of a criminal nature, but the hearing will probably be interesting. The man is married, and resides near the school, situated not far from Shelton's grove. He orginally came from Middleton township.

John A. Davidson, administrator of C. H. Davidson, who was killed at Bedford, May 5, 1898, by a freight train on the Cleveland and Pittsburg road, has filed a petition for authority to settle the claim for the wrongful death. The Pennsylvania company offers to pay $2,000. Judge Boone authorized the settlement.

E. C. King has sold to J. L. King 40 acres in West, $1,000.

Anne Hall, of Franklin Square, has been adjudged insane. She will be sent to Massillon.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Fire was discovered this morning in the grocery store of G. C. Gilmore, it having caught from the stove near the rear of the room. The stock, valued at $1,000, was almost completely destroyed, and the plate glass windows broken.

The clothing stock of Mr. Rosenbaugh was damaged as was the confectionery of R. W. Johnson.

TRAVELERS TO START.

Local Potteries Ordered to Send Out Their Travelers Without Delay.

The head of every pottery controlled by the American Potteries company last night received an order from the New York office telling him to send out his traveling salesmen at once and prepare to handle business. It is the first movement toward resumption, and excited favorable comment wherever it was heard.

"The order virtually means that the potteries are to start very soon," said a leading manufacturer. "It will take a week perhaps for the salesmen to reach their territory, but then orders will begin to come in. Meantime some potteries can be shipping. I understand that arrangements are being made for the payment of the potters and the winding up of the deal within a few days."

Those Who Are Ill.

The condition of Joe Williams, the Cleveland and Pittsburg mail carrier in this city, is unchanged. He is confined to his home in Walnut street with an attack of malaria.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Timmons, of Third street, who has been ill with pneumonia for some time, is improving.

Hiram LeMoyne, of the freight depot, is confined to his home in West End on account of illness. His place at the depot is being filed by Andrew Cockburn, one of the men who was laid off when business became so slow recently.

Mrs. M. E. Calhoun is confined to her home in Seventh street with an attack of the grip.

Section Foreman Hickey is confined to his home in West End by a severe attack of the grip. The force he has charge of is working about the tracks under the supervision of one of the educated Italians.

Pauline, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Taylor, is ill with the grip.

When Mascagni Composes.

Mascagni's greatest passion and delight is to conduct an orchestra, for which he himself says he has a natural talent. But what is more interesting is to watch Mascagni composing his works. His wife, Signora Lina; Mimi (his eldest boy), Dino (another son) and Emilia (his little daughter) all have their parts in it. When the maestro is feverishly writing notes and rushing to the piano to catch an inspiration, his wife follows him to and fro, while the children climb on his knees, he unconsciously running his fingers through their curls.

As soon as he has fixed on a melody he gathers the children in his arms, and they all roll indiscriminately on the floor, the shouts, bumps, laughter, tears, making such an uproar that at last Signora Mascagni interferes, scolding her husband and telling him that a grave musician should give a better example to his family. She bundles away the children, and he returns to his desk, but a few minutes later the scene repeats itself.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

The maharanee of Nepaul committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game.

Out of the great temple he brought the idols, placed loaded cannon before them and bade gunners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces.—Leipsic Missionsblatt.

Faith In the Doctor.

An exchange quotes a story said to have been told at a "charity dinner."

A man was brought into the accident hospital who was thought to be dead. His wife was with him. One of the doctors said, "He is dead;" the man raised his head and said, "No, I'm not dead yet," whereupon his wife admonished him, saying, "Be quiet; the doctor ought to know best."

No Meeting This Month.

WELLSVILLE.

COUNCIL MAY DECIDE

To Have the Paved Streets Well Cleaned.

COMPLAINT HAS BEEN GENERAL

Even the Most Conservative and Those Who Advocate Economy Want Reform. Amanda Smith Preached to a Large Audience--All the News.

There is no question in the minds of the citizens of this city that some new method of cleaning the paved streets is sadly needed.

The streets are in a most filthy condition, and the street commissioner, with a few men and shovels, is unable to keep them clean. It is probable council will endeavor to solve the problem at their next meeting and the streets will no longer resemble country roads.

Ill With Pneumonia.

James Morgan returned from Pittsburg last evening.

It will be remembered that he was called to that place about a week ago by a telegram stating that his son was very ill and his death was expected. Mr. Morgan left at once for his son's home, and for days it was expected his death would occur any hour, but at last the worst seemed past, and his physicians gave hope that if no further complications should arise his entire recovery from pneumonia was assured.

Sinclair's Horses Died.

W. H. Sinclair has been very unfortunate lately with horses.

Two weeks ago a valuable horse belonging to him was being cared for across the river. It was out in the fields for an airing and feeling full of life it jumped on a fence and was so severely injured that it died from the effect of the accident. Last Monday another horse belonging to him took sick of pneumonia and after a very short illness died.

A Big Meeting.

Amanda Smith, the colored evangelist last evening again occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the edifice was filled to overflowing long before time for the services to commence. She delivered an interesting and logical sermon that went through to the hearts of her hearers, and her visit to the city will be productive of much good.

HE STOOD ON THE BRIDGE

It Was a Little After Midnight,

BUT THE POLICE TOOK HIM IN

Because He Was Singing and Otherwise Disturbing the Good People of That Section--Another Drunk Captured In Dew Drop Alley.

Two cases were before Mayor Bough this morning for his disposal. While one of the cases was of the common order the other proved interesting, as the offender was a singer.

About 10 o'clock last night Isaac Gourley was found in an intoxicated condition in Dew Drop alley. He was sleeping and although he was told earlier in the evening to go home, he failed to heed the advice. As a result Officers Woods and Bettridge gathered him in and took him to jail in the patrol, where he spent the night. This morning he pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $7.60. He did not have the necessary amount at the time and was remanded to jail.

J. Frederick, no one knows where he is from, stood on the bridge after midnight with several friends and after looking at the water beneath, began to sing. After singing the men began to act disorderly and use abusive language to all who passed them. The patrol was called and Singer Frederick was taken to jail by Officers Woods and Bettridge. This morning he pleaded guilty to the charges against him and paid a fine of $7.60 after which he departed.

Chief Johnson this morning received from Superintendent Quay, of the Pennsylvania reform school at Morganza, a list of absentees from that institution. A reward of $10 is offered for the capture of each. They are:

Lee Foster, home at rear of No. 541 Third avenue, Pittsburg, 17 years of age; height 5 feet 3 inches; brown hair, blue eyes, dark complexion, small scar from cut above right eye; thick lower lip; spot of India ink near base of right thumb and star in India ink on right fore arm.

Julius Broadneck, colored, home at Washington, 18 years old, height 5 feet 2 inches, weight 136 pounds; very black African features; scar from cut on left cheek; two small scars on back of right hand; four vaccine marks on left arm.

Both wore white canton flannel underwear marked letter "F," blue and gray striped shirts, trousers and jackets of blue-gray cloth.

No complaints were made yesterday afternoon or this morning, and the city has been so quiet during the past week that the authorities do not anticipate much business the rest of the week.

Disguised as a Clean Citizen.

John Mattney, an unkempt and dirty tramp, was charged with stealing a pair of oxen from Joe Brown of Harrison, James county, and selling the animals to local dealers. He was arrested at Rockwood and brought to Chattanooga and put in jail. He finally secured a capable lawyer, and when the case was called in the justice court the other day a clean shaven, well dressed, good looking man took the prisoners' box for trial. When Mr. Brown and the cattle dealers took the witness stand, they were completely taken by surprise at the appearance of the man charged with the theft, and neither of them could swear positively that he was the thief. He was therefore discharged, and before further proceedings could be had fled the city. His lawyer had had him shaved, his hair cut and put a clean shirt and collar on him, all of which so changed him that his identity was lost.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bruin Didn't Like the Sample.

A wooden leg saved the life of a young man named Kelly, who lives near Lackawaxen, Pike county, Pa. Kelly was returning from a visit to the home of his sweetheart at Barryville, a few miles distant, late the other night when he was chased by a bear. A wooden leg impeded his progress, and the animal soon overtook him. With one cuff of its paw Kelly was sent sprawling. The bear pounced upon him and began chewing on the wooden leg, but after consuming half the leg, trousers and shoe, Bruin evidently became disgusted and walked away. Kelly reached home nearly frozen, but thankful that his life was saved.—Philadelphia Times.

A TEACHER'S TROUBLE

He Will Face the County Board of Examiners.

SERIOUS CHARGES ARE FILED

It Is the First Time In Many Years That an Instructor Has Been Placed In His Position—The Parties Came From the Northern Part of the County.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Next Saturday in common pleas courtroom the county school examiners will have a case wherein charges have been brought against a school teacher for immoral conduct, some of his larger pupils of the opposite sex being involved. It is asked that his certificate be revoked.

The charges are preferred by Edward Hasson against Laurin Cope, a teacher. Twenty-two witnesses have been subpoenaed. Professor Vanfossen, clerk of the board, says this is the first case of its kind brought before the board since his connection with it. Charges have been made heretofore against two teachers, but when the board asked to have the charges put in writing the parties interested entirely failed them.

The parties interested all reside in the northern part of the county, and a decidedly sensational trial is anticipated.

The charge against Cope is nothing of a criminal nature, but the hearing will probably be interesting. The man is married, and resides near the school, situated not far from Shelton's grove. He orginally came from Middleton township.

John A. Davidson, administrator of C. H. Davidson, who was killed at Bedford, May 5, 1898, by a freight train on the Cleveland and Pittsburg road, has filed a petition for authority to settle the claim for the wrongful death. The Pennsylvania company offers to pay $2,000. Judge Boone authorized the settlement.

E. C. King has sold to J. L. King 40 acres in West, $1,000.

Anne Hall, of Franklin Square, has been adjudged insane. She will be sent to Massillon.

LISBON FIRE.

A Grocery Store Badly Damaged This Morning.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Fire was discovered this morning in the grocery store of G. C. Gilmore, it having caught from the stove near the rear of the room. The stock, valued at $1,000, was almost completely destroyed, and the plate glass windows broken.

The clothing stock of Mr. Rosenbaugh was damaged as was the confectionery of R. W. Johnson.

TRAVELERS TO START.

Local Potteries Ordered to Send Out Their Travelers Without Delay.

The head of every pottery controlled by the American Potteries company last night received an order from the New York office telling him to send out his traveling salesmen at once and prepare to handle business. It is the first movement toward resumption, and excited favorable comment wherever it was heard.

"The order virtually means that the potteries are to start very soon," said a leading manufacturer. "It will take a week perhaps for the salesmen to reach their territory, but then orders will begin to come in. Meantime some potteries can be shipping. I understand that arrangements are being made for the payment of the potters and the winding up of the deal within a few days."

Those Who Are Ill.

The condition of Joe Williams, the Cleveland and Pittsburg mail carrier in this city, is unchanged. He is confined to his home in Walnut street with an attack of malaria.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Timmons, of Third street, who has been ill with pneumonia for some time, is improving.

Hiram LeMoyne, of the freight depot, is confined to his home in West End on account of illness. His place at the depot is being filed by Andrew Cockburn, one of the men who was laid off when business became so slow recently.

Mrs. M. E. Calhoun is confined to her home in Seventh street with an attack of the grip.

Section Foreman Hickey is confined to his home in West End by a severe attack of the grip. The force he has charge of is working about the tracks under the supervision of one of the educated Italians.

Pauline, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Taylor, is ill with the grip.

When Mascagni Composes.

Mascagni's greatest passion and delight is to conduct an orchestra, for which he himself says he has a natural talent. But what is more interesting is to watch Mascagni composing his works. His wife, Signora Lina; Mimi (his eldest boy), Dino (another son) and Emilia (his little daughter) all have their parts in it. When the maestro is feverishly writing notes and rushing to the piano to catch an inspiration, his wife follows him to and fro, while the children climb on his knees, he unconsciously running his fingers through their curls.

As soon as he has fixed on a melody he gathers the children in his arms, and they all roll indiscriminately on the floor, the shouts, bumps, laughter, tears, making such an uproar that at last Signora Mascagni interferes, scolding her husband and telling him that a grave musician should give a better example to his family. She bundles away the children, and he returns to his desk, but a few minutes later the scene repeats itself.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

The maharanee of Nepaul committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game.

Out of the great temple he brought the idols, placed loaded cannon before them and bade gunners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces.—Leipsic Missionsblatt.

Faith In the Doctor.

An exchange quotes a story said to have been told at a "charity dinner."

A man was brought into the accident hospital who was thought to be dead. His wife was with him. One of the doctors said, "He is dead;" the man raised his head and said, "No, I'm not dead yet," whereupon his wife admonished him, saying, "Be quiet; the doctor ought to know best."

WELLSVILLE.

To Have the Paved Streets Well Cleaned.

Even the Most Conservative and Those Who Advocate Economy Want Reform. Amanda Smith Preached to a Large Audience—All the News.

There is no question in the minds of the citizens of this city that some new method of cleaning the paved streets is sadly needed.

The streets are in a most filthy condition, and the street commissioner, with a few men and shovels, is unable to keep them clean. It is probable council will endeavor to solve the problem at their next meeting and the streets will no longer resemble country roads.

Ill With Pneumonia.

James Morgan returned from Pittsburg last evening.

It will be remembered that he was called to that place about a week ago by a telegram stating that his son was very ill and his death was expected. Mr. Morgan left at once for his son's home, and for days it was expected his death would occur any hour, but at last the worst seemed past, and his physicians gave hope that if no further complications should arise his entire recovery from pneumonia was assured.

Sinclair's Horses Died.

W. H. Sinclair has been very unfortunate lately with horses.

Two weeks ago a valuable horse belonging to him was being cared for across the river. It was out in the fields for an airing and feeling full of life it jumped on a fence and was so severely injured that it died from the effect of the accident. Last Monday another horse belonging to him took sick of pneumonia and after a very short illness died.

A Big Meeting.

Amanda Smith, the colored evangelist last evening again occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the edifice was filled to overflowing long before time for the services to commence. She delivered an interesting and logical sermon that went through to the hearts of her hearers, and her visit to the city will be productive of much good.

Mascagni's greatest passion and delight is to conduct an orchestra, for which he himself says he has a natural talent. But what is more interesting is to watch Mascagni composing his works. His wife, Signora Lina; Mimi (his eldest boy), Dino (another son) and Emilia (his little daughter) all have their parts in it. When the maestro is feverishly writing notes and rushing to the piano to catch an inspiration, his wife follows him to and fro, while the children climb on his knees, he unconsciously running his fingers through their curls.

As soon as he has fixed on a melody he gathers the children in his arms, and they all roll indiscriminately on the floor, the shouts, bumps, laughter, tears, making such an uproar that at last Signora Mascagni interferes, scolding her husband and telling him that a grave musician should give a better example to his family. She bundles away the children, and he returns to his desk, but a few minutes later the scene repeats itself.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

The maharanee of Nepaul committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game.

Out of the great temple he brought the idols, placed loaded cannon before them and bade gunners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces.—Leipsic Missionsblatt.

Faith In the Doctor.

An exchange quotes a story said to have been told at a "charity dinner."

A man was brought into the accident hospital who was thought to be dead. His wife was with him. One of the doctors said, "He is dead;" the man raised his head and said, "No, I'm not dead yet," whereupon his wife admonished him, saying, "Be quiet; the doctor ought to know best."

No Meeting This Month.

WELLSVILLE.

COUNCIL MAY DECIDE

To Have the Paved Streets Well Cleaned.

Even the Most Conservative and Those Who Advocate Economy Want Reform. Amanda Smith Preached to a Large Audience--All the News.

There is no question in the minds of the citizens of this city that some new method of cleaning the paved streets is sadly needed.

The streets are in a most filthy condition, and the street commissioner, with a few men and shovels, is unable to keep them clean. It is probable council will endeavor to solve the problem at their next meeting and the streets will no longer resemble country roads.

Ill With Pneumonia.

James Morgan returned from Pittsburg last evening.

It will be remembered that he was called to that place about a week ago by a telegram stating that his son was very ill and his death was expected. Mr. Morgan left at once for his son's home, and for days it was expected his death would occur any hour, but at last the worst seemed past, and his physicians gave hope that if no further complications should arise his entire recovery from pneumonia was assured.

Sinclair's Horses Died.

W. H. Sinclair has been very unfortunate lately with horses.

Two weeks ago a valuable horse belonging to him was being cared for across the river. It was out in the fields for an airing and feeling full of life it jumped on a fence and was so severely injured that it died from the effect of the accident. Last Monday another horse belonging to him took sick of pneumonia and after a very short illness died.

A Big Meeting.

Amanda Smith, the colored evangelist last evening again occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the edifice was filled to overflowing long before time for the services to commence. She delivered an interesting and logical sermon that went through to the hearts of her hearers, and her visit to the city will be productive of much good.

HE STOOD ON THE BRIDGE

It Was a Little After Midnight,

BUT THE POLICE TOOK HIM IN

Because He Was Singing and Otherwise Disturbing the Good People of That Section--Another Drunk Captured In Dew Drop Alley.

Two cases were before Mayor Bough this morning for his disposal. While one of the cases was of the common order the other proved interesting, as the offender was a singer.

About 10 o'clock last night Isaac Gourley was found in an intoxicated condition in Dew Drop alley. He was sleeping and although he was told earlier in the evening to go home, he failed to heed the advice. As a result Officers Woods and Bettridge gathered him in and took him to jail in the patrol, where he spent the night. This morning he pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $7.60. He did not have the necessary amount at the time and was remanded to jail.

J. Frederick, no one knows where he is from, stood on the bridge after midnight with several friends and after looking at the water beneath, began to sing. After singing the men began to act disorderly and use abusive language to all who passed them. The patrol was called and Singer Frederick was taken to jail by Officers Woods and Bettridge. This morning he pleaded guilty to the charges against him and paid a fine of $7.60 after which he departed.

Chief Johnson this morning received from Superintendent Quay, of the Pennsylvania reform school at Morganza, a list of absentees from that institution. A reward of $10 is offered for the capture of each. They are:

Lee Foster, home at rear of No. 541 Third avenue, Pittsburg, 17 years of age; height 5 feet 3 inches; brown hair, blue eyes, dark complexion, small scar from cut above right eye; thick lower lip; spot of India ink near base of right thumb and star in India ink on right fore arm.

Julius Broadneck, colored, home at Washington, 18 years old, height 5 feet 2 inches, weight 136 pounds; very black African features; scar from cut on left cheek; two small scars on back of right hand; four vaccine marks on left arm.

Both wore white canton flannel underwear marked letter "F," blue and gray striped shirts, trousers and jackets of blue-gray cloth.

No complaints were made yesterday afternoon or this morning, and the city has been so quiet during the past week that the authorities do not anticipate much business the rest of the week.

Disguised as a Clean Citizen.

John Mattney, an unkempt and dirty tramp, was charged with stealing a pair of oxen from Joe Brown of Harrison, James county, and selling the animals to local dealers. He was arrested at Rockwood and brought to Chattanooga and put in jail. He finally secured a capable lawyer, and when the case was called in the justice court the other day a clean shaven, well dressed, good looking man took the prisoners' box for trial. When Mr. Brown and the cattle dealers took the witness stand, they were completely taken by surprise at the appearance of the man charged with the theft, and neither of them could swear positively that he was the thief. He was therefore discharged, and before further proceedings could be had fled the city. His lawyer had had him shaved, his hair cut and put a clean shirt and collar on him, all of which so changed him that his identity was lost.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bruin Didn't Like the Sample.

A wooden leg saved the life of a young man named Kelly, who lives near Lackawaxen, Pike county, Pa. Kelly was returning from a visit to the home of his sweetheart at Barryville, a few miles distant, late the other night when he was chased by a bear. A wooden leg impeded his progress, and the animal soon overtook him. With one cuff of its paw Kelly was sent sprawling. The bear pounced upon him and began chewing on the wooden leg, but after consuming half the leg, trousers and shoe, Bruin evidently became disgusted and walked away. Kelly reached home nearly frozen, but thankful that his life was saved.—Philadelphia Times.

For the Paris Exposition.

A historic tableau is being prepared which is likely to cause a sensation at the Paris exhibition. This is no other than a faithful reproduction of the Malmaison salon on the evening of a grand reception in the year 1800. More than 50 figures will appear in this scene, besides Napoleon and Josephine.—Chicago Tribune.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870 In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

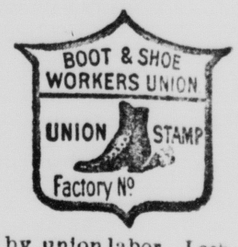
UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.



The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

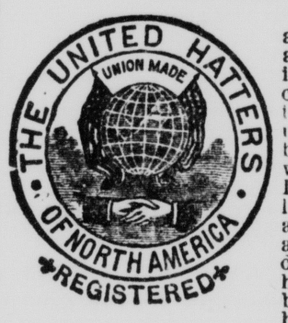
UNION MADE HATS.



This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

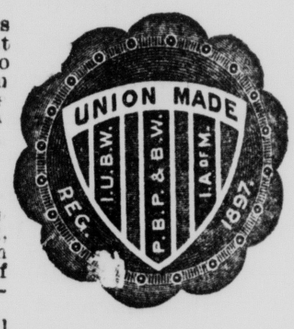
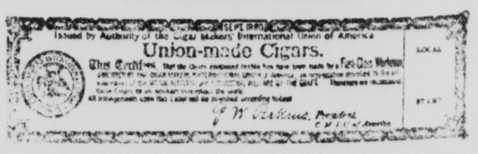
BICYCLE LABEL



"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 13 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870 In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, belladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

Why Maud Blushed.

Bobby (at the breakfast table)—Maud, did Mr. Jules take any of the umbrellas or hats from the hall last night?

Maud—Why, of course not! Why should he?

Bobby—That's just what I'd like to know. I thought he did because I heard him say when he was going out, 'I am going to steal just one,' and— Why, what's the matter, Maud?—London Fun.

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

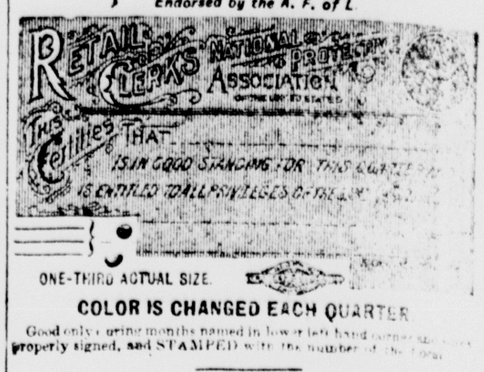
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

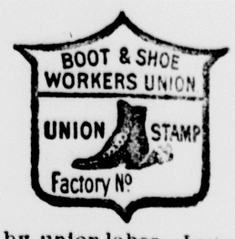
Endorsed by the A. F. of L.



COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

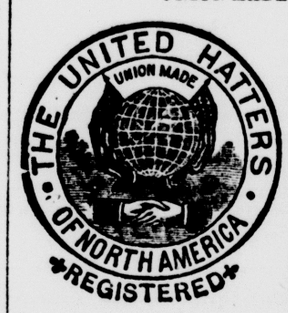


The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

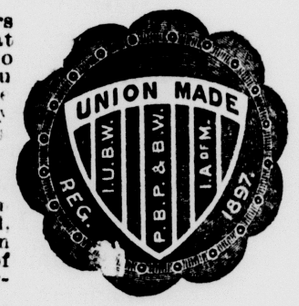


This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

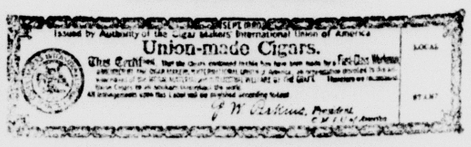
BICYCLE LABEL



"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up his new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this side of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up his new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this sid of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

50,000 FOR CUBA.

General Wood Told a Senate Committee He Thought That Many Troops Would Be Needed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Gen. Leonard Wood, military commander of the department of Santiago, was before the senate committee on military affairs. He considered that a military force would be necessary to the maintenance of order for some years and said it should be sufficient effectually and quickly check any trouble before it could gain headway. He thought as many as 50,000 troops should be stationed throughout Cuba. With proper precaution and tact he did not anticipate trouble and he believed that the insurgent forces would rapidly disintegrate in all parts of the island.

He had shown absolute trust in the Cubans in all matters, going among them always unarmed and leaving the books of the administration always open to their inspection. He had Cubans in all departments, and his private secretary had at one time been a member of Gomez's staff. Thus they always knew how their money had been expended and knew just what he was doing as their governor. General Wood said that his first effort had been to encourage the people of all the towns to establish self-government, and he had been especially zealous in having them select their local officers, open schools, establish courts, build roads, etc., and, in cases where they did not have the money for these purposes, he had aided them by making contributions for the general fund. This system was entirely different from the old one under Spanish rule, when all the collections were forwarded to Havana and never came back, only 16 per cent of the revenue being devoted to local uses. He had found the people especially jealous of their rights in this respect.

NEWSPAPER CHARGE DENIED.

Brooke Declared Statement About Military Government False.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—El Diario de La Marina, La Lucha, El Pais and La Discussion, as well as other papers less influential, indulge in editorial criticisms of the United States military and administration, asserting that it tends to anarchy. They declare that each provincial governor and each garrison commander is a military dictator, acting independently of the governor general and exercising administrative, legislative, judicial and even ecclesiastical functions.

Governor General Brooke said that the criticism was unfounded, as it was quite untrue that there was no uniformity of action. "Exactly the reverse is the fact," said the governor general.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 13 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

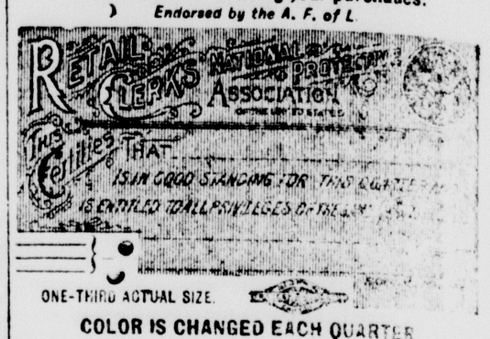
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

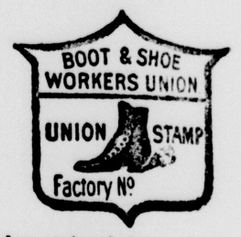


ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

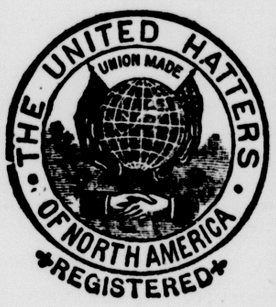


The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.



This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

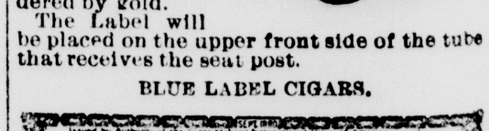
You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL

"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

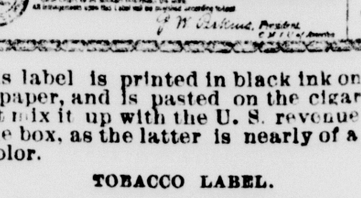
The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.



The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

Prince Herbert Bismarck recently issued orders that strangers shall no longer be admitted to Friedrichsruh or to Sachsenwald, which have been heretofore so much used as picnic grounds by the people of Hamburg.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

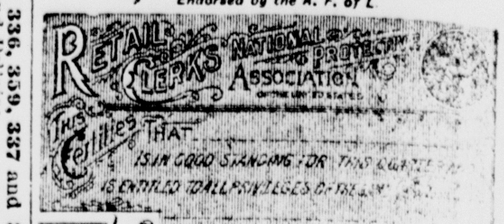
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.



ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

BOOT & SHOE WORKERS UNION — UNION STAMP — Factory No.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL

"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.

This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up this new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this sid of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up his new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this sid of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

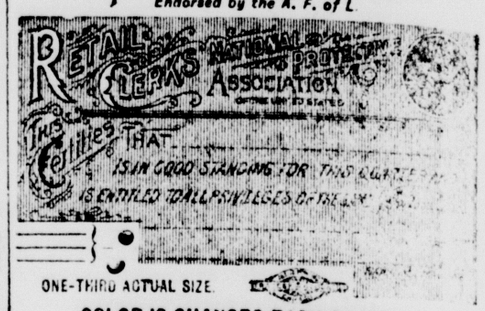
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

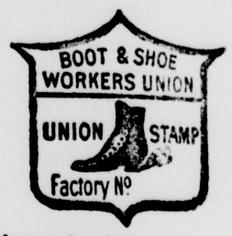


ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER.

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Clerk.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

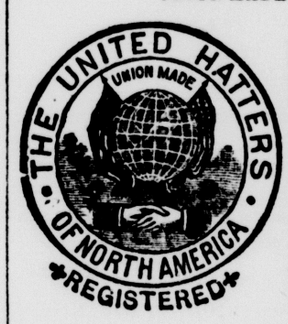


The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

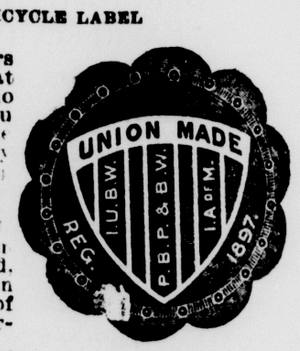


This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

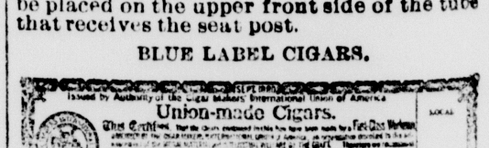
You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL



"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold. The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, belladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

Why Maud Blushed.

Bobby (at the breakfast table)—Maud, did Mr. Jules take any of the umbrellas or hats from the hall last night?

Maud—Why, of course not! Why should he?

Bobby—That's just what I'd like to know. I thought he did because I heard him say when he was going out, 'I am going to steal just one,' and— Why, what's the matter, Maud?—London Fun

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

Prince Herbert Bismarck recently issued orders that strangers shall no longer be admitted to Friedrichsruh or to Sachsenwald, which have been heretofore so much used as picnic grounds by the people of Hamburg.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

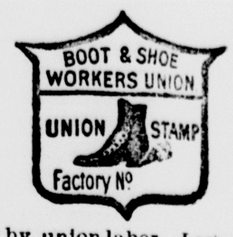
All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.



The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

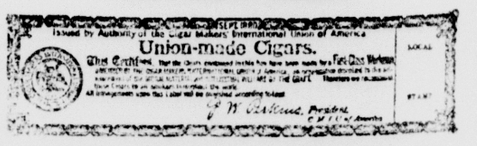
You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL

"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up this new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened. —Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island. —Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this side of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this sid of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

50,000 FOR CUBA.

General Wood Told a Senate Committee He Thought That Many Troops Would Be Needed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Gen. Leonard Wood, military commander of the department of Santiago, was before the senate committee on military affairs. He considered that a military force would be necessary to the maintenance of order for some years and said it should be sufficient effectually and quickly check any trouble before it could gain headway. He thought as many as 50,000 troops should be stationed throughout Cuba. With proper precaution and tact he did not anticipate trouble and he believed that the insurgent forces would rapidly disintegrate in all parts of the island.

He had shown absolute trust in the Cubans in all matters, going among them always unarmed and leaving the books of the administration always open to their inspection. He had Cubans in all departments, and his private secretary had at one time been a member of Gomez's staff. Thus they always knew how their money had been expended and knew just what he was doing as their governor. General Wood said that his first effort had been to encourage the people of all the towns to establish self-government, and he had been especially zealous in having them select their local officers, open schools, establish courts, build roads, etc., and, in cases where they did not have the money for these purposes, he had aided them by making contributions for the general fund. This system was entirely different from the old one under Spanish rule, when all the collections were forwarded to Havana and never came back, only 16 per cent of the revenue being devoted to local uses. He had found the people especially jealous of their rights in this respect.

NEWSPAPER CHARGE DENIED.

Brooke Declared Statement About Military Government False.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—El Diario de La Marina, La Lucha, El Pais and La Discussion, as well as other papers less influential, indulge in editorial criticisms of the United States military and administration, asserting that it tends to anarchy. They declare that each provincial governor and each garrison commander is a military dictator, acting independently of the governor general and exercising administrative, legislative, judicial and even ecclesiastical functions.

Governor General Brooke said that the criticism was unfounded, as it was quite untrue that there was no uniformity of action. "Exactly the reverse is the fact," said the governor general.

NEWSPAPER CHARGE DENIED.

Brooke Declared Statement About Military Government False.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—El Diario de La Marina, La Lucha, El Pais and La Discussion, as well as other papers less influential, indulge in editorial criticisms of the United States military and administration, asserting that it tends to anarchy. They declare that each provincial governor and each garrison commander is a military dictator, acting independently of the governor general and exercising administrative, legislative, judicial and even ecclesiastical functions.

Governor General Brooke said that the criticism was unfounded, as it was quite untrue that there was no uniformity of action. "Exactly the reverse is the fact," said the governor general.

Saved by a Shirt.

Roy Tigner was saved from an awful death the other day at Zanesville, O., by the strength of a shirt which he wore. In attempting to board a freight train his foot became wedged between the brake shoe and beam, and he lost his hold on the car. He was dragged 200 feet, when his shirt was caught in a switch frog and he was pulled from under the wheels. He was badly injured, but will live.—Special Cincinnati Enquirer

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

14TH YEAR. NO. 189. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1899. TWO CENTS

QUAY AGAIN SHORT.

His Vote Remained at 112 In Joint Session.

A SMALL GAIN MADE BY JENKS.

A Ruling of Gobin Inflamed Flinn, Who Inaugurated a Fight, Joined by Democrats, Anti-Quay Republicans and Some of the Quay Men.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—The joint ballot for United States senator showed little change from the figures of the day before when the houses voted separately. It resulted as follows: M. S. Quay, Rep., 112; Charles E. Smith, Rep., 1; George A. Jenks, Dem., 84; Charles Tubbs, Rep., 4; John Dalzell, Rep., 15; E. A. Irwin, Rep., 3; Charles W. Stone, Rep., 9; John Stewart, Rep., 9; George F. Huff, Rep., 5; J. F. Downing, Rep., 2; Charles E. Rice, Rep., 2; G. A. Grow, Rep., 1.

Votes cast, 248; necessary to choice, 125.

The session was, however, productive of a stormy scene, in which Senator Flinn was the chief actor. He vigorously fought the adjournment announced by Lieutenant Governor Gobin and called a meeting to "oppose the bulldozing tactics of the chair." This was attended by the Independent Republicans and the Democrats and a committee was appointed to report resolutions of protest at a night session.

When the house assembled for the balloting the first clash came when Representative Dixon of Elk offered a resolution fixing the rules governing the joint assembly. Mr. Gobin declared nothing was in order but comparing the journals of the senate and house at the proceedings of the day before on the senatorship. Mr. Dixon appealed from decision, but the chair refused to entertain it and ordered the clerk to proceed with the reading of the journals.

Mr. Dixon's resolution provided rules to govern the joint assembly. These included a daily rollcall and a recapitulation thereof, with a record of those present and absent; then a ballot for senator, to be followed by a recapitulation of the vote; a right of any member to vote or change his vote before final announcement of the vote, but not afterward; that until further orders by a majority vote of the joint assembly there shall be only one daily ballot, and prescribing the form of pairs.

After comparing the journals, Mr. Gobin announced that Mr. Quay was named for senator in the senate, but that there was no election in the house. The roll of the senate and house was called to ascertain the number of Senators and members present.

Mr. Flinn (Allegheny) claimed that it was his right to appeal from the chair's decision on the resolution offered by Mr. Dixon. Mr. Gobin claimed that nothing was in order but the calling of the roll on the United States senatorship.

Neither of the persons named having received a majority of the votes cast, Mr. Gobin announced that there was no election.

Representatives Cole and Duttera of Adams, who were absent the day before, voted for Jenks. Mr. Timlin of Lackawanna changed from Superior Court Judge Peter P. Smith of Scranton to Jenks. The Democrats voted solidly for Jenks. The absentees in the house were Messrs. Boyle of Luzerne and Brophy of Allegheny, Democrats, and Harold of Beaver, Republican. The absentees in the senate were Higgins of Schuylkill, Democrat, and Hawkins, Republican, of Washington, who has not qualified. A successor has not yet been chosen to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Gobin. J. F. Downing of Erie received two votes.

Jenks made a net gain of two votes over his vote of the day before. Dalzell and Stone each lost one vote. The votes cast for them the day before went to Mr. Downing. These were the only changes in the vote.

The detailed vote in joint assembly was as follows:

Mr. Grady moved to adjourn, as the result of the vote was announced. Mr. Gobin put the motion and declared the convention adjourned. Mr. Flinn called the yeas and nays, but the lieutenant governor declined to order the call and ruled that the assembly was adjourned. Mr. Flinn said he hoped all the legislators who were opposed to an adjournment would remain in the hall. Mr. Gobin left the chair and Speaker Farr took the gavel and called the house to order. There was nothing for the senators to do under the circumstances, but for the house to reconvene and adjourn. After the adjournment Mr. Flinn invited the legislators "opposed to the bulldozing tactics of the chair" to remain.

A meeting was called to order by Mr. Flinn and Ward R. Bliss of Delaware was chosen chairman. The Democrats and independent Republican senators and members participated in the meeting, also some men who voted for Quay.

Mr. Bliss announced that the meeting was called to protest against the rulings of Lieutenant Governor Gobin in the joint assembly. Representative Thomas J. Ford of Allegeny, Republican, and George R. Dixon, Democrat, of Elk, were elected secretaries. A roll was called and showed 135 present.

Mr. Flinn offered a motion that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to report resolutions to an adjourned meeting at 7:30 in the evening to take action against "being robbed of our rights." The motion was adopted.

Nesbit of Allegheny, Hersch and Yates of Philadelphia, Baldwin of Delaware and Mackey of Lackawanna, who voted for Mr. Quay, also took part in the meeting. The chair appointed the following committee to report the meeting: Senators Flinn and Sproul, Republicans; Heinle, Democrat; Representatives Young, Koontz, Republicans; Fow and Dixon, Democrats.

Mr. Baldwin of Delaware said if the meeting meant what Senator Flinn had said he was in sympathy with it. The meeting then adjourned.

ALMOST TO FINAL VOTE.

Nicaragua Canal Bill Came Close to It In the Senate—Bacon Spoke Against Expansion.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The feature of the session of the senate was a speech delivered by Mr. Bacon (Dem., Ga.) in support of his resolutions declaring that the United States would not assume sovereignty over the Philippine islands. Mr. Bacon is one of the orators of the senate and as he gave himself free rein, not confining himself to notes, he spoke strongly and effectively. His peroration, in which he pictured the horrors of some of England's methods of controlling her colonial subjects, was a beautiful and forceful bit of word painting.

Following Mr. Bacon's speech the Nicaraguan canal bill was taken up. Amendment after amendment was voted down until almost the last minute it seemed likely that a vote on the measure would be reached, but just as a final vote was about to be called for Mr. Allison (Rep., Ia.) offered an amendment providing that the secretary of the treasury should issue bonds to raise money with which to construct the canal.

The friends of the measure then consented to an adjournment.

The Paul Jones Located.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 19.—There was rejoicing in the home of Thomas Taggart, mayor of this city, upon receipt of a telegram from the mayor, who is at Mobile, saying that the yacht Paul Jones had been sighted off the lighthouse. The relatives and friends of the mayor's daughter, Miss Florence, had abandoned hope of the boat's safety until the message from Mr. Taggart came.

COURT FOR EAGAN.

Members Announced From the War Department.

OTHERS MAY ALSO BE TRIED.

The Order Called For Eagan's Trial "and Such Others as May Be Brought Before It"—Merritt to Be at the Head. Prospective Arrest of Eagan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The detail for the courtmartial which is to try Commissary General Charles P. Eagan on charges growing out of his statements before the war investigation commission last week, in which he severely attacked General Miles was made public at the war department. The court will be made up of 13 army officers, of whom Major General Wesley Merritt will be at the head, and a judge advocate, and it is to meet in this city on Wednesday, the 25th inst., or as soon thereafter as practicable, this qualification being necessary because a number of the members are at distant points and will require some days to adjust their affairs and reach this city. All the officers composing the court, save one, are from the regular army, a number of whom, however, during the war accepted volunteer rank and still hold those commissions. Major General Butler is the only one who is not connected with the regular army.

The order promulgated was as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, Jan. 18, 1899.

The following order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

War Department, Washington, Jan. 18, 1899.

By direction of the president a general courtmartial is appointed to meet in this city at 10 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, Jan. 25, 1899, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the trial of Brigadier General Chas. P. Eagan, commissary general of subsistence, United States army, and such other persons as may be brought before it.

Detail for the court:

Major General Wesley Merritt, U. S, A.; Major General James F. Wade, U. S. Vols.; Major General Matthew C. Butler, U. S. Vols.; Major General Samuel B. M Young, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Royal T. Frank, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Alexander C. McW. Pennington, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General George M. Randall, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Jacob Kline, U. S. Vols.; Brigadier General Richard Comba, U. S. Vols.; Colonel Peter C. Hains, corps of engineers; Colonel George L. Gillespie, corps of engineers; Colonel Charles R. Suter, corps of engineers; Colonel Francis L. Guenther, Fourth artillery; Lieutenant Colonel George B. Davis, deputy judge advocate general, judge advocate of the court.

The court is empowered to proceed with the business before it with any number of members not less than the minimum prescribed by law.

Upon the final adjournment of the court the members will return to their proper stations.

(Signed) R. A. ALGER, Secretary of War.

The journeys required of the members of the court in complying with this order are necessary for the public service.

By order of the secretary of war.

(Signed) H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General.

General Corbin stated that the order for the appointment of the courtmartial would be delivered to General Eagan either last night or this morning. This, it is expected, will be done by an officer or an employe of the adjutant general's office. Its receipt and acknowledgment by the commissary general will be tantamount to the relief of that officer from his present duties, and he will turn over its affairs either to some one designated to act by the secretary of war or to the officer next in charge in the department.

It may be that General Eagan will not be placed under actual arrest and deprived of any of his liberties pending and during the trial, but will be subject only to constructive and technical arrest during that time.

MINE STRUGGLE LIKELY.

Scale Formulated by the Miners—Operators Will Make Much of West Virginia Situation.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 19.—Coal diggers of the various states have finally decided on the demands they will make on the operators. The scale committee appointed by them after several sessions, brought in a report which was subsequently adopted in executive session of the national organization. Some changes were made in the original report.

The demands will be for an advance of 7 cents per ton for run-of-mine coal, the screen proposition having been entirely ignored. A demand is also made for a proportionate advance for day labor. The working day shall consist of eight hours. The difference between pick and machine mining shall be 7 cents flat, based on the Pittsburg, Hocking Valley and Danville (Ills.) fields.

This is the report the operators will have to consider, and which they will make an attempt to turn down. The final report was reached after considerable argument and discussion. Miners from the various fields had grievances of all kinds, which the scale committee could not consider. The report was fully considered by the convention and discussed in all its phases.

Francis L. Robbins, the Pittsburg coal operator, gave the miners of the four competitive states notice that they would have to go against a strong argument so far as the work of organization of the craft in West Virginia since the last joint convention is concerned. It was a statement which indicates that the basis of argument of the operators against a higher rate of mining and one in favor of reduction will be based on the operations in West Virginia and the charge that the United Mine Workers of America failed to carry out their part of the contract.

The miners, on the other hand, gave tacit notice to the producers that they are a unit when vital questions affecting their interests are presented.

A BRIDGE RUINED.

A Broken Dam at Cleveland Endangered Big Plants--Delay to Street Traffic.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—High water caused the collape, one after the other, of the piers of the Wilson avenue bridge, a structure 700 feet long, that cost $350,000. A dam under the bridge gave away back of which was a long and wide body of water. The break allowed torrents to pour through, threatening many large plants. Thirty men were at work at the time in the artificial canal being sunk by the city to allow the pent-up water to escape. They were got to a place of safety with difficulty, barely in time to avoid the rush of waters.

As the day wore on the immense volume of water rushing out of the dam began to have its effect and the flood became perceptibly less. At noon the water had fallen 12 feet in the dam from its highest point, and it was then believed that the danger to the factories in the lower valley was practically over.

The dam was created by a roadway built across Kingsbury run many years ago. A high bridge spanning the valley at that point had just been completed, and it was this structure which was undermined and partly demolished by the flood. The culvert under the old roadway became clogged up during the recent heavy rains, causing an immense body of water to become dammed up, covering many acres.

New Officers Elected.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 19.—At the meeting of the state board of commerce the following officers were elected: President, E. M. Thresper, Dayton; vice president, O. A. Miller, Columbus; secretary, H. A. Griffin, Cleveland; treasurer, C. D. Firestone, Columbus. Resolutions on the death of Julius Dexter of Cincinnati, late president of the state board, were adopted.

Child Died of Burns.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—The 3-year-old son of George Mercer of New Cumberland was fatally burned by being pushed into a grate fire by a baby sister. The mother in rescuing the child had her hands burned. The little sufferer died.

Everett Again Elected.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Henry A. Everett was elected president of the Big Consolidated Street railway, a position from which he was ousted by Tom L. Johnson and Horace Andrews after the consolidation. The Everett people again control.

M'GRAW NOMINATED.

West Virginia Democrats Named Him as Their Candidate For United States Senator.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The political situation assumed a serious aspect by reason of the refusal of Governor Atkinson and the senate, which is Republican, to formally recognize the house. Though the governor was notified that it was organized and ready for business the governor had not transmitted his message, and there was no indication as to when he would do so. The senate persisted in adjourning each day immediately after convening, and this frustrated the efforts of the house committee to apprise it of the fact that the house is in session. A Republican leader in the house made the remark that in a few days there would be a house that the governor would recognize.

The Republicans expect to night caucus for the senatorial nomination. It is believed that several meetings will be necessary before they can arrive at a conclusion. Commissioner Scott and Governor Atkinson are the leading candidate,s but it is impossible to predict who will be the nominee. Dark horses are numerous.

The Democratic caucus nominated McGraw of Grafton for the United States senate. Only one ballot was taken. The vote stood: McGraw, 35; General C. C. Watts of Charleston, 5; ex-Congressman John D. Alderson of Green Brier, 2; ex-Governor E. W. Wilson, 1; Judge W. G. Bennett of Weston, 1.

Payne to Succeed Dingley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—There is little doubt that the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, made vacant by the death of Mr. Dingley, will be filled by Speaker Reed at the present session, without waiting for the next congress, and that the new chairman will be Representative S. E. Payne of New York.

THE TREATY VIOLATED

Action of German Consul In Samoa an Outrage.

BRITISH AND AMERICANS UNITE.

Former Landed Blue Jackets and Reseated the American Chief Justice, Ousted by the Bloody Battle Between Native Factions—Apia Burned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The situation in the Samoan islands is realized here to be full of gravity. For some past there has been an exchange of correspondence between the three governments, party to the treaty of Berlin, respecting the choice of a successor to the late King Malietoa and some friction developed owing to the strict adherence of the United States government to the terms of the treaty. The statements in the dispatch from Apia are not regarded here as conclusive, for the reason that they are in conflict with the provisions of the treaty.

If, as reported, Raffel, the president of the municipal council at Apia and German Consul Rose, have seized the supreme court and pronounced themselves practically dictators and it is said here that they have violated the treaty absolutely. The functions of the president of the municipal council are clearly defined by the treaty and the last advices received here were to the effect that President Raffel had been granted leave of absence and intended to visit New Zealand. It was also understood that his successor had been selected and it was thought was on his way to his post.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 19.—Samoan advices received here said that Chief Justice Chambers (American), on Dec. 31, declared Malietoa Tanus to have been elected king, in succession to the late King Malietoa. The chief justice also announced that Tamasese had been elected vice king. Chief Mataafa was disqualified.

The consuls of the United States and Great Britain and the captains of the German warship Falke and the British warship Porpoise met the German consul, who refused to recognize Malietoa Tanus and declined to co-operate in the dispersal of the Samoans, who thereupon assembled in large numbers at Mulinu, armed themselves and surrounded the municipality. Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese mustered about 2,000 men, well armed but supplied with defective ammunition. The British and American consuls endeavored to avert hostilities, but they commenced on Jan. 1.

Malietoa Tanus and Tamasese fought bravely, but 500 of their followers were captured. Then, disheartened and outnumbered, the two chief sought refuge on the British warship and their followers sought protection under the guns of the Porpoise.

Mataafa's loss was 61 men killed and wounded, and Malietoa Tanus lost 12 men killed and wounded.

The foreign residents were placed under the protection of a detachment of men belonging to the British ship, and Chief Justice Chambers and his family went on board of her.

The followers of Mataafa looted and burned Apia, destroyed the plantations and pillaged considerably in the country.

The consuls later decided to recognize Mataafa and his chiefs as a provisional government, pending the receipt of instructions from the powers.

Afterward, Dr. Rafael and the German consul closed the supreme court, declaring that the power was vested in them. The British and American consuls then appealed to the captain of the British warship Porpoise, who landed a force of bluejackets, and Chief Justice Chambers, under their guard, took his seat.

Chamberlain Referred to Protests of United States and Britain In China.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, speaking at the banquet of the Wolverhampton chamber of commerce, in connection with the withdrawal of the French demand for an extension of the settlement at Shanghai, congratulated his hearers that Great Britain's opposition to the French proposal had been strenuously supported by the representative of the United States.

"That, I think," he said, "a significant and noteworthy fact. Nay, I think and hope it will become history. It shows that circumstances are bringing about the community of interests between Anglo-Saxons which, in the future, may have far-reaching and beneficent results."

Bishop Hartzell Got African Grant.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church, on his way to Africa, was granted by Cecil Rhodes concessions of lands and buildings, and has been promised co-operation in their development, especially in establishing industrial missions among the natives.

SULTAN OF THE SULUS.

Picturesque Potentate the United States Has Acquired.

HISTORY OF HIS ISLAND DOMAIN.

Spain Did Not Bother His Majesty Much and Paid Him $2,400 a Year to See to Things—Religion of the Islands Is Mohammedan—Manners and Customs of the Natives.

When the American peace commissioners in the negotiations at Paris insisted on the cession of the Sulu archipelago to this country, the United States acquired a very picturesque and possibly unruly vassal in the person of his highness the sultan of Sulu, together with his harem of sultanas and something more than 100,000 Mussulman subjects. Thus for the first time is the Mohammedan religion brought under the protection of the stars and stripes.

The Sulu archipelago over which this Mussulman monarch holds sway is the southernmost part of the remarkable Philippine group, lying east of Borneo, which was at one time under his highness' jurisdiction. Parts of Mindanao and Palaman still render allegiance to his highness, two vassal sultans in the former paying tribute to the sultan of the Sulus as their feudal lord. Although for nearly three centuries the Spaniards waged war against the sultan of the Sulus not until 1877 did this potentate acknowledge the sovereignty of Spain in his dominions, which was also formally recognized by England and Germany in a protocol signed March 11, 1877. No military post was established in the archipelago until 1880, when a convict corps took possession. Two years later garrisons were established in Bongao and Siassi, two small islands of the Sulu group.

In 1887 the island of Sulu was partly conquered by General Arolas, who was lately in command of the Spanish garrison at Havana. In this conquest the sultan did not fare so badly, for he secured the title of excellency and an annual pension of $2,400, besides a renewal of the decree of 1877 exempting the entire population of the archipelago from taxation for a second period of ten years, from 1887. Spain has never been able to levy tribute upon the sultan of the Sulus. In fact, Spanish jurisdiction in Mindanao and the Sulus has always been of the most limited description. Mr. John Foreman, the English traveler who lately gave information regarding the Philippines to the American peace commissioners, observes on this point:

"It is at great sacrifice that the Spaniards can retain the little possession which they have acquired in the south, and frequent acts of violence are still perpetrated on them by the turbulent Mussulmans, who virtually refuse to recognize other rights than those of their sultans, to whom they give allegiance. Indeed it may be unhesitatingly asserted that the Spaniards hold no more domain in Mindanao and the sultanate of Sulu than that of a day's march from their respective garrisons, and in Mindanao, in particular, not one-hundredth part of the territory."

His highness the sultan resides at Maybun, in the island of Sulu, the largest in the archipelago. It is about 34 miles long and 12 broad. There are 140 or 150 islands in the sultanate, 80 or 90 of which are uninhabited. Sulu, the Spanish capital of the group, was fortified and put in good sanitary order some years ago by General Parrado, recently stationed at Havana and a member of the evacuation commission. This officer in the early eighties was governor of Sulu. He erected land defenses and furnished the town with a pure water supply. His government was one of martial law. The sultan, at Maybun on the southern coast, ruled without Spanish interference.

A visit to this potentate is described by Mr. Foreman, who found the palace a large and well constructed building of wood and bamboo, with a spacious vestibule decorated with shrubs and tropical plants. He was received by three chiefs, who conducted him to the throneroom. Mr. Foreman says:

"His excellency was dressed in very tight silk trousers, fastened partly up the sides with showy chased gold or gilt buttons—a short eton cut olive green jacket with an infinity of buttons, white socks, ornamented slippers, a red sash around his waist, a kind of turban and a creese at his side. One could almost have imagined him to be a Spanish bullfighter with an oriental finish off. We all bowed low, and the sultan, surrounded by his sultanas, put his hands to his temples, and on lowering them he bowed at the same time. There was a pause, and the sultan motioned to us to repose on cushions on the floor, and we did so. The cushions, covered with rich silk, were very comfortable. Servants in fantastic costumes were constantly in attendance serving betel nut.

"One sultana was fairly pretty, or had been so, but the remainder were heavy, languid and lazy in their movements, and their teeth, dyed black, did not embellish their personal appearance. They all wore light colored dual garments of great width and light bodices. Their coiffure was carefully finished, but unfortunately a part of the forehead was hidden by an ugly fringe of hair."

The sultanate is a hereditary monarchy under the Salic law, which excludes women from the throne. His highness is a Mussulman by faith, acknowledging the supreme religious authority of the sultan of Turkey, and being under the religious obligation of all Mussulmans of having to make a pilgrimage to Mecca. In order that he may do so one of his ministers, of whom there are three, is named as regent to act as ruler in the event of his absence. The other members of the sultan's cabinet are the minister of war and the minister of justice and master of the ceremonies.

The sultan is supreme in his authority over the lives and property of his subjects, but is advised in matters of state by a council of elders. Under him, but not fully acknowledging his authority, are a number of petty chiefs, called dattos, who collect tribute in his name and pay over to the royal treasury, not that of Spain, but that of the sultan, such portion of their revenues as remains after satisfying their own wants.

The Sulu islanders and the inhabitants of Mindanao will be the first Mussulmans ever under the jurisdiction of the stars and stripes. In the last treaty between Spain and the sultan of Sulu it was especially agreed that the Mussulmans should not be persecuted for their religion. Efforts by Jesuits to Christianize the Mussulman population of Sulu and Mindanao have steadily resulted in failure, the missionaries, as a rule, having been put to death.

The highest religious office is that of cherif, which is a hereditary post, carrying with it temporal power. His subordinates in the hierarchy are known as pandita, a title having the significance of priest. The pandita wields large influence alike in worldly and spiritual affairs, performing the office of physician and officiating at the religious exercises of his faith.

Public worship is held on Friday, when worshipers are called to the mosque by beating upon a box or hollow piece of wood. Solemn ceremonials mark births and deaths. At the funeral of a datto or chief the panditas intone a weird chant, accompanied with cymbals and gongs and the loud lamentations of the mourners. This ceremony is followed by a feast, after which the body, attired in white, is sprinkled with salt and camphor and laid away in a wooden coffin, the place of burial being marked by a wooden or stone slab inscribed in Arabic. A shell full of water is placed on the grave.

The Sulu islanders follow the habits of Mussulmans in the matter of dress. Favorite colors among the women are scarlet and green. They wear a baggy dual nether garment and a tight fitting bodice and sleeves, showing the contour of the figure. On the head they place a narrow cloth sack open at the sides and reaching nearly to the feet, the lower part of which is caught up and held under the arm. Like orientals generally they are fond of jewelry and wear many finger rings of seashell and metal, as well as large and flashy earrings. Their hair is arranged in a coil on the top of the head. Male dress is equally bright in color, consisting of close fitting breeches and waistcoat, both profusely decorated with buttons, and a jacket reaching to the hips. A turban serves for headdress. Chiefs add many additional adornments to their costumes.

Of the Sulus it has been said that "they are of quick perception, audacious, extremely sober, ready to promise everything and do nothing, vindictive and highly suspicious of a stranger's intentions. They are very long suffering in adversity, hesitating in attack, and the bravest of the brave in defense." Hardy in constitution, their bodies are agile and active, and they have cultivated to a high degree the art of diving and remaining under water, an accomplishment which serves them in pearl fishing, one of their chief industries. Their complexion is dark bronze, their eyes piercing, foreheads low, hair lank and worn hanging down the neck. Agriculture and manufactures are in a primitive state. Arms, such as swords, lances, daggers, assegais and coats of mail impervious to hand weapons, are made at home. Trade is confined principally to pearls, shells and shark fins. Many rifles have been imported into the archipelago from foreign sources. All male inhabitants above 16 years are compelled to undergo military service. The language used is a mixture of Sanskrit and Arabic.

For two centuries and a half the Mussulmans of Mindanao and the Sulus were pirates and a source of terror to the entire Philippine group. Their war junks, though never exceeding seven tons in size, were skillfully navigated and able to make long voyages. Murder, rapine and the slave trade were the objects of the piratical expeditions sent to Negros, Panay, and even to Luzon prior to the development of steam navigation. Countless expeditions against these pirates were organized by the Spaniards at great cost, but it was not until 1860, when 18 steam gunboats were sent to the Philippines, that Mussulman piracy, except in the immediate neighborhood of their own islands, was completely ezxtinguished.

Zamboanga, the strongly fortified port and naval station on the southern coast of Mindanao, to which the Spanish forces recently retreated from Iloilo, was long the headquarters of Spanish operations against the piratical Moslems. It was in Spanish possession for more than two centuries, and until very lately the only Spanish outpost held in the Mussulman territory.—New York Sun.

How Doctors Differ.

"For ten solid years," said a New Orleans broker, "I lived in perpetual apprehension of sudden death. A doctor in Texas told me—confound his picture—that I had valvular heart disease, and if I wanted to stay on earth I must avoid every species of excitement. I did my best to follow his advice, but that miserable specter was at my elbow day and night and embittered my whole existence. I don't believe I am a coward, but the thought preyed on me until I began to fear for my sanity.

"At last, after all these years of infinite precaution, I went to a first class specialist to find out how much longer I'd last and was assured that I hadn't one single symptom of the malady. Talk about removing a mountain from a man! That assurance knocked off an entire range. It changed the color of the universe in a twinkling, and I was so happy I wanted to just throw up my hat and yell.

"That was a couple of years ago, and I have enjoyed myself tiptop ever since up to one day last week, when I happened to be chatting with the specialist and remarked that I'd like to murder that sawbones in Texas. 'I don't blame you,' he said. 'That man had no right to tell you that you had heart disease. If I had found you right at death's door, I certainly would never have let you know it.' Now, by Jove, I don't know who or what to believe and am drifting back to the old state of uncertainty. I wish I lived in a cannibal island and had never heard of doctors."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Milk and Mathematics.

When Thomas drove up to deliver the usual quart of white mixture, the gentleman of the house kindly inquired, "Thomas, how many quarts of milk do you deliver daily to your customers?"

"Ninety-one, sir."

"And how many cows have you?"

"Nine, sir."

The gentleman made some remarks about an early winter and the state of the roads, and then asked, "Thomas, how much milk per day do your cows average?"

"Seven quarts, sir."

"Ah, um!" said the gentleman, as he moved off.

Thomas looked after him, scratched his head, and all at once grew pale as he pulled out a short pencil and began to figure on the wagon cover: "Nine cows is nine, and I set down seven quarts under the cows and multiply. That's 63 quarts of milk. I told him I sold 91 quarts per day. Sixty-three from 91 leaves 28 and none to carry. Now, where do I get the rest of the milk? I'll be hanged if I haven't given myself away to one of my best customers by leaving a big cavity in these figures to be filled with water!"—London Sketch.

Italy In London.

Many Londoners have visited the Italian district, which lies in the neighborhood of Theobald's road and Hatton Garden, and some with inquiring minds have strolled up Leather lane and watched the Italian ice cream venders and fortune telling women with pretty love birds, intermingled with the dirty, noisy, street hawkers, common to all London slums. It is amazing to learn how these Italians crowd together in the poky little houses of the courts and alleys. Generally a house is hired by an old padrone, who sublets to as many of his countrymen as he can respectably squeeze in. The cellars are utilized as sleeping apartments, and in the morning as many as 20, even 30, men will emerge from the bowels of the earth, blinking and winking in the daylight after a night spent in the cellars under one small dwelling house. A whole family, consisting of a husband and wife and eight or nine fanciulli of various ages, often sleep in one small garret or cellar.—Ludgate Magazine.

Electric Helmet.

A French doctor has invented an electric helmet, inside of which is a small motor that vibrates strips of steel, the motor making 660 turns per minute. This whizzing is supposed to cure nervous headache and put the sufferer to sleep.—San Francisco Chronicle.

DRUMMER IN HARD LUCK

He Lost His Grip and His Pocketbook.

THEN A BAD CHECK CAME

Leaving Him Destitute—He Remained Here For Several Days Waiting For His Wife to Send Him the Amount Required to Get Him Out of Town.

A traveling salesman left the city last night after an experience that cost him a considerable amount of money and his peace of mind during several days.

It seems the traveler came to the city after an unusually successful trip through the western part of Pennsylvania. He had some money, but his funds were not by any means equal to what he usually carried and he expected a check here. The check was awaiting him, but upon examination he found it was unsigned. The worthless paper was returned and with it went a request for money. Then the salesman went through the city in search of business. Upon his return to the hotel he discovered that his pocketbook had been stolen or he had lost it, and he was almost penniless. That calamity had its influence upon him, but he did not give up. The landlord did not ask for his account, and the salesman again went after business. This time he lost his grip, and his heart was broken. He could do nothing more, and so gave up the battle. A few days later the valise was found in the lower part of town, but it contained nothing. The thief who had stolen it from the spot where the absent minded traveler had put it down, had taken everything.

There was nothing left for the unhappy salesman to do but wait until his money arrived, and when it came he left in a hurry saying East Liverpool was certainly his Jonah.

IT WAS SETTLED.

The Husband Promised to Be Good and His Wife Returned.

The story is related that the wife of a well known resident quietly left her home a week ago, and going to her parents informed them she would live with her husband no more as he was a drunkard. She related that he had come home and abused her, and after he had gone to sleep she left the house.

Because of the prominence of the families concerned efforts were made to settle the matter, and upon the husband promising to behave himself his wife returned to her home.

LIVERPOOL POTTERY.

The Demand For It at Present Is Very Good.

"I don't know when the demand for pottery was so good, provided we except the boom of the fall of 1897," said a manufacturer to the NEWS REVIEW. "The mail order business is something remarkable, and it has been so for several weeks. The fact that little ware has been shipped since the first of the year and times are good enough to make the consumer buy is the secret of the think. I feel satisfied we will have a good year."

STILL SLIPPING

Although a Freeze May Help the Lisbon Road.

The slip on the Lisbon road extended a few feet farther yesterday, but the cold weather did its part in keeping much of the earth from coming down. The damage there is by no means at an end, and parties acquainted with the extent of the slip believe the city will have a bill of no mean size to pay before the matter is ended. When the frost goes out of the ground something interesting can be expected from that part of town.

On the River.

The river continues to fall, but there is still an excellent stage of water for both towboats and packets. The marks at the wharf this morning registered 17.6 feet and falling.

The packets are running on good time and each boat is carrying considerable freight. The Queen City for Cincinnati and the Avalon for Parkersburg were down last night and the Ben Hur went up. The Greenwood and Lorena were due up today and the Ben Hur are down tonight.

The Joseph B. Williams took an immense tow south today. It consisted of 18 coalboats and 2 flats. All for New Orleans.

Business at the wharf is increasing over what it has been during the past few weeks.

—Edward Lewis has returned from Wheeling where he spent a week visiting friends.

What nobler, better ambition can a young couple have than to live loving, helpful lives, and then, in a green old age, look back over a life that has been mutually self-sacrificing, useful and successful? The one great stumbling-block that stands between most married couples and this ideal married career is ill-health. If both husband and wife would take proper care of their health, there would be more hale, hearty and happy old people in the world. If, when a man suffers from the little ills of life, he will resort to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the chances are that he will avoid the big and fatal illnesses. This great medicine gives a man a healthy hunger, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and builds firm, muscular, healthy flesh tissue.

It is an old saying that women are hard to kill. There is some truth in this, as far as the majority of illnesses are concerned. There is one class of disorders, however, that quickly undermine any woman's general health. No woman can retain her strength who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is an unfailing cure for all disorders of this description. It acts directly on the sensitive organs concerned, in a natural, soothing way. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It prepares them to bear the burdens of maternity. It is the greatest of nerve tonics. The woman who uses it will bear healthy, happy children, and live to a ripe old age.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. By all medicine dealers.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

This Is an Old Question and Has to Be Answered Candidly by East Liverpool People.

What do the people of East Liverpool think of the statement published below? Can any citizen ask for more convincing proof of the merits claimed by the article under discussion? What is there lacking in such evidence? The most superficial investigation will corroborate it. It is East Liverpool proof for East Liverpool people. It is not the style of proof other medicinal preparations offer, viz., Kalamazoo, Mich., proof for East Liverpool people. The most exacting cannot wish for anything more. Read this:

Mrs. A. Searight, No. 162 High street, East End, says: "I had a severe attack of kidney complaint, which confined me to my bed for about three months. It affected my entire system, and while I was able to be about I never got completely rid of it. I suffered almost constantly with a dull, heavy pain across the loins; if I sat for any length of time, or did anything that brought me into a stooping position and attempted to rise, there was a sharp shooting pain in the small of my back which felt as if a knife or other sharp instrument had pierced me. I could not sleep when I went to bed, expecting to get rest. I was often robbed of it by nervousness and pain in my back. I have risen unrefreshed and more tired and worn out than I was when I retired. I had taken so much medicine without being cured that I was discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills presented themselves in the form of a newspaper account. I got some at the W. & W. pharmacy. They proved to be the proper remedy for me. Their mild and gentle influence gradually reduced the pain in my back and strengthened the weakness. All the symptoms having disappeared, I rested well at night and gained in strength and weight every day. Of course I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills; it would not be right to refuse to, for the benefit of other sufferers."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

Maori Women.

The Maori women of Australasia have their rights—flourishing ones. Generally they have little voice or choice in the selection of their first husbands, but they may, and frequently do, change them. A woman may trade her husband without so much as a comment from the public, without the slightest smudge on her good name, and it is nothing to his discredit either. Courtship is always brief and does not often preface marriage. The Maoris, however, love to repeat oriental love tales and sing love songs. Maori widows not infrequently commit suicide on the graves of their husbands and are honored for doing so, as in China. Divorce is simple; it needs no revenue, employs no officers. He turns her out of doors, and both are free to remarry. This is all. Girls are often betrothed irrevocably from infancy.

OPPOSED TO A PARDON

Remonstrance Is Being Circulated In Wellsville.

ALSO SIGNED IN THIS CITY

There Were Forty Names on the List Yesterday, Some of Them Being Liverpool People—The Document Is Being Quietly Passed Around.

The effort being made by the friends of Jesse McGregor to secure his release from the Ohio penitentiary will not be allowed to pass without a remonstrance.

It has been learned that the paper had its origin in Wellsville, where it was quietly passed around until it contained 40 names. Then some Liverpool people were asked to place their names on the document, and it was done yesterday evening. The men who had the matter in charge made the statement to a well known Liverpool man that they had made excellent progress. He refused to give the names of the local men who had signed the document.

It will be remembered that McGregor's father recently circulated a petition asking the son's pardon, and it was well signed not only in this place but in Wellsville, where the crime for which the man is serving a life sentence was committed. It is not known whether the circulators of the remonstrance were friends of the dead woman.

RAIDED A CROWD.

Officer McMillan Was After Boys Who Play Football.

Yesterday afternoon Officer McMillan made a raid upon a crowd of boys who were playing football in the alley back of the Central building.

There were about 25 boys present when the officer appeared, and the sight of him caused them to run in as many directions. The officer captured a rubber ball, and after giving several boys a severe lecture took the ball to city hall, where it will be kept.

It is estimated that no less than 10 footballs have been captured by the officers since last fall and taken to the mayor's office.

Elizabeth Cromwell.

Cromwell legends are so ubiquitous in England that it is a real relief to lay one's hand upon a bit of solid fact relating either to the protector or his family. Elizabeth, the second and favorite daughter of Cromwell, married John Claypole of Northborough, and appears to have spent a considerable portion of her 12 years of wedded life in his substantial fourteenth century house. Carlyle asserts Elizabeth Claypole to have been "a graceful, brave and amiable woman," and of her home that it is "now ruined—patched into a farmhouse."

The second statement is not characterized by his usual accuracy, and the first probably needs some modification, for Elizabeth Claypole is credited with some turning of her head over her father's elevation, and at a wedding feast is reported to have exclaimed, when asked why the wives of the major generals were absent, "I'll warrant you, washing their dishes at home, as they used to do." Not a particularly "amiable" sentence that.

Cromwell seems to have had some insight of her little weakness. "Tell her," he wrote once, "to take heed of a departing heart and of being cozened with worldly vanities and worldly company, which, I doubt, she is too subject to." It is agreed by most authorities that John Claypole himself was little enough of a Puritan, but let it stand to his credit that, after Oliver died, he provided a haven for his widow for the rest of her life in this manor house.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Barbers on the Ocean.

One of the most important persons on board a well equipped ocean liner is the barber. If he is gifted with a good business instinct, he is in a position to make a good deal of money.

To the average man shaving while at sea is a difficult and hazardous operation. He therefore calls into requisition the services of the ship's barber, a man who by long training is qualified to wield the razor with skill and safety, no matter how much the vessel rolls or pitches.

He is always one of the most heavily "tipped" officials on the ship. If the ship travels on a route with interesting ports of call, the ship's barber makes it his business to lay in a stock of native knickknacks and curios of all kinds.

The inexperienced traveler is naturally a little suspicious of the native peddlers who swarm on board with their wares directly the ship is at anchor. He prefers to purchase his mementos of foreign travel of the barber, who, having bought his stock at wholesale rates, is able to retail the various articles to passengers at prices little if at all higher than those charged by the native tradesman.—Exchange

Goldsmith's Actor.

Lord Nugent was one evening very eloquent to Goldsmith in praise of M (a bad actor). "But, my lord," said Goldsmith, "you must allow he treads the stage very ill—he waddles." "Waddles?" said Lord Nugent. "Yes, he waddles like a goose. Why, you know we call him Goose M." "Well, and then you know, when he endeavors to express strong passion he bellows." "Bellows?" said Lord Nugent "To be sure he does—bellows like a bull. Why, we call him Bull M." "Well, then," continued Goldsmith, pursuing his triumph, "his voice breaks and he croaks." "Croaks?" said Lord Nugent "Why, the fellow croaks like a frog We call him Frog M But M. is a good actor."

"Why, yes," said Goldsmith, "barring the goose, and the bull, and the frog, and a few other things I could mention, and not wishing to speak ill of my neighbors, I will allow M. is a good actor"

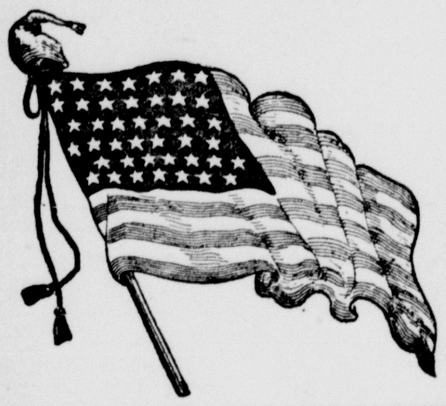
EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, JAN. 19.

UNION PAPERS.

All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns



CONGRESS is talking at a great rate, but for some reason senators and representatives do not seem to be busily engaged in the manufacture of history.

THE claim of some Democrats that Secretary Alger must resign is premature. He still has a part of his original foundation upon which he can stand. When that is gone the time will have come for him to step down and out.

IN his Denver speech Colonel Bryan depended much upon the Bible for his strong points, intertwining politics in such manner as to make his hearers wonder whether they were attending a revival meeting or aiding by their presence in booming a candidate.

THE queen regent of Spain seems to have had enough of war with America, and is willing to have the treaty ratified. In this the lady not only displays remarkable good judgment, but sets an example for some of her medal bedecked statesmen to follow.

THE anti-expansionists are using every argument at their disposal to convince the public that it is right to haul down the Stars and Stripes from the place they have won in the Philippines. Yet some of these men opposed Grover Cleveland during the Hawaiian controversy a few years ago. They need a few lessons in consistency.

THE action of the government in cleaning Cuban cities will not only have a civilizing influence on the natives, but will assure a reasonable degree of health for those Americans who will be sent there to carry on the business of American capital being invested almost every day in the island. Americans cannot live in the filthy towns which seem to have been a creation of Spain.

THE question of geographical location seems to be taking some part in the discussion respecting the gubernatorial candidate of the Republican party. General Grosvenor is opposed in some sections because he like Governor Bushnell resides beyond the center of the state. Perhaps that should have some bearing on the matter, but just now it seems as though the ability of the candidate to govern and not his place of residence should be the first consideration.

ONLY GOOD MEN.

Only a few months will elapse until the Republicans of East Liverpool will select candidates for council, and upon the wisdom of the choice made at the primaries depends the success of the party. Only good men are wanted. Those who have axes to grind, by representing some corporation or a collection of individuals, should not even be considered. It is too early as yet to predict whether any attempt will be made to inflict such a combination upon the public, but if it should be done every candidate of that character should be defeated at the primaries. That is the surest way of bringing victory to the party on election day. Look over the list carefully before election day, and do the city a service by supporting only those men who will do their duty by the people should they be given the honor they seek.

GONE EAST.

Colonel Taylor In Conference With Mr. Dos Passos Today.

Colonel Taylor went east last night, and is today in conference with John R. Dos Passos in New York concerning the affairs of the American Potteries company. There are rumors regarding the particular mission that takes Mr. Taylor to New York, but nothing definite could be learned.

Affairs about the potteries indicate an early resumption. Kilns are being drawn at some, while placing is going on at others. Decorators and packers are hard at work, and shipments are increasing. It is still believed that a number of potteries will be in full operation next week.

NEW ROOM

Is Now Ready For Occupancy at the Central School.

Janitor Albright, of the Central school, has completed the work of placing seats in the new basement room of that building. The iron work of the seats arrived Tuesday and last evening every seat was in position. The room is now being occupied by the class in chemistry and is found to be very convenient.

To be Tried Again.

The case of the Gerke Brewing company against John Rinehart and H. A. McNicol for $12 will be retried Friday afternoon in the court of Squire Rose. The jury will be W. H. Gass, William Cartwright, J. W. Hall, Joseph Turnbull, J. N. Vodrey and Smith Fowler.

Sent Out a Warning.

The Ohio agricultural experiment station sends out a circular warning the public against fradulent fruit peddlers who claim to sell peach trees proof against the yellows. There are no such trees, the station people assert.

To Install Officers.

Thomas Pickal, district deputy installing officer of the American Mechanics, will go to East End this evening, where he will install the officers of council No. 5.

IN M'DERMOTT'S HAND

Were Buried the Sharp Teeth of a Fox Terrier.

EVERY PRECAUTION WAS TAKEN

The Wound Was Cauterized by a Physician and no Serious Results Are Anticipated—It Happened at the Carroll Club Yesterday Afternoon.

Hugh McDermott, the champion bag puncher of the county, is nursing a very sore hand.

Yesterday afternoon he was playing with a fox terrier dog owned by William Higginson, and went into the rooms of the Carroll club, followed by the animal. He started to punch the bag, and the dog, enjoying the sport, would make a spring at it every time it was hit and attempt to bite it.

The sport had gone on for some time when McDermott playfully put out his left hand to tumble the dog and it fastened its teeth in his hand biting clear through the fleshy part of his hand. The wound bled profusely, and McDermott went at once to the office of a physician where it was cauterized. Today he is suffering with a very sore hand, but it is thought he will suffer no ill effects from the bite.

The dog will not be killed, as it is not vicious.

NEW SUBMARINE BOAT.

Successful Trial of a British Naval Officer's Invention In Australia.

A former British naval officer, said to be Lieutenant Innes, has for some time been secretly at work in Australia on a new submarine torpedo boat. A trial of the invention has recently taken place before the commander in chief, Admiral Pearson, in Sydney harbor. There were few persons at the trial. An eyewitness of the experiment said:

"The shape of the boat is like that of the torpedo itself. It is cigar shaped and pointed at both ends. The model was made in seven different engine shops to insure secrecy. The performance of the craft was marvelous. The driving power was electricity, and compressed air was supplied for the occupants. The boat was only 15 feet long, but now that its success is assured a model to hold six men will be built at once. The man in the conning tower can manipulate the vessel or it can be manipulated from below. The submarine war machine is built of brass and is thicker on the underside than on top, to give it trim. The engines are placed amidships. They drive a shaft which turns the stern wheel. In addition to this propeller there is another which works at the end of a vertical shaft directly under the center of the craft and causes the disappearance and reappearance of the boat."

The eyewitness, who is close to Admiral Pearson and is supposed to voice his opinions, added: "The submarine invention is the most remarkable of modern times. The model was not fitted with torpedo tubes, as this was a matter of detail. The trial was to test the efficacy of the central screw in submerging and raising the vessel. The experiment was eminently successful."—New York Sun.

The Better Drawer.

"Your money or your life!" cried the robber.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the artist, and drew a pistol. The artist had no money, and, according to the critics, not much life, but that was not why he laughed. He laughed because he belonged to the school which draws rapidly and boldly rather than the school which draws laboriously, with great attention to detail.—Detroit Journal.

London Landlords.

There is perhaps no tenant who is so completely at the mercy of his landlord as the occupier of a house in London which belongs to one of the great ground landlords. He is an absolute prisoner within the four corners of his lease. The slightest deviation is accompanied with pains and penalties, but, on the other hand, the landlord reserves all kinds of privileges to himself.

Very little furniture is used in the bedrooms of Turkish houses. Rarely is a chair seen in any of them. A few mats adorn the room, and the bed is stretched on the floor.

A HOT FIGHT ON ELKIN.

Finally Confirmed by the Senate—Magee Gave Him Strong Support. Rapped Hastings.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—There was a bitter fight in the senate over the nomination of John P. Elkin of Indiana as attorney general, but in the end both he and W. W. Griest of Lancaster, the new secretary of the commonwealth, were confirmed.

A vote was taken on a motion by Flinn to consider nothing but Griest's appointment, but it was defeated by a vote of 30 to 15. The original motion to consider both appointments was adopted by a vote of 32 to 13.

At one point Mr. Henry charged that Elkin had been removed from a state office for malfeasance in office.

The chair called Mr. Henry to order.

Mr. Henry continued and said that Mr. Elkin had been connected with the famous indemnity bond and for this he had been removed as deputy attorney general.

Mr. Magee came to Mr. Elkin's rescue and made a speech, which was heartily applauded by the Quay senators. "As far as this indemnity bond is concerned," said Mr. Magee, "it was a vicious habit of long standing and one from which the administration which expired yesterday (Tuesday) was not free. [Applause.] In 1895, there were more legislative employes engaged than was provided for by law. In 1897 the legislature appropriated money for this extra help and Governor Hastings, the man who was instrumental in removing Mr. Elkin as deputy attorney general, approved that bill."

He then defended Elkin's personal character and spoke of his struggle as a boy against poverty and infirmity. Elkin, he said, committed an error of judgment.

Mr. Osborn and others defended Mr. Elkin and said he had been removed from office through factional politics, but that his personal integrity had never been questioned. Mr. Flinn ended the debate by saying that Mr. Elkin was not dishonest, that he was a foolish man.

A vote on the question of confirmation revealed the fact that 33 senators voted affimatively and 13 negatively.

TREATY MIGHT BE MODIFIED.

Foreign Minister of Spain Favors Waiting Action of Senate.

MADRID, Jan. 19.—No date has yet been fixed for the meeting of the cortes, but it will probably come together two days after the ratification of the treaty by the United States senate. This is the course advocated by Duke Almodovar de Rio, minister for foreign affairs, on the ground that the senate "may yet introduce modifications into the treaty in the articles dealing with the Philippines."

Pacific Cable Bill Debated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The committee on interstate and foreign commerce had the right of way in the house and succeeded in passing quite a number of bills of minor importance, most of which authorized the construction of lighthouses, fog signals, etc. Then the bill to grant the Pacific Cable company a subsidy of $100,000 a year for 20 years for the construction and operation of a cable was called up and a very spirited debate followed. The opposition was headed by Mr. Corliss (Rep., Mich.), who advocated the construction of a government cable.

QUEERLY BUILT GIANT.

Strange Habits and Enormous Appetite of a Minnesota Youth.

There passed away recently in Madelia, Minn., a young man who had lived a most remarkable life. James S. McIndoo, aged 18 years, died. He was born at Crescent, Iroquois county, Ills., on the 5th day of July, 1880. A normal child at birth, he remained so until 7 years old, then he began to grow rapidly.

This continued until at the time of his death he measured 7 feet 3 inches in height, 4 feet 3 inches around the chest, 4 feet 1 inch around the waist, 4 feet 6 inches around the hips and 4 feet 8 inches around the points of the shoulders. He weighed 325 pounds, wore a No. 24 shoe and a No. 9 hat, measuring 2 feet 3 inches around the head. He could span 13½ inches with his hand, and his feet each measured 7½ inches broad and were 16 inches long. His feet and hands were a little larger in proportion than his body, he having larger feet perhaps than any one else.

The habits of the young man were as odd as his figure, and he required an extra large meal every 20 hours and wanted to sleep for 15 or 20 hours and remain awake the same length of time. His appetite was very great, and he could eat as much as two laboring men. At times he would eat a peck of apples or a basket of grapes and think nothing of it. He had never shed his "baby" teeth, although 18 years old, and his aspirations and hopes were those of a 10-year-old boy. Still he is said to have had quite a genius for making things, having made a violin on which he learned to play quite well. His education nevertheless was poor, owing to his weak eyes.

Since last spring he had traveled with one of the large circuses, but on Nov. 24 he returned to Madelia in poor health, and on the next day was taken very sick, and from that time to the time of his death he remained unconscious. The cause of death was a clot of blood on the brain. Taken altogether, James McIndoo was one of the queerest built persons that ever lived in the state of Minnesota—that is, taken as an afterbirth prodigy. The parents of the queer youth are of ordinary build, and he seemed as strange to them as he did to the rest of the people. He was of Scotch-Irish descent.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A Friend of Baseball Players.

The late Miss May Hillerich, bookkeeper of a firm famed for their baseball bats, was known personally by every player in the League. She was a young woman of unusually bright mind. President Pullman said of her: "The death of Miss Hillerich will cast a gloom over the entire baseball fraternity. She knew all the players, entered into all their joys with spirit, sympathized with them in their woes and gave them words of friendly encouragement. There was no one else like her."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dewey's Expert Diplomacy.

Many have wondered how Dewey could have handled so skillfully the diplomatic questions that confronted him at that time. Dewey, like every other commander, had passed a careful examination in international law, and an admiral must know as much about that subject as a professor in one of our universities.—Admiral Brown in New York World.

A TEACHER'S TROUBLE

He Will Face the County Board of Examiners.

SERIOUS CHARGES ARE FILED

It Is the First Time In Many Years That an Instructor Has Been Placed In His Position—The Parties Came From the Northern Part of the County.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Next Saturday in common pleas courtroom the county school examiners will have a case wherein charges have been brought against a school teacher for immoral conduct, some of his larger pupils of the opposite sex being involved. It is asked that his certificate be revoked.

The charges are preferred by Edward Hasson against Laurin Cope, a teacher. Twenty-two witnesses have been subpoenaed. Professor Vanfossen, clerk of the board, says this is the first case of its kind brought before the board since his connection with it. Charges have been made heretofore against two teachers, but when the board asked to have the charges put in writing the parties interested entirely failed them.

The parties interested all reside in the northern part of the county, and a decidedly sensational trial is anticipated.

The charge against Cope is nothing of a criminal nature, but the hearing will probably be interesting. The man is married, and resides near the school, situated not far from Shelton's grove. He orginally came from Middleton township.

John A. Davidson, administrator of C. H. Davidson, who was killed at Bedford, May 5, 1898, by a freight train on the Cleveland and Pittsburg road, has filed a petition for authority to settle the claim for the wrongful death. The Pennsylvania company offers to pay $2,000. Judge Boone authorized the settlement.

E. C. King has sold to J. L. King 40 acres in West, $1,000.

Anne Hall, of Franklin Square, has been adjudged insane. She will be sent to Massillon.

LISBON FIRE.

A Grocery Store Badly Damaged This Morning.

LISBON, Jan. 19.—[Special]—Fire was discovered this morning in the grocery store of G. C. Gilmore, it having caught from the stove near the rear of the room. The stock, valued at $1,000, was almost completely destroyed, and the plate glass windows broken.

The clothing stock of Mr. Rosenbaugh was damaged as was the confectionery of R. W. Johnson.

TRAVELERS TO START.

Local Potteries Ordered to Send Out Their Travelers Without Delay.

The head of every pottery controlled by the American Potteries company last night received an order from the New York office telling him to send out his traveling salesmen at once and prepare to handle business. It is the first movement toward resumption, and excited favorable comment wherever it was heard.

"The order virtually means that the potteries are to start very soon," said a leading manufacturer. "It will take a week perhaps for the salesmen to reach their territory, but then orders will begin to come in. Meantime some potteries can be shipping. I understand that arrangements are being made for the payment of the potters and the winding up of the deal within a few days."

Railroad Man Here.

F. P. Wyne, representing the passenger department of the Burlington route, with offices in Chicago, was in the city yesterday the guest of Agent Adam Hill. He was here for the purpose of looking after some excursion business in which some people of this city are interested.

Case of Extreme Cruelty.

A case of extreme cruelty to animals was yesterday reported to Humane Officer Lloyd. There was not sufficient evidence to convict the party, but the case is now being investigated and prosecution will probably follow.

Those Who Are Ill.

The condition of Joe Williams, the Cleveland and Pittsburg mail carrier in this city, is unchanged. He is confined to his home in Walnut street with an attack of malaria.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Timmons, of Third street, who has been ill with pneumonia for some time, is improving.

Hiram LeMoyne, of the freight depot, is confined to his home in West End on account of illness. His place at the depot is being filed by Andrew Cockburn, one of the men who was laid off when business became so slow recently.

Mrs. M. E. Calhoun is confined to her home in Seventh street with an attack of the grip.

Section Foreman Hickey is confined to his home in West End by a severe attack of the grip. The force he has charge of is working about the tracks under the supervision of one of the educated Italians.

Pauline, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Taylor, is ill with the grip.

When Mascagni Composes.

Mascagni's greatest passion and delight is to conduct an orchestra, for which he himself says he has a natural talent. But what is more interesting is to watch Mascagni composing his works. His wife, Signora Lina; Mimi (his eldest boy), Dino (another son) and Emilia (his little daughter) all have their parts in it. When the maestro is feverishly writing notes and rushing to the piano to catch an inspiration, his wife follows him to and fro, while the children climb on his knees, he unconsciously running his fingers through their curls.

As soon as he has fixed on a melody he gathers the children in his arms, and they all roll indiscriminately on the floor, the shouts, bumps, laughter, tears, making such an uproar that at last Signora Mascagni interferes, scolding her husband and telling him that a grave musician should give a better example to his family. She bundles away the children, and he returns to his desk, but a few minutes later the scene repeats itself.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Maharajah's Revenge.

The maharanee of Nepaul committed suicide in horror at the disfigurement which an attack of smallpox had caused in her features. The maharajah, who was passionately attached to her, first wreaked his vengeance on the physicians who had attended her in her illness. Then he flew at higher game.

Out of the great temple he brought the idols, placed loaded cannon before them and bade gunners fire. In terror at the proposed blasphemy they refused. Thereupon the maharajah hanged several of them. The survivors then submitted, and the guns were fired and the idols blown to pieces.—Leipsic Missionsblatt.

Faith In the Doctor.

An exchange quotes a story said to have been told at a "charity dinner."

A man was brought into the accident hospital who was thought to be dead. His wife was with him. One of the doctors said, "He is dead;" the man raised his head and said, "No, I'm not dead yet," whereupon his wife admonished him, saying, "Be quiet; the doctor ought to know best."

No Meeting This Month.

The township board of education will not meet this month, but it is thought the members will gather at Clerk Hanley's office Feb. 20, and transact some business. This will be the first meeting to be held this year.

The Red Men will install officers this evening.

The Daughters of America met last evening and considered three applications for membership.

WELLSVILLE.

COUNCIL MAY DECIDE

To Have the Paved Streets Well Cleaned.

COMPLAINT HAS BEEN GENERAL

Even the Most Conservative and Those Who Advocate Economy Want Reform. Amanda Smith Preached to a Large Audience--All the News.

There is no question in the minds of the citizens of this city that some new method of cleaning the paved streets is sadly needed.

The streets are in a most filthy condition, and the street commissioner, with a few men and shovels, is unable to keep them clean. It is probable council will endeavor to solve the problem at their next meeting and the streets will no longer resemble country roads.

Ill With Pneumonia.

James Morgan returned from Pittsburg last evening.

It will be remembered that he was called to that place about a week ago by a telegram stating that his son was very ill and his death was expected. Mr. Morgan left at once for his son's home, and for days it was expected his death would occur any hour, but at last the worst seemed past, and his physicians gave hope that if no further complications should arise his entire recovery from pneumonia was assured.

Sinclair's Horses Died.

W. H. Sinclair has been very unfortunate lately with horses.

Two weeks ago a valuable horse belonging to him was being cared for across the river. It was out in the fields for an airing and feeling full of life it jumped on a fence and was so severely injured that it died from the effect of the accident. Last Monday another horse belonging to him took sick of pneumonia and after a very short illness died.

A Big Meeting.

Amanda Smith, the colored evangelist last evening again occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the edifice was filled to overflowing long before time for the services to commence. She delivered an interesting and logical sermon that went through to the hearts of her hearers, and her visit to the city will be productive of much good.

Mill In Operation.

Number one and two of the old part of the rolling mill is running today, the smoke stacks having been adjusted temporarily yesterday, and it is expected that beginning with next Monday the entire mill will be running in full.

HE STOOD ON THE BRIDGE

It Was a Little After Midnight,

BUT THE POLICE TOOK HIM IN

Because He Was Singing and Otherwise Disturbing the Good People of That Section--Another Drunk Captured In Dew Drop Alley.

Two cases were before Mayor Bough this morning for his disposal. While one of the cases was of the common order the other proved interesting, as the offender was a singer.

About 10 o'clock last night Isaac Gourley was found in an intoxicated condition in Dew Drop alley. He was sleeping and although he was told earlier in the evening to go home, he failed to heed the advice. As a result Officers Woods and Bettridge gathered him in and took him to jail in the patrol, where he spent the night. This morning he pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $7.60. He did not have the necessary amount at the time and was remanded to jail.

J. Frederick, no one knows where he is from, stood on the bridge after midnight with several friends and after looking at the water beneath, began to sing. After singing the men began to act disorderly and use abusive language to all who passed them. The patrol was called and Singer Frederick was taken to jail by Officers Woods and Bettridge. This morning he pleaded guilty to the charges against him and paid a fine of $7.60 after which he departed.

Chief Johnson this morning received from Superintendent Quay, of the Pennsylvania reform school at Morganza, a list of absentees from that institution. A reward of $10 is offered for the capture of each. They are:

Lee Foster, home at rear of No. 541 Third avenue, Pittsburg, 17 years of age; height 5 feet 3 inches; brown hair, blue eyes, dark complexion, small scar from cut above right eye; thick lower lip; spot of India ink near base of right thumb and star in India ink on right fore arm.

Julius Broadneck, colored, home at Washington, 18 years old, height 5 feet 2 inches, weight 136 pounds; very black African features; scar from cut on left cheek; two small scars on back of right hand; four vaccine marks on left arm.

Both wore white canton flannel underwear marked letter "F," blue and gray striped shirts, trousers and jackets of blue-gray cloth.

No complaints were made yesterday afternoon or this morning, and the city has been so quiet during the past week that the authorities do not anticipate much business the rest of the week.

Disguised as a Clean Citizen.

John Mattney, an unkempt and dirty tramp, was charged with stealing a pair of oxen from Joe Brown of Harrison, James county, and selling the animals to local dealers. He was arrested at Rockwood and brought to Chattanooga and put in jail. He finally secured a capable lawyer, and when the case was called in the justice court the other day a clean shaven, well dressed, good looking man took the prisoners' box for trial. When Mr. Brown and the cattle dealers took the witness stand, they were completely taken by surprise at the appearance of the man charged with the theft, and neither of them could swear positively that he was the thief. He was therefore discharged, and before further proceedings could be had fled the city. His lawyer had had him shaved, his hair cut and put a clean shirt and collar on him, all of which so changed him that his identity was lost.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bruin Didn't Like the Sample.

A wooden leg saved the life of a young man named Kelly, who lives near Lackawaxen, Pike county, Pa. Kelly was returning from a visit to the home of his sweetheart at Barryville, a few miles distant, late the other night when he was chased by a bear. A wooden leg impeded his progress, and the animal soon overtook him. With one cuff of its paw Kelly was sent sprawling. The bear pounced upon him and began chewing on the wooden leg, but after consuming half the leg, trousers and shoe, Bruin evidently became disgusted and walked away. Kelly reached home nearly frozen, but thankful that his life was saved.—Philadelphia Times.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 12 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

Why Maud Blushed.

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

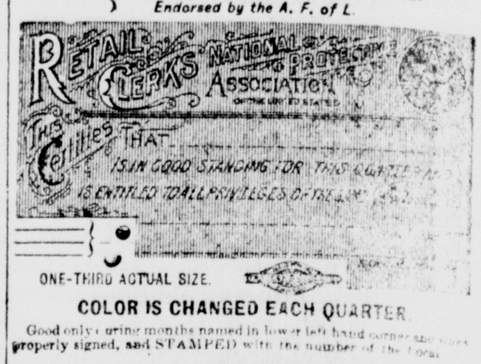
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

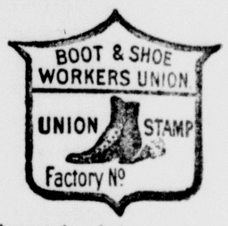


ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, when properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.



The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

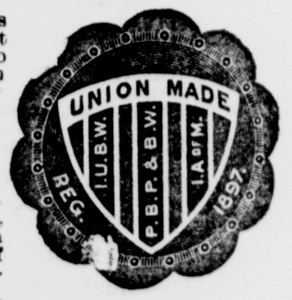
UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

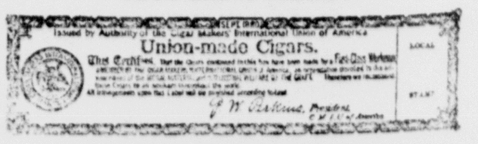
BICYCLE LABEL



"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up his new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened. —Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island. —Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this side of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 13 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

LIONESS ROSE HAS THE GRIP.

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

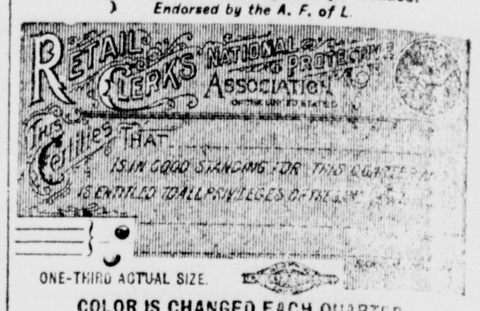
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.



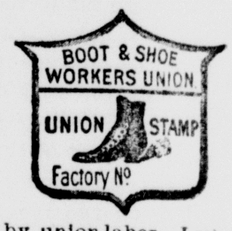
ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner and when properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

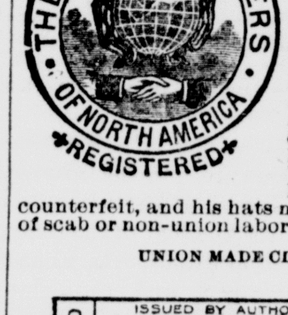
The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.



CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

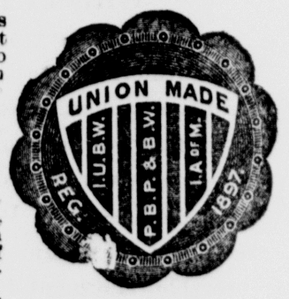


This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL



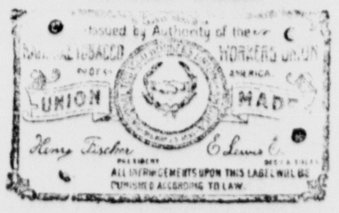
"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.

This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.



The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up this new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this side of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

BIG CROWD HEARD HER

Amanda Smith Talked on Different Religions.

IT WAS VERY INTERESTING

Special Services at the First M. E. Church Continue With Success--Doctor Lee Preached at the First Presbyterian. Church News.

The First M. E. church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear Amanda Smith deliver her closing address in that church.

The evangelist preached one of her characteristic sermons and delighted the large audience with her original sayings. She spoke on the different creeds of religion and told the people not to get sidetracked, but to stay with the good old fashioned religion as it was the best every time. At the close of the sermon a testimony meeting was held.

Special services were commenced at the First Presbyterian church last night and will be continued tonight and tomorrow. They are preparatory to communion services which will be next Sunday.

Reverend Crowe will conduct communion services at the Second Presbyterian church the last Sunday in January.

The quarterly conferences of the First and Second Methodist Episcopal churches of this city will be held in the East End church March 29. Presiding Elder Jackson, of the Steubenville district, will have charge of the meeting.

Doctor Clark Crawford continues to improve and is somewhat better. However, he will be unable to occupy his pulpit at the First M. E. church next Sunday.

One of the largest meetings since the revival services began was last evening held in the lecture room of the First M. E. church. The services were in charge of Presiding Elder Jackson, of Steubenville, who preached a stirring sermon. The meeting was very successful, and 13 conversions were made.

The religious work committee of the Young Men's Christian Association met last evening and considered four or five different courses of Bible study. It was decided to hold another meeting next week and all persons who desire to enter the course will be asked to attend.

TRUE AMERICANS.

That Is What Is Thought of the Eighth Ohio.

In answering the question of a reader as to whether the Eighth Ohio was in battle the Youngstown Telegram says:

"The Eighth Ohio had the true American martial spirit and went to Cuba to fight; but unfortunately, as many of its members hold, the regiment did not arrive in front of Santiago until the fighting was all over. So far as known no member of the Eighth Ohio was either killed or wounded in actual battle; but many of the brave fellows gave up their lives for their country, the victims of the terrible Cuban clime and the hardships consequent upon war."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learned that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Damage Was Done.

Early last evening several men under the influence of liquor became involved in a quarrel in lower Market street. The trouble was a dispute over the ownership of a piece of harness. Several passes were made in the wind, and the men were taken to their homes by friends before any damage was done.

Wellsville Road Very Bad.

Complaint was yesterday made to the township trustees that the Wellsville road a short distance this side of Walker is in a miserable condition and almost impassable. The trustees will see that the place is fixed, as it will only take about two wagon loads of stone to repair it.

The Alcotts' Concord Home.

"The Alcotts had bought a small piece of land and a farmhouse, once good, but fallen into decay, on the Great road to Boston, a mile east of Concord," writes Edward W. Emerson in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They made some repairs and a small addition, greatly improving its appearance, and moved into it the following summer. The situation was extremely picturesque. It was backed by a range of hills clothed in the rich green of pines relieved by a tracery of gray birch. A superb elm served as a great parasol in summer, and besides were apple trees, pink and white in May and red and yellow in September, which commended the place to the fruit loving father, who called it Orchard House. In front, between the house and the wooded hills about Walden, stretched a broad meadow, said to have been an ancient bed of Concord river. A charming wood path led up a little pass among the hills behind the house, sweet with the hot breath of pine. Mr. Alcott's hands, unaided but by taste and skill, greatly beautified the place by a little terracing of the sunny slope here and there, the planting of woodbine on the porch, and the building, out of sticks cut on the place, of a rustic fence and gates and a seat around the spurs of the elm by the door."

A Literary Coincidence.

Plagiarism is a literary crime the charge of which should not be made too freely, especially where a very eminent person is concerned. Retentive memories seem to be responsible for much that in an outburst of indignant emotion we would lay to plagiarism. This, however, can hardly explain the following, which can merely be called a remarkable coincidence. We have never heard that the genial autocrat, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was ever accused of stealing from Whittier, nor do we ever remember that any one has said that the Quaker poet borrowed from the physician. Nor do the circumstances of the present case raise either issue.

We picked up the other day at a second hand bookstore a copy of The Atlantic Monthly of January, 1870. In it we found that the two eminent poets above mentioned while writing on totally different themes gave two lines that are strikingly alike. Mr. Whittier's is "Never by lover my lips be kissed," and Dr. Holmes wrote, "Lips that lover has never kissed." It is rather an extraordinary coincidence, as we have said. How curiously and scientifically and mystically the doctor must have explained it all if his attention were ever called to it!—New York Times.

His Fighting Name.

An army officer here in town tells a story which throws a side light on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia—or something like that; none for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to go fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say: 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy now, and that is my letter." Washington Post.

A Crusher.

Legge, bishop of Oxford, who had not youth as his excuse for his vanity, asked his friend Canning to come and hear his first episcopal sermon. They dined together afterward, and from the politician's silence the other ought to have known better than to push him, but being rather nettled he exclaimed, "Canning, you have said nothing to me about my sermon." "Well, it was short." "Oh," said the bishop, "it is better to be short than tedious." "But," replied Canning, "you were that too."

Athletic Missionaries.

Two English home missionary workers were recently introduced by the Rev. A. J. Robinson to a Birmingham audience in these words:

"You Birmingham chaps have a lot of athletics, and quite right too. The two missionaries are both old athletes, you will be interested to learn. One, an old chum of mine, was in the Cambridge eight, and the other was famous among his fellows as a jumper. He could jump as high as his head."—Liverpool Mercury

Shows Every Indication of the Disease, Including an Ugly Temper.

Rose, the handsomest lioness in the Central park zoo, in New York, is suffering from the grip, with only a fair chance of recovery.

More than a year ago Rose was brought here from Chicago. She did not thrive in that climate, and was sent here. After being comfortably settled

"WHO SAID SNEEZING WAS A SYMPTOM?"

in Central park she became the mother of four cubs. Only one of the cubs lived, and Rose grew melancholy and began to show symptoms of having the grip.

The lioness is suffering undoubtedly. She holds her paw to her head as though afflicted with headache and sneezes, and varies this by rolling, as though troubled with pain. Her appetite has to be coaxed, and even then fails to respond to temptation. There is no doubt that her symptoms are those of grip.

"I CAN SEE MY FINISH."

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS! I'VE GOT IT SURE!"

and they have been commented on by visitors. Apparently she cannot see, or else she has lost her good disposition, for she snarls at her keepers and thrusts her head against the partitions as if trying to escape. Quinine and whisky, cough medicine and headache drops are among the things given her, and those are mostly administered on the end of a pole, as her temper at present seems well developed.—New York Press.

"I'D RATHER DIE IN NEW YORK THAN IN CHICAGO."

Kipling Verses.

Rudyard Kipling has presented Captain Robley D. Evans with a set of his works and a letter containing these verses:

Zogbaum draws with a pencil,
And I do things with a pen,
But you sit up in a conning tower,
Bossing eight hundred men.

Zogbaum takes care of his business,
And I take care of mine,
But you take care of ten thousand tons,
Sky hooting through the brine.

Zogbaum can handle his shadows,
And I can handle my style,
But you can handle a ten inch gun
To carry seven mile.

To him that hath shall be given,
And that's why these books are sent
To the man who has lived more stories
Than Zogbaum or I could invent.

Keeps Visitors Out of Friedrichsruh.

Prince Herbert Bismarck recently issued orders that strangers shall no longer be admitted to Friedrichsruh or to Sachsenwald, which have been heretofore so much used as picnic grounds by the people of Hamburg.

THE NEWS REVIEW

UNION LABELS.

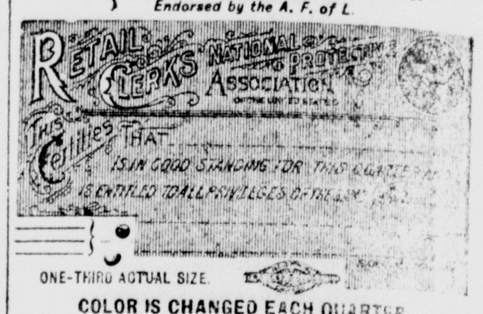
It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

All members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

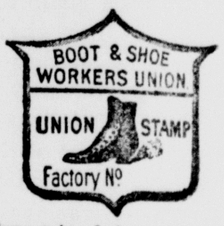


ONE-THIRD ACTUAL SIZE.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER

Good only during months named in lower left hand corner, when properly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

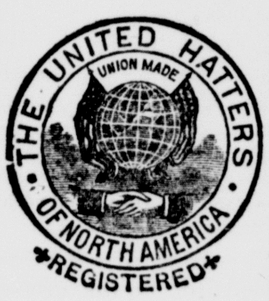


The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

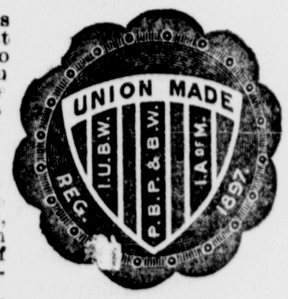


This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

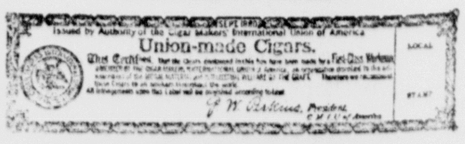
BICYCLE LABEL



"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse the "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue, on a background of pea green, bordered by gold.

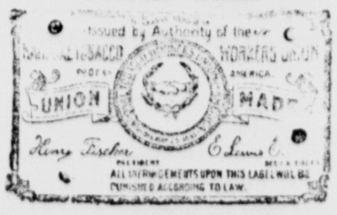
The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUE LABEL CIGARS.



This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the cigar-box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.



The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeshops. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

TANNER SENT THANKS

For the Sympathy Expressed by Trades Council.

FOR HIS ACTION IN THE STRIKE

The Governor of Illinois Appreciates Encouragement When He Refused to Send Troops to Put Down the Coal Strike—The Street Railway Unpleasantness.

Trades council held a very interesting meeting last evening but did not transact much business.

After the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee reported and the following delegates were seated: Thomas C. Neal, W. E. Lytle, painters and decorators, 165; Thomas Stephenson, printers, 32.

The secretary then read a letter from Governor Tanner, of Illinois, acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions recently adopted by the council, warmly commending him for the stand he took in the coal strike in his state and for not sending troops to Virden. He also returned thanks to the council for their action.

A letter was read from James P. Rogers, of East Palestine, asking for information in regard to organizing a Trades and Labor council in that town. The secretary was instructed to give him the desired information.

A petition from the journeymen tailors in regard to union made clothing was unanimously endorsed.

The committee which was appointed to aid the motormen in their strike reported that they had visited all meetings of local unions and secured their endorsement of the strike until the trouble was settled, when they discontinued their work. The committee was discharged, and the council spent some time discussing matters of a private nature before adjourning.

ANOTHER ONE.

Big Price Offered For Sixth Street Business Property.

Scarcely a day passes but what a rumor of an important real estate deal appears, and it is probable some important transfers will take place in the near future.

Yesterday a well known moneyed man of the city obtained a price on valuable Sixth street real estate, and when the fact became known several other parties tried to secure the property. The price asked is in the neighborhood of $20,000, and it is probable the deal will be closed before the first of the week.

It is also stated upon reliable authority that several parties have secured an option on real estate in the Diamond, and the figure is $22,500. Should the land be purchased a handsome block will be erected.

TO OTHER STATES

Go a Great Many Ohio People to Be Married.

It has been discovered that the new marriage law which went into effect Jan. 1 throughout the state has increased the number of elopements to Gretna Greens in other states. The applicants not only have to give lots of family history on each side, but also state the minister, magistrate or other person who will officiate at the ceremony. This is a stumbling block where a couple not having parental consent have not made all their plans and so they take no risk, but hie themselves to some other state where all they have to do is to answer one or two questions and hand out a fee.

MANY APPLICANTS

Are Going to the Township Trustees For Help.

Business at the office of the township trustees is increasing, and applicants for aid are very numerous.

The trustees say the reason for the increase is that the potteries are not running and many people had not made any provision for the shut down, and consequently are compelled to ask for relief.

AVONDALE BOYS

Are Making Life a Burden For Trimmer McCoy.

Trimmer McCoy, of the electric light company, is again having his troubles with the Avondale street small boys.

A few days ago he found that one of the lights in that street had been let down and the globe broken. A new globe was procured, but it was also broken and the carbons removed.

Left the City.

The household effects of James Lucas were yesterday shipped to Cadiz Junction on the Panhandle road. The family is well known here, having resided in the city a number of years.

COUGHLIN A "BERRY WALL."

Chicago Alderman Proposes Changes In the Style of Evening Dress.

Alderman "Bathhouse John" Coughlin of Chicago is going to branch out into the fashion making business. He is tired of the present styles of men's evening dress, and he proposes some radical changes. And he will "set the pace" himself. Court costume is his ideal dress. Berry Wall is the hero whom he would emulate.

When summer rolls around, the alderman will spend two months at society resorts in the east. He will carry with him six sets of evening wear—one set for every "dress suit" night in the week. The suits will be made of velvet, and there will be no two alike in color. One will be a cross between a silver and a cream, another red, another blue, another green, another white and the other wine color. The trousers will be of the knickerbocker variety, and the stockings will be made to match the suit in color. The shoes will be after the fashion of those worn by the aristocracy in the time of Louis XIV. The buttons on the clothing will be silver when the metal will harmonize with the color of the cloth. The trousers will be rather tight fitting, though not uncomfortably so, and in shape the coats will be but little changed from the "spiketail" of the present. The lapels will be larger, however.

The waistcoats that the alderman will wear are to be of different colors from the coats and trousers. Blocked or striped material will prevail with the First ward statesman, though he will be prepared to produce plain waistcoats whenever he thinks them "au fait." The regulation dress shirt will be retained in the new fashion, and the collars of today, too, will be the "proper thing." Alderman Coughlin has already arranged with his tailor for the six suits of clothes. Each suit is to cost him $75. The alderman has decided to have his hats made of colored silk, each one harmonizing with the particular suit with which it is worn.—Chicago Record.

IVES AS A HORSEMAN.

Billiard Expert Turns His Attention to Trotting Races.

The announcement made a few days ago of the retirement of Frank Ives, the billiard player, is now followed by the statement that he is to enter a new field—that of handling trotting horses on the grand circuit.

Ives has been purchasing a number of good horses lately. In taking up this new form of sport he acts upon the belief that it will greatly benefit his health, the germs of consumption, it is said, having already taken such a firm hold that physicians have recommended that he take all the out of door exercise possible.

In the string of light harness horses now owned by Ives are Planet and Success and two or three "green ones" that have shown a fast gait. Of the latter Ed Mee has been driven a second mile in 2:19¼, although never sent for a record or regularly handled for the trotting turf. Ives will go to the Adirondacks soon for a season, but will send two of his horses to Canada for the ice races this winter.—New York Times.

WHISTLED AS HE WAS DYING.

Man With Fractured Skull Kept Up Music Incessantly.

Christ Monberger, the whistling patient at the Fitch hospital, in Buffalo, died early the other morning. After 100 hours of incessant music the nurses were not sorry to see him go, for the doctors said that if he lived he would be an imbecile.

Monberger was found beside the New York Central tracks the other day. A passenger train had fractured his skull as he was crossing the track. At the hospital, while the injury was being attended to, Monberger's sister entered, identified him and went away. Now she cannot be found. Late that same night the watch heard Monberger gasping as if about to die. He gave him a glass of water and, to his astonishment, Monberger began whistling. He kept this up until he died. First it would be a piece of "Cavalleria Rusticana," then an air from a music hall success, then a Sousa march. All efforts to stop him or to arouse consciousness failed. When liquid nourishment was given to him, he took it, then quickly went on with the music.

Early the next morning Monberger's whistle broke in the chorus of "Break the News to Mother," and he was dead. The doctors say that some part of the brain was pressed by the broken skull and that the musical nature awakened.—Special New York Press.

Seeing the Point.

The following story is told of a Philadelphia millionaire who has been dead some years: A young man came to him one day and asked pecuniary aid to start him in business.

"Do you drink?" asked the millionaire.

"Once in awhile."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me." The young man broke off the habit at once, and at the end of the year came to see the millionaire again.

"Do you smoke?" asked the successful man.

"Now and then."

"Stop it. Stop it for a year, and then come and see me again."

The young man went home and broke away from this habit. It took him some time, but finally he worried through the year and presented himself again.

"Do you chew?" asked the philanthropist.

"Yes, I do," was the desperate reply.

"Stop it. Stop it for a year and then come and see me again." The young man stopped chewing, but he never went back again. When asked by his anxious friends why he never called on the millionaire again, he replied that he knew exactly what the man was driving at. "He'd have told me that now that I have stopped drinking and smoking and chewing I must have saved enough to start myself in business—and I have."—Youth's Companion.

A Complicated Case.

"Is Slippy good pay?"

"Well, if he is, Yanker, the dentist, is the meanest man on earth."

"How's that?"

"I was in Yanker's office when Slippy came to have a tooth pulled. Jaw all swollen out of shape. Awful looking face. Fairly howled with pain. But Yanker wouldn't pull the tooth without being paid in advance."

"Pretty tough on Slippy, wasn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know! He's a man of wonderful self command. Instead of kicking up a row he pulled out a check for $5, received $4 in change and smilingly ordered the doctor to go ahead with the torture."

"But was the check worth anything?"

"Good as gold when it was given, but Slippy reached the bank first and drew out his balance. Now he's telling around that Yanker pulled the wrong tooth and insinuates that there may be a suit for malpractice."

"Yanker will sue, of course?"

"Not he. The truth is that the dentist in his excitement drew two teeth at one haul, the extra one being marked by a big gold filling. Slippy misses that one, but what puzzles him is that his jaw is getting well and that he has no toothache. The dentist that filled his tooth was never paid, and the chances are that Slippy will drop the case as being too complicated."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Pussy In a Mirror Maze.

A strange cat strayed into the Crystal Maze the other night. Walking around between the mirrors, she saw her own reflection on all sides. She was not pleased. Her tail started to swell, and she rushed at the nearest cat, which advanced to meet her at the same rate of speed. With a shriek of defiance they met, and the ugly tempered feline fell back from a fearful bump against a mirror.

Up she jumped and looked around, only to see an array of abused cats staring at her. When she moved, 125 others moved also. With a mighty howl of disgust she turned and fled. Groups of cats greeted her everywhere as she dashed into mirrors and tried to climb the slippery surface of the glasses. In the course of a few minutes the animal ran through the exit of the Crystal Maze as if shot from a catapult. With two jumps she rushed to the street and disappeared in one of the adjacent houses, a very badly "rattled" cat.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

Railroad Methods.

The motive power department of a railway keeps an accurate double entry account with every locomotive and every car, so that the manager or master mechanic can tell in an instant how much it has cost to maintain and repair it, how many miles it has traveled and how many cars or tons it has hauled. A similar account is kept with every freight and passenger car. The Pullman company, for example, can tell you any morning the exact earnings of every sleeper or parlor car in service, how much each cost originally and how much has been expended in equipment, maintenance and repairs. — Chicago Record.

Cuba's Population One Million.

Calixto Lopez, the head of one of the largest houses in Havana and having important interests in the island, said to me the other day that he thought there were 2,000,000 persons in the island before the war began. He estimates that 800,000 have been killed or have died from starvation, neglect or other unusual causes. This would leave 1,200,000 persons on the island. I have had other estimates from not so reliable sources to the effect that there are now about 1,000,000 persons on the island.—Chicago Record.

QUEEN OF MIQUELON.

She Has Made a Big Fortune on a Barren Little Island.

Off the western coast of Newfoundland are two barren little islands commonly spoken of together as St. Pierre-Miquelon. They belong to France and the French send over a governor who is also a vice admiral and has charge of the naval station there. But the real ruler of the island of Miquelon is Mme. Marie Louise Gavette. She owns the only hotel on the island, a row of 50 sailors' boarding houses and a fleet of barks, schooners and fishing boats. She is several times a millionaire, has more than 1,000 retainers in her pay and maintains a special police force of her own which is, in fact, a miniature standing army.

The queen of Miquelon, as she is often called, was born in Gascony, but was taken to Miquelon when quite young by her father, who was a sailor. She was educated in a seminary in Cape Breton and at 15 married to M. Gavette, also a sailor. Eventually M. Gavette retired from the sea and opened the hotel on Miquelon. Then he died, and at 32 Mme. Gavette found herself a widow. She was noted far and wide for her sweet smile and pleasant disposition. She conducted the hotel with even more success than her husband. Then she built the sailors' boarding houses, and each proved a little gold mine. Every venture which she undertook turned out fortunately. She grew richer and richer.

It is hinted that smuggling has materially assisted in building up the great fortune of this extraordinary woman, and it is true that Miquelon is a favorite resort of the class of gentry who fight shy of revenue officers. It is known, too, that French wines and brandies are as cheap as they are plentiful along the shores of Newfoundland. Nevertheless, it must in justice be said that among the many seizures effected by Queen Victoria's revenue officers within the last quarter of a century not a cent's worth has been traced to the ownership of her majesty of Miquelon.

After her husband's death Mme. Gavette had many suitors, but she dismissed them all.

"Messieur," she would say to the applicant for her heart, "I have none to give, but you will always find in this hotel the finest sherries and brandies and the best cigars to be had this side of Paris."

Mme. Gavette takes an annual trip to France and has purchased a fine estate in her native Gascony, on which, it is reported, she intends settling down when she reaches the age of 50—that is to say, three years hence. She is still a pretty woman, dresses in the latest fashion, and is never so happy as when entertaining French or American litterateurs in her elegantly furnished home.

TURKEYS TRACKED BY DOGS.

Whole Flocks of Wild Birds Are Often Killed In This Way.

The wild turkey in the Ozarks is now hunted with a slow tracking dog, and whole flocks are often killed in this way. Till the trained dog was employed to follow up the wary bird this game fowl could baffle the most skillful hunter. Now when a flock of turkeys is found the sportsman has little difficulty. A good dog will follow a turkey track that is three or four hours old and set the birds when overtaken, just as the pointer does the quail. After the turkey has been chased awhile it hides in a tree or under a log, and stays there until the hunter, guided by his dog, comes within close range.

It is astonishing what fine instinct a good turkey dog will develop after a few months of training in the woods. He will follow a flock of turkeys for hours just ahead of the hunter, and indicate by unmistakable signs when the game is near. After a turkey has received a fatal shot it may fly half a mile or more. A trained dog will go straight to a wounded or dead turkey with the same precision with which he tracks the game.—Chicago Record.

HOPPED TWENTY-FIVE MILES

Wonderful Journey of a Prospector Injured by a Fall.

Robert Parker, a prospector residing in Sapperton, was brought to Vancouver, B. C., the other day to receive medical care.

His right leg is broken in three places, and both wrists are shattered. In this condition he crawled from Mount Baker to near his home, 30 miles. It took him 19 days to make the trip. Parker and his partner, Bates, were prospecting near the summit of Mount Baker. Parker missed his footing and was hurled down a crevice 50 feet. With a rope Bates rescued Parker. Bates left him to seek help and provisions. When he returned two days later, Parker had disappeared.

Parker had crawled off the trail, carrying enough provisions to keep him several days. For six days he lived in a deserted hut. Starting out then, he actually hopped and crawled 25 miles to a small settlement. There he was found by Bates and brought to Vancouver.—Philadelphia Press.

50,000 FOR CUBA.

General Wood Told a Senate Committee He Thought That Many Troops Would Be Needed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Gen. Leonard Wood, military commander of the department of Santiago, was before the senate committee on military affairs. He considered that a military force would be necessary to the maintenance of order for some years and said it should be sufficient effectually and quickly check any trouble before it could gain headway. He thought as many as 50,000 troops should be stationed throughout Cuba. With proper precaution and tact he did not anticipate trouble and he believed that the insurgent forces would rapidly disintegrate in all parts of the island.

He had shown absolute trust in the Cubans in all matters, going among them always unarmed and leaving the books of the administration always open to their inspection. He had Cubans in all departments, and his private secretary had at one time been a member of Gomez's staff. Thus they always knew how their money had been expended and knew just what he was doing as their governor. General Wood said that his first effort had been to encourage the people of all the towns to establish self-government, and he had been especially zealous in having them select their local officers, open schools, establish courts, build roads, etc., and, in cases where they did not have the money for these purposes, he had aided them by making contributions for the general fund. This system was entirely different from the old one under Spanish rule, when all the collections were forwarded to Havana and never came back, only 16 per cent of the revenue being devoted to local uses. He had found the people especially jealous of their rights in this respect.

NEWSPAPER CHARGE DENIED.

Brooke Declared Statement About Military Government False.

HAVANA, Jan. 19.—El Diario de La Marina, La Lucha, El Pais and La Discussion, as well as other papers less influential, indulge in editorial criticisms of the United States military and administration, asserting that it tends to anarchy. They declare that each provincial governor and each garrison commander is a military dictator, acting independently of the governor general and exercising administrative, legislative, judicial and even ecclesiastical functions.

Governor General Brooke said that the criticism was unfounded, as it was quite untrue that there was no uniformity of action. "Exactly the reverse is the fact," said the governor general.

Saved by a Shirt.

Roy Tigner was saved from an awful death the other day at Zanesville, O by the strength of a shirt which he wore.
